Secret Codes, Gear Destroyed on Pueblo

WASHINGTON (AP) — The commander of the pirated U.S. intelligence ship Pueblo ordered top secret codes and electronic gear destroyed as North Koreans boarded his ship Monday night, sources said today.

The disclosure came as a four-ship Navy task force including the carrier Enterprise cruised toward North Korea and the United States applied diplomatic leverage in a bid to recover its captured vessel and her 83 men.

Elaborate Procedures

The Pentagon knows the elaborate destruct procedures—designed to prevent critical information from falling into enemy hands—were initiated, sources disclosed.

It was not determined whether all the classified gear was burned or dumped overboard as the ship's plan called for. The Pentagon assumes that most of the valuable material was destroyed.

The procedure included the firing of explosive destruct devices around the communications paraphernalia.

There were reports the Pueblo's four wounded men were injured by the explosives but sources said, "We really don't know what happened" to them.

Know About Firing

Sources here said American authorities know that the North Koreans fired on the Pueblo when approaching or boarding the ship. They said they did not know just when the firing came, or what the circumstances were.

Tuesday night the Pentagon said a message from the Pueblo captain did not refer to any enemy firing.

President Johnson was to preside today at what was described as a regular meeting of the National Security Council. The ship incident was likely to be the No. 1 topic.

In Panmunjom, Korea, where the Korean War truce was negotiated, the United Nations Command strongly protested the seizure and demanded immediate return of the ship. The command also demanded a North Korean apology.

But the head of the North Korean delegation there, Maj. Gen. Choong-kook, claimed the Pueblo violated North Korean territorial waters off Wonsan and was trying to "come closer to the land to perpetrate intolerable provocative acts" when North Korean navy vessels "returned fire."

Some congressmen called the Pueblo's takeover an act of war and there were suggestions from Capitol Hill that the United States retaliate.

Sources said the nuclear-powered Enterprise was accompanied by the nuclear frigate Truxton and two other combat ships.

Late Tuesday night the ships—diverted from a combat assignment off Vietnam—were southwest of Sasebo, Japan, and hours away from the North Korean port of Wonsan where the Pueblo was assumed held prisoner. In her last message, the Pueblo reported she had been told to follow four North Korean patrol boats into Wonsan.

A North Korea Korean report monitored in Tokyo said the United States was trying to "ignite another war."

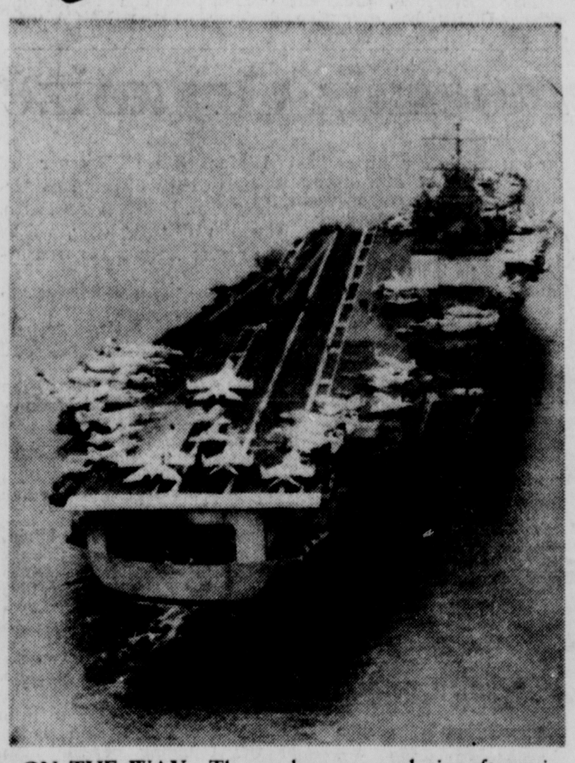

Ambassador William J. Porter informed South Korean officials in Seoul the United States had decided to take "certain initial measures" following the seizure.

Sources in the Korean capital speculated that beyond the dispatching of a naval force, retaliatory military actions against North Korea "are not totally excluded."

Information Minister Hong Jong-chul of South Korea said the North Korean Communist regime "must prepare itself to pay due price for its inhumane, unwarranted terrorism."

Skipper's Wife Praying For Husband, Crew Safety

WORRIED—Mrs. Rose Bucher, wife of Commander Lloyd M. Bucher, captain of captured vessel Pueblo, studies husband's picture after learning of his capture (UPI TELEPHOTO)

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP)—The wife of the skipper of the Navy intelligence ship Pueblo said she is confident the Navy will do all in its power to ensure the safety of her husband and his crew.

Cmdr. Lloyd E. "Pete" Bucher, 38, is commanding officer of the Pueblo which was seized by North Korean patrol boats Tuesday.

"I sat down and started praying," Rose Bucher said, after she learned of the capture. "I prayed none of the crew would be hurt. Now all I can do is hope and pray for his safety."

Mrs. Bucher moved to San Diego with her two sons, Mark, 15, and Mike, 13, from their home in Jefferson, Mo., because orders were expected to bring the Pueblo back to San Diego this spring.

Mrs. Bucher last heard from her husband in a letter from Japan dated Jan. 10.

"He said he was leaving, that's all." she said.

She last saw him in November before he took the Pueblo, his first command, from San Diego to its base in Yokosuka, Japan.

Mrs. Bucher said her husband is a native of Pocatello, Idaho, and went to Boys Town, Neb., after he was orphaned.

He was graduated from high school at Boys Town, then went to the University of Nebraska.

He enlisted in the Navy in 1950 in a program that allowed him to continue in college. He was graduated in 1952 and commissioned in the Navy.

He served mainly on submarines until taking command of the Pueblo a year ago when the ship was commissioned at Bremerton, Wash.

Over Ship Seizure

An Angry Congress Reacts

WASHINGTON (AP) — Angry demands for immediate retaliation mixed with calls for caution marked congressional reaction to North Korea's seizure of the U.S. intelligence ship Pueblo.

A major question being asked at the Capitol Tuesday was why the ship had no protection.

Sen. Strom Thurmond, R-S.C., called the incident "an insult to our flag. It is a serious setback in our intelligence forces and it is an act that we should not tolerate."

He sent a telegram to President Johnson urging that the North Koreans be told the Pueblo would be retaken by force if she is not returned within a specified time.

A similar note was sounded by Sen. Thomas J. Dodd, D-Conn. He said the North Koreans should be told that if they don't release the Pueblo and her crew within 24 hours, "our naval forces will be instructed to seize all vessels of North Korean registry wherever they may be found on the high seas."

But the two senators were the exception to the general reaction that the United States should move slowly and through diplomatic channels before taking any retaliatory action.

As Sen. Karl E. Mundt, R-S.D., a Foreign Relations Committeeman, put it: "This is a provacative incident but we have war worries enough on our hands without looking for another one."

Sens. Bourke B. Hickenlooper, R-Iowa, John Sherman Cooper, R-Ky., and Frank J. Lausche, D-Ohio, said more details of the incident are needed to judge its significance.

Although any formal congressional investigation is likely to await further details about the incident, the biggest question in the minds of Congress members appeared to be: Why didn't the Pueblo have protection in an area where U.S. military power is great?

Some said they felt the Communists were carrying out a propaganda exercise in an attempt to belittle American military strength. They thought the vessel might be released, along with her 83-member crew, after the Communists had exhausted all possible efforts to humiliate the United States.

Chairman Richard B. Russell D-Ga., of the Senate Armed Services Committee said he asked the Pentagon for details on why the ship, "did not undertake to defend itself in the two or three hours of the incident or call for air support."

The Pentagon said later the Pueblo didn't call for help until she was being boarded by North Korean sailors.

The ship, equipped with two machine guns, reported she had not used any weapons before becoming the first American naval vessel captured at sea since the Civil war. Some crew members reportedly were wounded.

Nine Infiltrators Reported Killed

SEOUL, Korea (AP) — While the United States massed a show of force off North Korea in an attempt to obtain the release of the captured U. S. Navy ship Pueblo, South Korean troops reported today they had killed nine more North Korean commandos who invaded Seoul Sunday in an attempt to assassinate President Chung Hee Park and other high officials.

This made a total of 15 of the 31-man band of assassins reported killed, and one more has been captured. The hunt for the other 15 continued.

The North Korean infiltrators have killed nine South Koreans and wounded seven, including an army colonel shot today as he led his men in an encounter on Mt. Nokosan, 10 miles north of Seoul. The colonel's unit killed four Communists, and one escaped.

Farther north of Seoul, in the western sector of the demilitarized zone, three American soldiers were slightly wounded early today in an exchange of fire with four North Korean infiltrating south through the barrier fence along the truce zone.

Ray Mum on the Veto, Disturbed by Critics

By HUGH REYNOLDS

Mayor Raymond W. Garraghan had no comment today on the widely circulated rumor that he would veto the 1968 budget passed by the Common Council Monday night. The mayor, who has not been in his office all week, is reportedly headed for the hospital.

Garraghan has been under doctor's care for several days and will reportedly enter the hospital as soon as a bed becomes available. However, he has not, according to Alderman-at-Large T. Robert Gallo, relinquished his mayoral powers.

May Have the Flu

Garraghan also has not been presented with the budget. The city charter states that if he does not act on the budget within five days after receiving it, the budget then becomes law. This is known as a pocket veto.

Gallo said he spoke to Garraghan today. Said the president of the Common Council, "It looks like he's got a touch of the flu. I think he'll be back with us within three days."

Gallo added, "He has not delegated his powers to me. The mayor is fully aware of what's going on."

Informed sources have indicated that Garraghan was highly disturbed over Republican remarks about his budget which was published in The Freeman last night.

In particular, Garraghan is reported to have taken offense at a statement by John Machione (R-12th Ward) on the Council floor. Machione said 10 per cent of Garraghan's budget was "fat."

Sources close to the mayor told The Freeman today that Garraghan's reaction to Republican criticism was, "If they don't like my budget, let them draw up another one."

Gallo Answers Critics

Gallo had a few words for budget critics today. He told The Freeman, "I think the gentleman from the 12th Ward, if you can call him a gentleman, came out with the most ridiculous criticism I have ever heard in my years of representing the public."

"Finance Chairman Peter Mancuso (D-Eighth Ward) did everything in his power to submit an honest, fair budget. He worked extremely hard with the committee and I commend him for his efforts," Gallo said.

"But this man, Machione," Gallo continued, "never attended a finance meeting. He never recommended any changes to the finance chairman and yet he gets up on the floor of the Common Council and criticizes the budget."

Thinks He's Confused

"When he speaks of representing the taxpayer," Gallo concluded, "I think he's confused. He's proven he's merely a rubber stamp for a few henchmen."

Machione said today that he felt the "fat" was in items listed in the budget as "other expenses." He said he would like to have those "other expenses" clarified and in any case, would not vote for the budget unless it is reduced.

The Alternatives

A Garraghan veto would send the budget back to the Council which could either accept his veto or override it. If they choose the former they would have to make budget revisions to satisfy Garraghan.

If they override his veto they would need nine votes, considered unlikely by Council sources. There are eight Democrats and five Republicans in the Council.

Alderman Robert Schantz (R-Second Ward) interprets any Garraghan veto as a move to place full responsibility of the budget on the Common Council. Said Schantz, "Right now, this is a Garraghan budget passed by the Democrats in the Council. No Republican has voted for it. If it goes back to the Council it has to have Republican support to pass. Thus, it would be a Common Council budget, not a Garraghan-Democratic party budget, and we would all be responsible for its passage."

Time plays an important part in this whole controversy. Budget anticipation notes were taken out by the city treasurer in December. It has been reported that funds from these notes will run out within two weeks.

It is hoped that Mayor Garraghan will come to a decision by Monday.

Power Blackout: 2,500 Homes

By WALTER S. CLARK JR.

Approximately 2,500 homes and business establishments in several communities in northeastern Ulster County were blacked out between two and three hours Tuesday night as the aftermath of two power failures of the Central Hudson Gas & Electric Corp.

Scores of families were having their evening meal and many were listening to the late news when the lights went out and left them in darkness until candles or other temporary light were provided.

The failure in the Lake Katrine area didn't interupt the operations of the State Police as that sub-station has emergency power available at all times.

The trouble began at about 3:41 p. m. yesterday when a malfunction occurred in a small, intricate auxiliary piece of equipment at the Lincoln Park sub-station off Boice's Lane, according to Joseph J. Benjamin, customer relations manager for Central Hudson.

Benjamin said the failure took out the line which feeds the main plant of International Business Machines Corp. and service to Ruby, Lake Katrine and in the Route 9W area from Montgomery Ward's store north to the Mt. Marion four-corners.

Emergency crews called out by Central Hudson officials started picking up service in about an hour and normal service was restored by 5:28 p. m., Benjamin reported.

Repair crews had just about finished restoring service and correcting trouble in that area which also effected Glenerie Lake Park, when the second power failure developed in the Saugerties area.

Benjamin reported that trouble was caused by a phase wire which fell in a remote area of Saugerties off Ulster Avenue. A total of 1,500 homes were plunged into darkness as the result of that failure of power.

Repair crews, who had been working in the Lincoln Park trouble area, were moved into the Saugerties area. According to Benjamin, the second blackout started at about 5:45 p. m. after the cable fell. Because of the wooded area where the trouble occurred, linemen experienced some difficulty.

The area involved in the second trouble section included Quarryville, West Camp, Malden, Glasco, Barclay Heights, and parts of Saugerties, East Kingston including the Whittier section and Ulster Landing. Benjamin said normal service in this area was restored by 8:40 p. m.

Young Democrats Organize

Seeking to "appeal to the young independent voter who has not yet taken a political stand" and claiming, "We will not be a rubber stamp for the regular party organization," Ulster County Young Democrats will hold their organizational meeting on Friday.

The new group, which will stress "community service along governmental lines," will assemble at the American Legion Hall on West O'Reilly Street at 8 p. m.

An organizing committee has put up a slate of five officers who will also serve, along with four non-officers, on the executive committee of the organization.

They will be installed Friday.

Chairman of the group will be Woodstock school teacher John Frankle of West Shokan. The two vice-chairmen slots will be filled by IBM employe Paul Gardner of New Paltz and Kingston school teacher Mrs. Patricia Tosi of Kingston.

IBMer Steve Krosner of West Hurley will serve as secretary and Stanley Petro, Kingston City treasurer, will be the Young Democrats treasurer.

The four lay members of the executive committee will be Attorney Louis Klein, Robert Mitchell, Donald Gregory and John Parete.

Parete is the treasurer of the Ulster County Democratic Committee. It was pointed out that no more than two members of the executive committee can hold a position higher than committeeman in the regular party organization.

According to Louis Klein, son of former Ulster County Democratic Chairman Aaron Klein, "We want to appeal to the young independent," "we are not limiting ourselves to the enrolled Democrat."

Parete, a stock broker at Wood Walker and Co., said that young people "are not being encouraged to get into politics," and that the purpose of the founding of the new group was to attract young talent.

"We want to be an independent militant group," said Parete, adding "but (regular) party discipline will be encouraged and promoted, not abandoned."

Parete explained that the political complexion of the organization will be 'liberal or, if you want, progressive," but he added that the organization will concentrate on County problems.

Klein declared that the emphasis will be on the building up of a ward and town organizations. "We want to conduct a talent search on the local level," he said.

The group will be a branch of the N.Y. State Young Democrats which is a division of the State Democratic party.

SIGNS DEMOLITION CONTRACT — Lloyd R. LeFever, attorney and chairman of the YMCA building fund, points to a demolition contract entered into this week calling for the demolition of the Roe Building, 519 Broadway. Removal of the building which is situated next to the present YMCA will clear the way for the construction of a new YMCA Family Center. Center is Syd Bergman, president of Poughkeepsie Wrecking Company Inc. and at right is Robert D. Stubbs, executive director of the YMCA of Kingston and Ulster County. (Freeman photo by Kruh).

Power Blackout: 2,500 Homes

By WALTER S. CLARK JR.

Approximately 2,500 homes and business establishments in several communities in northeastern Ulster County were blacked out between two and three hours Tuesday night as the aftermath of two power failures of the Central Hudson Gas & Electric Corp.

Scores of families were having their evening meal and many were listening to the late news when the lights went out and left them in darkness until candles or other temporary light were provided.

The failure in the Lake Katrine area didn't interupt the operations of the State Police as that sub-station has emergency power available at all times.

The trouble began at about 3:41 p. m. yesterday when a malfunction occurred in a small, intricate auxiliary piece of equipment at the Lincoln Park sub-station off Boice's Lane, according to Joseph J. Benjamin, customer relations manager for Central Hudson.

Benjamin said the failure took out the line which feeds the main plant of International Business Machines Corp. and service to Ruby, Lake Katrine and in the Route 9W area from Montgomery Ward's store north to the Mt. Marion four-corners.

Emergency crews called out by Central Hudson officials started picking up service in about an hour and normal service was restored by 5:28 p. m., Benjamin reported.

Repair crews had just about finished restoring service and correcting trouble in that area which also effected Glenerie Lake Park, when the second power failure developed in the Saugerties area.

Benjamin reported that trouble was caused by a phase wire which fell in a remote area of Saugerties off Ulster Avenue. A total of 1,500 homes were plunged into darkness as the result of that failure of power.

Repair crews, who had been working in the Lincoln Park trouble area, were moved into the Saugerties area. According to Benjamin, the second blackout started at about 5:45 p. m. after the cable fell. Because of the wooded area where the trouble occurred, linemen experienced some difficulty.

The area involved in the second trouble section included Quarryville, West Camp, Malden, Glasco, Barclay Heights, and parts of Saugerties, East Kingston including the Whittier section and Ulster Landing. Benjamin said normal service in this area was restored by 8:40 p. m.

Young Democrats Organize

Seeking to "appeal to the young independent voter who has not yet taken a political stand" and claiming, "We will not be a rubber stamp for the regular party organization," Ulster County Young Democrats will hold their organizational meeting on Friday.

The new group, which will stress "community service along governmental lines," will assemble at the American Legion Hall on West O'Reilly Street at 8 p. m.

An organizing committee has put up a slate of five officers who will also serve, along with four non-officers, on the executive committee of the organization.

They will be installed Friday.

Chairman of the group will be Woodstock school teacher John Frankle of West Shokan. The two vice-chairmen slots will be filled by IBM employe Paul Gardner of New Paltz and Kingston school teacher Mrs. Patricia Tosi of Kingston.

IBMer Steve Krosner of West Hurley will serve as secretary and Stanley Petro, Kingston City treasurer, will be the Young Democrats treasurer.

The four lay members of the executive committee will be Attorney Louis Klein, Robert Mitchell, Donald Gregory and John Parete.

Parete is the treasurer of the Ulster County Democratic Committee. It was pointed out that no more than two members of the executive committee can hold a position higher than committeeman in the regular party organization.

According to Louis Klein, son of former Ulster County Democratic Chairman Aaron Klein, "We want to appeal to the young independent," "we are not limiting ourselves to the enrolled Democrat."

Parete, a stock broker at Wood Walker and Co., said that young people "are not being encouraged to get into politics," and that the purpose of the founding of the new group was to attract young talent.

"We want to be an independent militant group," said Parete, adding "but (regular) party discipline will be encouraged and promoted, not abandoned."

Parete explained that the political complexion of the organization will be 'liberal or, if you want, progressive," but he added that the organization will concentrate on County problems.

Klein declared that the emphasis will be on the building up of a ward and town organizations. "We want to conduct a talent search on the local level," he said.

The group will be a branch of the N.Y. State Young Democrats which is a division of the State Democratic party.

Defector: Red Victory and Then Talks; 10,000 More Hanoi Troops in Quang Tri

By GEORGE ESPER

SAIGON (AP) — North Vietnam has sent 10,000 more troops into South Vietnam's embattled northern provinces, and a defector says their goal is to wipe out American forces there to pave the way for negotiations, a senior U.S. officer reported today.

The American officer said the North Vietnamese 304th Division has infiltrated into western Quang Tri Province, where the U.S. Marines have been under heavy pressure this week.

The U.S. source said a lieutenant who defected from the new division told allied interrogators the Communist objective was to launch an offensive against South Vietnam's two northernmost provinces which would "destroy American forces."

"A victory would be followed by negotiations," the defector said.

A number of high officials in the U.S. military command and the U.S. Embassy in Saigon believe that North Vietnam is about to launch a massive military campaign in an attempt to gain advantages for use at the negotiation table.

The lieutenant who defected was quoted as saying that the Communist battle plan against the northern frontier is considered so crucial that it is under the direction of the North Vietnamese Defense Ministry headed by Gen. Vo Nguyen Giap, the architect of the Communist victory over the French at Dien Bien Phu. Other sources said Giap has not been seen in Hanoi for one or two months, but that this has happened on other occasions.

In western Quang Tri, meanwhile, ground action was light Tuesday, but U.S. aircraft and artillery reportedly killed another 61 North Vietnamese around the U.S. Marine combat base at Khe Sanh. In the biggest action of the day, U.S. air cavalrymen said they killed 128 Viet Cong in an eight-hour battle on the Bong Son coastal plain, 200 miles southeast of the demilitarized zone.

The new Red division reported in Quang Tri gives the North Vietnamese three full divisions and possibly a fourth along South Vietnam's northern frontier, plus independent units that swell the total force to an estimated 40,000 to 50,000 men threatening allied strongpoints below the DMZ. There are now about 40,000 U.S. troops in the northern war zone plus 12,000 South Vietnamese troops.

KHE SANH—Close-in ground combat has subsided in this hotspot where U.S. spokesmen say the Marines have killed 207 enemy, and South Vietnamese forces claim 250 Reds killed since Saturday. But U.S. planes continued to attack enemy gun positions, and one of the planes, a Marine A4 Skyhawk, was shot down by North Vietnamese gunners, the third U.S. fighter-bomber downed in the Khe Sanh Valley in three days. The pilot, Maj. William E. Loftus of Chicago, parachuted to safety and was picked up. It was the 7th U.S. plane lost in combat over the South.

Communist gunners pumped more than 50 rounds of artillery and mortar into Marine outposts in the area, but the dug-in Leathernecks reported only five wounded.

Eight-engine B52 bombers made three raids on North Vietnamese positions Tuesday and this morning. The bombships unloaded on suspected Communist troop concentrations, base camps, a staging area and a large ammunition storage area.

BONG SON—American infantrymen of the 1st Air Cavalry riding armored personnel carrier caught a large Viet Cong force in the open Tuesday on the coastal plain and raked the enemy with machine-gun fire. Fighter-bombers and gunship helicopters swooped down and laced rockets into the exposed guerrilla force that numbered about 350.

When the smoke cleared after eight hours of fighting, 128 Viet Cong bodies were counted, the U.S. Command announced, while four Americans were killed and 19 wounded.

DAK TO—North Vietnamese forces attacked two companies of U.S. 4th Infantry Division troops moving west along a ridgeline in the central highlands less than three miles from the junction of South Vietnam, Laos and Cambodia.

The GIs had just left their artillery fire support base, and the Communists zeroed in on them with mortars and bazooka-type rockets, pinning them down for nearly two hours.

U. S. losses were put at seven dead, with 26 wounded. The infantrymen reported five enemy

Ship Seizure Lifts Lid on The 'Sea Spies'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Capture of the Pueblo by the North Koreans—and the Pentagon's acknowledgment the ship was a Navy intelligence vessel—lifts the official lid on worldwide electronic spying by the major powers.

It marks a drastic change from the Pentagon's insistence that the Liberty, a spy ship shot up by the Israelis off Egypt last June, was a "technical research ship."

"Intelligence collection by naval vessels is a routine activity among major powers," a defense official said Tuesday, indicating a more relaxed attitude toward suggestions the United States engages in this kind of activity.

"It is common knowledge that for a number of years intelligence collecting ships have followed U.S. fleet activities in various parts of the world," he added. The official obviously was alluding to the Soviet Union's terrier-like electronic eavesdropping vessels which show up wherever U.S. fleets are manuevering and near important Polaris submarine and other bases.

Such ships, in the guise of fishing trawlers, are "in fact positioned in international waters off the shores of the United States and other nations right now," this offcial said.

The U.S. intelligence vessels —which listen in on the radio traffic of other countries, spot radar sites and gather information to permit jamming them—and the Soviet Union's deep sea intelligence ships are parts of an extensive electronic intelligence system which has grown up in the Cold War years.

There are spy-in-the-sky satellites, both Soviet and American, whirling about the earth with almost unbelievably accurate cameras and "ferret" listening devices for eavesdropping on radio communications.

There are unmanned drones with sensitive information-gathering equipment. There are destroyers carrying "black boxes" which slip close to hostile shores to intercept radio talk, record coded messages and pick up other information. One of the two U.S. destroyers involved in the historic Tonkin Gulf attack by North Vietnamese patrol boats in August 1964 reportedly had been on such a mission.

The United States and Soviet Union, say nothing about what they know of the other side's electronic snooping from space.

But the U.S. Navy complains out loud about the operations of the Soviet "trawlers," some of which get into the flow of fleet traffic and sometimes interfere with carrier and other operations.

Soviet trawlers have been reported standing off Polaris submarine bases at Holy Loch, Scotland, at Rota, Spain, Guam, and Charleston, S.C.

U.S. vessels have taken positions in the Pacific to observe the re-entry and splashdown of Soviet intercontinental ballistic missiles fired into the mid-Pacific.

The 935-ton Pueblo is one of three of her class, all converted light cargo vessels.

She has about eight whip antennae and two heavy masts hung with special electronic gear.

The Pueblo engages in hydrographic surveys as well as electronic intelligence, dropping devices into the water to measure its temperature at various levels, its salinity and its density. All these factors are important in antisubmarine warfare work because they affect the penetration of sonar beams.

All told, there are about a dozen clearly identifiable intelligence-type ships in the U.S.

Taxation Is Critical

Governor Rockefeller's $5.5 billion budget has rocked both friends and foes, and those looking for proof that he is planning on being a last-minute entrant in the race for the Republican Presidential nomination will find no encouragement in his budget proposal.

The budget increases reveal that Rockefeller has been very generous in aid to social programs in the fields of health, mental health, welfare and education.

However, there is this to say about the tax proposals: Rockefeller endorsed an increase in the state income tax in preference to a sales tax hike. The income tax is graduated, running from two per cent on the first $1,000 of taxable income, to a maximum of 10 per cent on income over $15,000. This means that a person now paying a $100 state income tax would have to pay $120. The surcharge will yield $300 million.

A one per cent sales tax hike would have realized some $340 million, which would have come from the little man who spends all the money he earns.

It was the unfairness of a sales tax that prompted the governor's decision. The sales tax is inherently inequitable, because it uses up a larger percentage of the poor man's income than the rich man's.

The sales tax is a regressive tax slapping the lowly consumer with the tax load and further burdening the local merchant. This we pointed out when Mayor Garraghan requested and the Common Council passed a two per cent sales tax for the City of Kingston.

The aldermen, by a 7 to 5 vote, also passed the highest budget in the history of the City of Kingston, calling for a tax rate of $83.66 per thousand dollars of assessed valuation

Taxation is at a critical issue and spending programs must be cut on the national, state and local levels. It is time taxpayers let the lawmakers know that they have about all the government they can afford.

Largest Merger

The Supreme Court's affirmation of the merger of the Pennsylvania and New York Central Railroads, with the New Haven Railroad to follow, is coupled with a directive to the Norfolk & Western to merger three smaller lines. It already had its own plan to merge with the Chesapeake & Ohio. Thus two giant competitive rail lines would be created in the northeast.

The Penn-Central is not only the largest corporate merger in history, forming the largest privately owned rail system in the world, it opens the way for competitive integrated rail service in the quarter of the country that is the most populated and most industrialized.

Jobs for the length of their working time of 95,800 employes will be preserved in the merger—the Central's 41,000 and the Pennsylvania's 54,800. Men may be transferred but not discharged. The savings in the joint operation are expected to reach $100 million within eight years of the merger.

There are some hurdles to be overcome. Some objections of towns will have to be ironed out. Some few smaller lines in the area want inclusion in the Norfolk & Western system on better terms and these must be worked out. But for all practical purposes, the unanimous approval of the Supreme Court—there was a slight dissent but not from the general order—means the new Penn-Central system will become operative soon, since task forces of both lines have been working on the merger for years.

Now, the public expectation for better rail service should be realized. Perhaps it may even spur a resurrection of mass passenger service, as the Government sponsored speed run from Boston to Washington creates interest in land mass transportatoin throughout the area. Such a development could go far to justify the mergers from the public view.

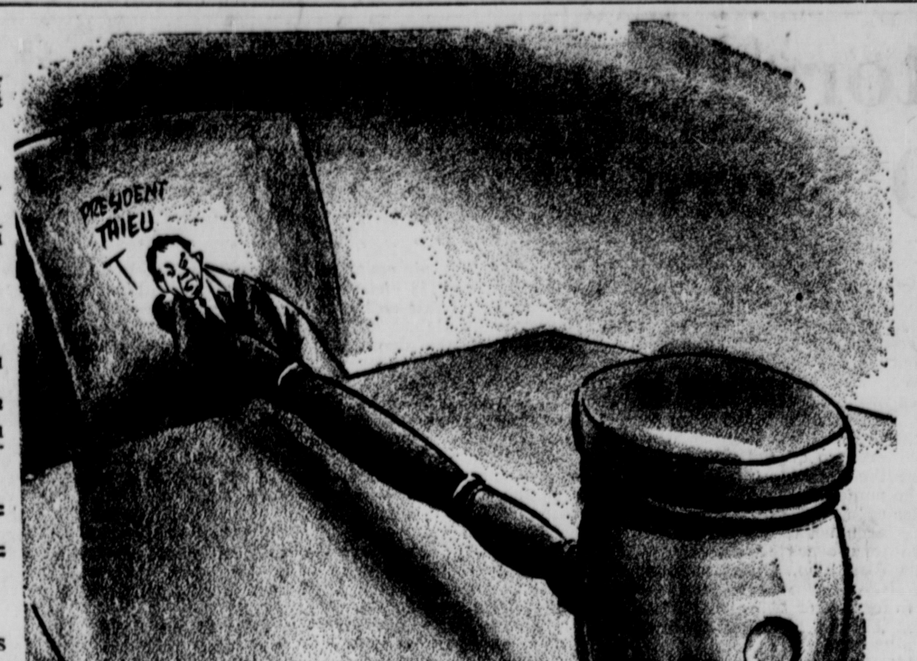

Six Million Travelers

President Johnson's request that Americans save the dollar balance by refraining for a couple of years from traveling to Europe would have affected nearly six million persons last year. That is the number who crossed the Atlantic by air and water in 1967.

Airlines carried 5,481,191, their best year. Ships took 497,000 passengers, the lowest number since 1935.

Signs are mounting that the travel industry and prospective passengers themselves will protest the request. The Secretary of the Treasury is exploring legislation to achieve the President's objective. The travel lobby will try to stop passage of any restrictive law or water it down in Congress.

It is not a question of freedom of the air and seas. Americans may go on essential business. The question is how to keep from transferring to Europe the money which helps create the unfavorable balance of payments. Six million people traveling over America for their vacation can also add a good deal of the prosperity of the country.

Rusk's Experience, Objectivity Unique

WASHINGTON — Who really determines foreign policy for the United States? One day the American people read that the Secretary of State is testifying before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, and that his views are not to the liking of Senator J. W. Fulbright of Arkansas, Democrat, who is chairman of the committee. Another day people read that, with the appointment of Clark Clifford as Secretary of Defense, Mr. Fulbright says publicly that he hopes he can persuade the new secretary to bring about changes in our policy in Vietnam.

There is need for clarification of governmental functions. Military policy and the attainment of an objective on the battlefield are something for the military chiefs to formulate with the approval of the Commander-in-Chief. To crystallize American foreign policy is supposed to be the primary duty of the Secretary of State, who places his analysis before the President for final decision. This presentation is based on day-to-day reports of a confidential nature from all parts of the world.

Dean Rusk, who has this week begun his eighth year as Secretary of State, is a man of wide experience. He is not volatile. He is not an exhibitionist. He is not trying to please certain segments of the population. He is doing what he thinks in the long run will best preserve the honor, prestige and security of the United States. Few people are aware of the remarkable career he has had in preparation for one of the most important posts in the government.

Mr. Rusk was a Rhodes Scholar in England, and then for six years served as dean of the faculty at Mills College in California. He entered the United States Army in December 1940, and became a colonel. He was awarded the Legion of Merit and Oak Leaf Cluster. When he left the service in February 1946, he went to the Department of State and, except for a brief period as special assistant to the Secretary of War, served in various posts in the Department of State during the Truman administration.

Dean Rusk acquired a good deal of experience with the educational institutions and public-affairs projects of this country when he was president of the Rockefeller Foundation from 1952 to 1961. He became secretary of state immediately after the inauguration of President Kennedy.

Newsmen in Washington began to know him when he was serving in the Department of State during the Truman Administration, particularly in his post as assistant secretary for Far Eastern Affairs from 1950 to 1952. Developments in that area were the subject of much controversy at the time due to the Communist takeover of mainland China and later the outbreak of the Korean war.

Mr. Rusk is unique among secretaries of state. He came to the office not only with a wide background in foreign affairs, but with an understanding of the military point of view as well. He is the kind of cabinet officer who projects himself before the public too often. When he is called upon by committees of Congress to testify, he is forthright and persuasive.

The secretary doesn't try to take unto himself all the important tasks that confront the Department of State. He has learned how to delegate some of them to his assistants.

There have been secretaries of state who had served in Congress or who had been active in political life. But rarely has there been a secretary of state with such a breadth of experience and objectivity as Dean Rusk. He does not like to become involved in any way in politics. He expresses himself freely, and often bluntly, in the private councils of the President and the cabinet. He has had frequent colloquies with the chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, because he has declined to agree with views of many of the dissenters on foreign policy.

Dean Rusk is truly one of the most remarkable men who has ever held the post of secreary of state. Only one person — Cordell Hull, who served eleven years and nine months — has had a longer term.

Jim Bishop: Reporter

There is a little known Soviet economist who may change the world. He is Evsei Liberman and he lives in Kharkov, a city of 950,000 population situated about 400 miles south-southwest of Moscow. Professor Liberman suggested that the Soviet government charge interest on capital investments.

This is Communist heresy. It is socialistic sacrilige. It is the bloody imprimatur of the capitalist exploiters. Liberman did not intend to undermine Communism, or to alter its course. The professor is a Russian patriot.

Liberman had witnessed the failure of two five-year plans, and one of seven years. Personal observations in the factories and on the farms taught him that the government bookkeeping system was kidding itself. The central government was handing out hundreds of millions of rubles to party bosses in the provinces for the production of tractors, or the growing of corn, and was chalking each one up as a profitable venture if the original investment was returned over a period of years.

The professor's pencil told him that this represented a loss. He said nothing until after Josef Stalin was safely dead, then he took a long chance and tossed it out as the new economic gospel. The party bosses discussed it gravely, and applauded grimly. Other Soviet eonomists endorsed the Liberman principle of "Expand or Die" and, unconsciously, the Soviet government began to swing from left toward center.

It was like dropping a rock into a shotglass of vodka. The waves spilled over the steppes. Liberman and his disciples found fault with the collective farm system, where the communal work of many farmers produced less produce than the three per cent the government permitted each farmer to till for his private use.

The department stores had ordered from textile factories so many millions of print dresses each year; so many millions of fur-trimmed coats; so many millions of walking shoes. These were not selling in spite of government knowledge that the people needed clothes. Liberman pointed out that there is an old old law called, surprisingly, "Supply and Demand." If the government factories would stop manufacturing items selected by party bosses, and permit the ladies to determine the type of merchandise they desired to wear—the stuff would move off the racks.

That worked too. The economists told the government not to force the plant owners to build a government-approved tractor, but to let the enterprising managers devise their own—so that the farmers would have a choice of model, size, output and cost.

All of which, including interest charges, is old hat to Americans but very new chapeau to a Russian. It is possible that Russian children may be taught that, in 1965, the Soviet Union invented private enterprise.

The swing from sharp left toward political center continues on Lieberman's impetus until now, almost one-third of all industry except Soviet Defense is privately managed and profit sharing.

In 1949, the Soviet government spawned Communist China as the newest and biggest of the satellites around Mother Russia. China did not believe in interest rates or private enterprise. A decade later, the baby began to denounce its political mother as "revisionist," a violator of the precepts of Karl Marx. Politically, the Soviet Union began to tilt toward the U.S.A. while calling us names.

Now Premier Kosygin and Party Secretary Brezhnev find themselves loosening the ties to Poland, Rumania and Hungary, and permitting merchants and plant managers more latitude, more equitable wage scales, and fiscal bonuses to employes. Russia is not a capitalistic nation; far from it. But it is about as far to the right of China as it is to the left of America.

The word for this is "awkward." Sooner or later, there must be an acute confrontation between the U. S. and China, and the Soviet Union cannot stand by as "neutralist" and still pretend to maintain political leadership of its bloc of socialist states. It must pick a side. Either way is anathema. If it chooses China, Russia becomes a satellite in an Oriental world; if it selects the U. S., it fights for the preservation of a capitalistic world.

So far as I know, Professor Evsei Liberman is still in Kharkov. All he suggested was that if you lend a hundred rubles for five years, and get back one hundred rubles, you have lost money. A very astute observation . . .

Sen. Eastland Gets $129,977 For Not Growing Cotton Crop

New Secretary of Defense

On Dec. 14 Drew Pearson and Jack Anderson listed the possible candidates for Secretary of Defense replacing McNamara. They listed three: Cyrus Vance, Gov. John Connally, and former Secretary of the Treasury Robert Anderson. They also listed Clark Clifford as follows: "Johnson has been leaning heavily on Clifford for advice in the Vietnam war, was grooming him to be Secretary of State, but could appoint him as Secretary of Defense first."

One month later, on January 19, the President appointed Clifford Secretary of Defense.

WASHINGTON — Big Jim Eastland of Mississippi, the cigar-chomping chairman of the Senate Judiciary Committee, has been drawing down a bigger cotton subsidy bonanza from Uncle Sam than his neighbors realized—$129,977 a year.

Big Jim is not only chairman of the Judiciary Committee, but is the No. 2 man of the Senate Agriculture Committee, which writes the laws for American farmers, including the act by which farmers are paid not to plant cotton.

True, this principle was enacted long before Sen. Eastland became a power on the Agricultural Committee. In recent years, however, payment to big farmers and plantation owners have got bigger, while payments to small farmers have tended to get smaller.

At any rate the Eastland plantation at Doddsville received in 1965—the last year for which figures are available—the nice little subsidy of $129,977. The payment is listed as having been made to "Mrs. E. C. Eastland"—obviously referring to Mrs. Elizabeth Coleman Eastland, the Senator's wife.

Arias Vetoes Ritter

It is estimated that to secure this payment Eastland withheld 1,700 acres of cotton.

Sen. Eastland is one of the biggest recipients of the federal cotton subsidy in the state of Mississippi though cotton and wheat subsidies to big land owners in the central valley of California put even Sen. Eastland in the shade.

Ex-President Arnulfo Arias of Panama, who is almost certain to become president of Panama again in May, has serious misgivings about the Panamanian ambassador to the OAS in Washington, who has caused such a ruckus in his campaign to head up that organization. The first thing Arias will do when he becomes President again is to fire Ambassador Eduardo Ritter.

"We want someone in this job who will pull together—will unite the Hemisphere," Ex-President Arias told us over the long distance telephone.

"I know Ritter very slightly," he added, "but I'm sure the American press is not pro-Nazi (as Ambassador Ritter had alleged) any more than I was when they said those things about me.

"I have been advocating a unified Hemisphere from Alaska to Patagonia. It is up to you in Washington to pick someone to head up the OAS who will carry that out."

Ambassador Ritter has claimed that the bigger nations of the Western Hemisphere were ganging up on him as the representative of a smaller nation. Obviously the man who will be the next president of Panama made it clear that he didn't agree.

Private-Paid Junket

Despite the rash of Congressional junkets over the Christmas holiday, there were some trips which didn't cost the taxpayers a cent.

Young Rep. Richard "Max" McCarthy, D-N. Y., paid his own expenses for a look-see at conditions in Europe, and came back convinced that it is slowly headed for unity, despite De Gaulle.

"Economic and political dark spots abound in Britain, France and other countries, but the over-all picture is bright," he reported. "The prosperity, the progress in business, science and technology and the growth of the middle class are visible in much of the continent.

The De Gaulle influence and the resurfacing of old nationalistic tendencies to "go it alone" with Eastern Europe in trade, are two factors pulling the old world back toward the past, McCarthy declared.

However, other forces are pulling toward eventual unity, such as:

1. The success of the Common Market;

2. The feeling of impotence afflicting small nations caught between the American and Soviet power spheres;

3. A fear that the United States, preoccupied in Asia, might turn its back on Europe and leave it to shift alone.

"If, over the next decade or so, a unified Europe does emerge, it will have a profound effect on U.S. policy," added McCarthy. "For a United States of Europe, comparable in size and influence to the USA, would be a competitor as much as a partner."

Formula for Peace

President Johnson soon will receive a report on a "junket for peace," which also cost the taxpayers nothing and which was aimed at finding an honorable end to the war in Vietnam.

The junket was led by two formerly hawkish Republican House members, Reps. Fred Schwengel of Iowa and William Cowger of Kentucky. They were accompanied by John Bacarini, former director of the "Self Help" program (donor of farm tools and other aids to underprivileged foreigners), and by seven other private citizens.

Based on their self-financed tour of Vietnam, they will make a number of suggestions to the President, including a recommendation that the pacification program be taken out of military hands and put under a civilian administrator.

Another recommendation will be that the United States shift from a "search and destroy" policy to a "seize and hold" strategy. Rep. Schwengel points out that these two proposals are aimed at winning the "hearts and minds" of the Vietnamese people, as well as relieving refugee problems in the battle area.

Schwengel and his group also favor cessation of bombing in North Vietnam.

"We don't want to be classified under either the hawk or the dove label," says the Iowa Congressman. "Actually, we are realists. We seek an effective and honorable way out of the fighting in Vietnam as quickly as possible."

Henry J. Taylor Says

Question Government's Truth Telling

President Johnson's $186 billion budget proposal in his State of the Union message couldn't have been more inflationary if he'd written it in dynamite, and much of its justification for the overspending is the same old political raccoon with just another ring around its tail.

How much government spending and debt we can stand is the great standing question. The message brushes this off entirely. I don't know to what beach Mr. Johnson goes to put his head in the sand but there's a lot of dangerous undertow around there for us taxpayers.

With Mr. Johnson's popularity springing some leaks below the water line, and intent on reaching the haven of reelection, he proposes still more spending like a starved man at the sound of a steak sizzling in the pan. But what happens to our country?

Conveniently not acknowledging his Great Society's overspending disease, he cannot fathom the cure. Again refusing to apply priorities in the spending, the State of the Union message fails to measure the real, the weighable, the measurable problems in our country within our present powers to solve them. The only solution LBJ offers is that there is no bottom to the barrel.

This epic of communication, designed to move mountains, or at least keep syncophants awake, fails on both counts. It starts off when sentences that are positively Etruscan in their refusal to be cracked. Then, reaching deep in his bag of cliches for a snapper, this old-style word spinner ends it as he habitually ends his speeches: Send me more money.

In this Mr. Johnson has clearly fallen out of phase with the folks back home, unless I am deaf, dumb and blind everywhere I go across the country. The pollsters would have to be wrong, too.

Dr. Gallup and most others find that the rising cost of living and of government (taxes) are such a major concern of the American people today that these rank even ahead of the Vietnam war. Further, millions ask—with the war on poverty a local and national shambles and the Social Security and welfare programs loaded with abuse—how long this prostitution of our wealth can continue without wrecking every decent concept of our democratic system.

They feel that when a better madhouse is built the Great Society will build it, and that Mr. Johnson's refrain of "Let's all sing like the birdies sing" is painfully, outrageously out of date and out of place in a country which feels that no matter what we do, no matter what sacrifices we make, we are somehow being thrown away. It is this widespread feeling of confusion, anxiety and impatience — a nagging feeling that the country's sacrifices have got it nowhere—that the State of the Union message misses utterly.

The next major contribution is to the President's famous 'credibility gap.' Millions ask how we can spend billions to guard against the gigantic, merciless Sino-Soviet threat, fulfill our unlimited commitment in the Vietnam war, support the U.S. dollar's at-bay position and still make good on the President's expanded promises for pie-in-the-sky.

Today's movement toward nihilism, anarchy and alienation—not alone among many young people—and the cynicism that accompanies it, never before typical in our country, are in large part due to the undermined faith of our people.

The Kennedy and Johnson reversals of their 1960 and 1964 promises were, and still are, carried forth by deception, both in domestic policy (both went on and on to say, say, say, "I believe in a balanced budget") and in foreign policy (Cuba, Laos, Berlin, Vietnam). The people's lack of confidence in the government's truth telling is the inevitable result. This is most recently evidenced, for example, by polls indicating that the majority of the American people do not believe that they are being told the full truth, or have ever been told the full truth about the Vietnam war.

Doubt is a cumulative process and the gnawing, corrosive doubt about President Johnson's truth telling that saps our strength and weakens our wills is a shameful and dangerous tragedy. In deepening the doubts the message is like pouring water on a drowning man.

Foreign Travel

Editor, The Freeman

I have sent the following letter to Congressman Resnick registering my position against the administration's proposed restrictions on foreign travel. I am not impressed by the supposed monetary savings as they appear to be a small fraction of the total balance of payments.

I think the policy is very short-sighted. The legions of American travelers abroad constitute our most potent demonstration to the world at large of the success of our way of life. Here are fairly ordinary people, not ambassadors or officials on a junket, meeting other ordinary people around the world. Certainly most of the world is either too poor, or too restricted, to come to our country, but there is a great desire to see us. How else will they ever meet us, and compare with what they read about us, if we don't go to them?

I have been three times to Europe, once to the Middle East, and last year around the world through the Soviet Union. I well remember a conversation with my pretty Komsomol guide in Moscow in which she challenged me to think what could I do that she could not. Well, I said, come to America and visit me. She changed the subject.

Will I now have to change the subject?

Respectfully,
PHILIP H. SEAMAN

Editor, The Freeman

The Ulster County Chairman of the National Foundation-March of Dimes, Meyer Kaplan, forwarded me a copy of the Saturday, January 13, Kingston Daily Freeman in which there is a fine editorial on the March of Dimes. What you have said here is not only truthful but clear and to the point and can do much in the way of creating understanding of the problems of birth defects and the means by which the March of Dimes is attacking these problems.

In closing, I would like to express my appreciation, too, for the excellent overall publicity that you and the paper have provided.

Sincerely yours,

Dean Rusk acquired a good deal of experience with the educational institutions and public-affairs projects of this country when he was president of the Rockefeller Foundation from 1952 to 1961. He became secretary of state immediately after the inauguration of President Kennedy.

Newsmen in Washington began to know him when he was serving in the Department of State during the Truman Administration, particularly in his post as assistant secretary for Far Eastern Affairs from 1950 to 1952. Developments in that area were the subject of much controversy at the time due to the Communist takeover of mainland China and later the outbreak of the Korean war.

Mr. Rusk is unique among secretaries of state. He came to the office not only with a wide background in foreign affairs, but with an understanding of the military point of view as well. He is the kind of cabinet officer who projects himself before the public too often. When he is called upon by committees of Congress to testify, he is forthright and persuasive.

The secretary doesn't try to take unto himself all the important tasks that confront the Department of State. He has learned how to delegate some of them to his assistants.

There have been secretaries of state who had served in Congress or who had been active in political life. But rarely has there been a secretary of state with such a breadth of experience and objectivity as Dean Rusk. He does not like to become involved in any way in politics. He expresses himself freely, and often bluntly, in the private councils of the President and the cabinet. He has had frequent colloquies with the chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, because he has declined to agree with views of many of the dissenters on foreign policy.

Dean Rusk is truly one of the most remarkable men who has ever held the post of secreary of state. Only one person — Cordell Hull, who served eleven years and nine months — has had a longer term.

Jim Bishop: Reporter

There is a little known Soviet economist who may change the world. He is Evsei Liberman and he lives in Kharkov, a city of 950,000 population situated about 400 miles south-southwest of Moscow. Professor Liberman suggested that the Soviet government charge interest on capital investments.

This is Communist heresy. It is socialistic sacrilige. It is the bloody imprimatur of the capitalist exploiters. Liberman did not intend to undermine Communism, or to alter its course. The professor is a Russian patriot.

Liberman had witnessed the failure of two five-year plans, and one of seven years. Personal observations in the factories and on the farms taught him that the government bookkeeping system was kidding itself. The central government was handing out hundreds of millions of rubles to party bosses in the provinces for the production of tractors, or the growing of corn, and was chalking each one up as a profitable venture if the original investment was returned over a period of years.

The professor's pencil told him that this represented a loss. He said nothing until after Josef Stalin was safely dead, then he took a long chance and tossed it out as the new economic gospel. The party bosses discussed it gravely, and applauded grimly. Other Soviet eonomists endorsed the Liberman principle of "Expand or Die" and, unconsciously, the Soviet government began to swing from left toward center.

It was like dropping a rock into a shotglass of vodka. The waves spilled over the steppes. Liberman and his disciples found fault with the collective farm system, where the communal work of many farmers produced less produce than the three per cent the government permitted each farmer to till for his private use.

The department stores had ordered from textile factories so many millions of print dresses each year; so many millions of fur-trimmed coats; so many millions of walking shoes. These were not selling in spite of government knowledge that the people needed clothes. Liberman pointed out that there is an old old law called, surprisingly, "Supply and Demand." If the government factories would stop manufacturing items selected by party bosses, and permit the ladies to determine the type of merchandise they desired to wear—the stuff would move off the racks.

That worked too. The economists told the government not to force the plant owners to build a government-approved tractor, but to let the enterprising managers devise their own—so that the farmers would have a choice of model, size, output and cost.

All of which, including interest charges, is old hat to Americans but very new chapeau to a Russian. It is possible that Russian children may be taught that, in 1965, the Soviet Union invented private enterprise.

In 1949, the Soviet government spawned Communist China as the newest and biggest of the satellites around Mother Russia. China did not believe in interest rates or private enterprise. A decade later, the baby began to denounce its political mother as "revisionist," a violator of the precepts of Karl Marx. Politically, the Soviet Union began to tilt toward the U.S.A. while calling us names.

Now Premier Kosygin and Party Secretary Brezhnev find themselves loosening the ties to Poland, Rumania and Hungary, and permitting merchants and plant managers more latitude, more equitable wage scales, and fiscal bonuses to employes. Russia is not a capitalistic nation; far from it. But it is about as far to the right of China as it is to the left of America.

The word for this is "awkward." Sooner or later, there must be an acute confrontation between the U. S. and China, and the Soviet Union cannot stand by as "neutralist" and still pretend to maintain political leadership of its bloc of socialist states. It must pick a side. Either way is anathema. If it chooses China, Russia becomes a satellite in an Oriental world; if it selects the U. S., it fights for the preservation of a capitalistic world.

So far as I know, Professor Evsei Liberman is still in Kharkov. All he suggested was that if you lend a hundred rubles for five years, and get back one hundred rubles, you have lost money. A very astute observation . . .

Sen. Eastland Gets $129,977 For Not Growing Cotton Crop

New Secretary of Defense

On Dec. 14 Drew Pearson and Jack Anderson listed the possible candidates for Secretary of Defense replacing McNamara. They listed three: Cyrus Vance, Gov. John Connally, and former Secretary of the Treasury Robert Anderson. They also listed Clark Clifford as follows: "Johnson has been leaning heavily on Clifford for advice in the Vietnam war, was grooming him to be Secretary of State, but could appoint him as Secretary of Defense first."

One month later, on January 19, the President appointed Clifford Secretary of Defense.

WASHINGTON — Big Jim Eastland of Mississippi, the cigar-chomping chairman of the Senate Judiciary Committee, has been drawing down a bigger cotton subsidy bonanza from Uncle Sam than his neighbors realized—$129,977 a year.

Big Jim is not only chairman of the Judiciary Committee, but is the No. 2 man of the Senate Agriculture Committee, which writes the laws for American farmers, including the act by which farmers are paid not to plant cotton.

True, this principle was enacted long before Sen. Eastland became a power on the Agricultural Committee. In recent years, however, payment to big farmers and plantation owners have got bigger, while payments to small farmers have tended to get smaller.

At any rate the Eastland plantation at Doddsville received in 1965—the last year for which figures are available—the nice little subsidy of $129,977. The payment is listed as having been made to "Mrs. E. C. Eastland"—obviously referring to Mrs. Elizabeth Coleman Eastland, the Senator's wife.

Arias Vetoes Ritter

It is estimated that to secure this payment Eastland withheld 1,700 acres of cotton.

Sen. Eastland is one of the biggest recipients of the federal cotton subsidy in the state of Mississippi though cotton and wheat subsidies to big land owners in the central valley of California put even Sen. East'nd in the shade.

Ex-President Arnulfo Arias of Panama, who is almost certain to become president of Panama again in May, has serious misgivings about the Panamanian ambassador to the OAS in Washington, who has caused such a ruckus in his campaign to head up that organization. The first thing Arias will do when he becomes President again is to fire Ambassador Eduardo Ritter.

"We want someone in this job who will pull together—will unite the Hemisphere," Ex-President Arias told us over the long distance telephone.

"I know Ritter very slightly," he added, "but I'm sure the American press is not pro-Nazi (as Ambassador Ritter had alleged) any more than I was when they said those things about me.

"I have been advocating a unified Hemisphere from Alaska to Patagonia. It is up to you in Washington to pick someone to head up the OAS who will carry that out."

Ambassador Ritter has claimed that the bigger nations of the Western Hemisphere were ganging up on him as the representative of a smaller nation. Obviously the man who will be the next president of Panama made it clear that he didn't agree.

Private-Paid Junket

Despite the rash of Congressional junkets over the Christmas holiday, there were some trips which didn't cost the taxpayers a cent.

Young Rep. Richard "Max" McCarthy, D-N. Y., paid his own expenses for a look-see at conditions in Europe, and came back convinced that it is slowly headed for unity, despite De Gaulle.

"Economic and political dark spots abound in Britain, France and other countries, but the over-all picture is bright," he reported. "The prosperity, the progress in business, science and technology and the growth of the middle class are visible in much of the continent.

The De Gaulle influence and the resurfacing of old nationalistic tendencies to "go it alone" with Eastern Europe in trade, are two factors pulling the old world back toward the past, McCarthy declared.

However, other forces are pulling toward eventual unity, such as:

1. The success of the Common Market;

2. The feeling of impotence afflicting small nations caught between the American and Soviet power spheres;

3. A fear that the United States, preoccupied in Asia, might turn its back on Europe and leave it to shift alone.

"If, over the next decade or so, a unified Europe does emerge, it will have a profound effect on U.S. policy," added McCarthy. "For a United States of Europe, comparable in size and influence to the USA, would be a competitor as much as a partner."

Formula for Peace

President Johnson soon will receive a report on a "junket for peace," which also cost the taxpayers nothing and which was aimed at finding an honorable end to the war in Vietnam.

The junket was led by two formerly hawkish Republican House members, Reps. Fred Schwengel of Iowa and William Cowger of Kentucky. They were accompanied by John Bacarini, former director of the "Self Help" program (donor of farm tools and other aids to underprivileged foreigners), and by seven other private citizens.

Based on their self-financed tour of Vietnam, they will make a number of suggestions to the President, including a recommendation that the pacification program be taken out of military hands and put under a civilian administrator.

Another recommendation will be that the United States shift from a "search and destroy" policy to a "seize and hold" strategy. Rep. Schwengel points out that these two proposals are aimed at winning the "hearts and minds" of the Vietnamese people, as well as relieving refugee problems in the battle area.

Schwengel and his group also favor cessation of bombing in North Vietnam.

"We don't want to be classified under either the hawk or the dove label," says the Iowa Congressman. "Actually, we are realists. We seek an effective and honorable way out of the fighting in Vietnam as quickly as possible."

Henry J. Taylor Says

Question Government's Truth Telling

President Johnson's $186 billion budget proposal in his State of the Union message couldn't have been more inflationary if he'd written it in dynamite, and much of its justification for the overspending is the same old political raccoon with just another ring around its tail.

How much government spending and debt we can stand is the great standing question. The message brushes this off entirely. I don't know to what beach Mr. Johnson goes to put his head in the sand but there's a lot of dangerous undertow around there for us taxpayers.

With Mr. Johnson's popularity springing some leaks below the water line, and intent on reaching the haven of reelection, he proposes still more spending like a starved man at the sound of a steak sizzling in the pan. But what happens to our country?

Conveniently not acknowledging his Great Society's overspending disease, he cannot fathom the cure. Again refusing to apply priorities in the spending, the State of the Union message fails to measure the real, the weighable, the measurable problems in our country within our present powers to solve them. The only solution LBJ offers is that there is no bottom to the barrel.

This epic of communication, designed to move mountains, or at least keep syncophants awake, fails on both counts. It starts off when sentences that are positively Etruscan in their refusal to be cracked. Then, reaching deep in his bag of cliches for a snapper, this old-style word spinner ends it as he habitually ends his speeches: Send me more money.

In this Mr. Johnson has clearly fallen out of phase with the folks back home, unless I am deaf, dumb and blind everywhere I go across the country. The pollsters would have to be wrong, too.

Dr. Gallup and most others find that the rising cost of living and of government (taxes) are such a major concern of the American people today that these rank even ahead of the Vietnam war. Further, millions ask—with the war on poverty a local and national shambles and the Social Security and welfare programs loaded with abuse—how long this prostitution of our wealth can continue without wrecking every decent concept of our democratic system.

They feel that when a better madhouse is built the Great Society will build it, and that Mr. Johnson's refrain of "Let's all sing like the birdies sing" is painfully, outrageously out of date and out of place in a country which feels that no matter what we do, no matter what sacrifices we make, we are somehow being thrown away. It is this widespread feeling of confusion, anxiety and impatience — a nagging feeling that the country's sacrifices have got it nowhere—that the State of the Union message misses utterly.

The next major contribution is to the President's famous 'credibility gap.' Millions ask how we can spend billions to guard against the gigantic, merciless Sino-Soviet threat, fulfill our unlimited commitment in the Vietnam war, support the U.S. dollar's at-bay position and still make good on the President's expanded promises for pie-in-the-sky.

Today's movement toward nihilism, anarchy and alienation—not alone among many young people—and the cynicism that accompanies it, never before typical in our country, are in large part due to the undermined faith of our people.

The Kennedy and Johnson reversals of their 1960 and 1964 promises were, and still are, carried forth by deception, both in domestic policy (both went on and on to say, say, say, "I believe in a balanced budget") and in foreign policy (Cuba, Laos, Berlin, Vietnam). The people's lack of confidence in the government's truth telling is the inevitable result. This is most recently evidenced, for example, by polls indicating that the majority of the American people do not believe that they are being told the full truth, or have ever been told the full truth about the Vietnam war.

Doubt is a cumulative process and the gnawing, corrosive doubt about President Johnson's truth telling that saps our strength and weakens our wills is a shameful and dangerous tragedy. In deepening the doubts the message is like pouring water on a drowning man.

Foreign Travel

Editor, The Freeman

I have sent the following letter to Congressman Resnick registering my position against the administration's proposed restrictions on foreign travel. I am not impressed by the supposed monetary savings as they appear to be a small fraction of the total balance of payments.

I think the policy is very short-sighted. The legions of American travelers abroad constitute our most potent demonstration to the world at large of the success of our way of life. Here are fairly ordinary people, not ambassadors or officials on a junket, meeting other ordinary people around the world. Certainly most of the world is either too poor, or too restricted, to come to our country, but there is a great desire to see us. How else will they ever meet us, and compare with what they read about us, if we don't go to them?

I have been three times to Europe, once to the Middle East, and last year around the world through the Soviet Union. I well remember a conversation with my pretty Komsomol guide in Moscow in which she challenged me to think what could I do that she could not. Well, I said, come to America and visit me. She changed the subject.

Will I now have to change the subject?

Respectfully,
PHILIP H. SEAMAN

The March or Dimes

Editor, The Freeman

The Ulster County Chairman of the National Foundation-March of Dimes, Meyer Kaplan, forwarded me a copy of the Saturday, January 13, Kingston Daily Freeman in which there is a fine editorial on the March of Dimes. What you have said here is not only truthful but clear and to the point and can do much in the way of creating understanding of the problems of birth defects and the means by which the March of Dimes is attacking these problems.

In closing, I would like to express my appreciation, too, for the excellent overall publicity that you and the paper have provided.

Sincerely yours,
ALVORD W. CLEMENTS

Realistic Riot Curbs Are Proposed by Commission

By BRUCE BIOSSAT
NEA Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON (NEA) — Contrary to some published reports, the President's commission on civil disorders is not likely to be bound by ordinary budgetary - political limits when, around March 1, it drums out an expected list of hard-nosed recommendations.

This does not mean these proposals will carry some massive overall price tag, though rough cost estimates may be attached to certain major items.

It does mean that the commission, currently engaged in composing its recommendations, is not going to shrink from saying flat out what it thinks needs to be done—regardless of ultimate cost, regardless of the fiscal realities of 1968 or 1969.

There is no convincing evidence that President Johnson has tried so far to soft-pedal the commission's efforts and keep their coming recommendations within tight fiscal confines.

The bipartisan make-up of the group and the presence on it of such tough-minded members as Mayor John Lindsay of New York and Sen. Fred Harris of Oklahoma are considered good insurance that the commission will produce a report free of presidential pressure.

In this regard, one of the surprises on the commission has been Atlanta Police Chief Herbert T. Jenkins. He is seen by some members as thoughtful, pungent, independent-minded and quite without automatic pro-police bias in critical discussions of disorder.

Already in near-final shape are the commission report's first two major sections — one an account of what has happened in the cities, the other the "why" of it.

A member privately describes these sections as sharp, dramatic, sure to hit the American public between the eyes. He expects the recommendations section to match these, and adds:

"There has never been a commission report like it."

The commission gave up the idea of putting out an "interim" report and then a final version. Its March 1 deadline for its single smash document is being pressed for in full awareness that a tardy report could come too late to have any hoped-for dampening effect on possible racial outbreaks in mid-1968.

Very possibly, too, the commission's recommendations will not be labeled "long-range" and "short-range.'

Those members who think their work will be useless if they do not have almost a shock impact believe vital forces may be dissipated if they brand their sweeping objectives "long-range."

Their hope, therefore, is that current deliberations will produce a series of no-nonsense proposals on jobs, housing, schools and the like which they can say should be fulfilled at the earliest conceivable moment.

On schools, they evidently have not yet found the dramatic key they want. In housing, a loud call for open occupancy seems almost certain. On jobs, they are faced now with finding something even more telling than the President's already announced program for training 500,000 hard-core unemployed (mostly Negroes) in three years with industry's co-operation and a first cost of $2.1 billion.

Whatever the big goals it sets in these and other fields, the prospect is, however, that the commision at the same time will list a host of more limited objectives which can be achieved quickly by either executive action or immediate new legislation.

These, presumably, would fall within presently realizable budget levels. But they would be offered not as palliatives just to ease explosive urban pressures. The aim would be to offer them as an "earnest of intent" to strike for the big objectives now rather than in some dimly forseen, frustratingly far-off future.

Positions Unchanged

By JAMES MARLOW
AP News Analyst

WASHINGTON (AP) — For three years and more it's been jabber - jabber - jabber, with nothing to show for it yet.

The one aim of the Viet Cong and the North Vietnamese is taking over South Vietnam. They have been stopped by the United States from doing it by force.

There are other possible ways: For example—a peace that let the Viet Cong become part of the South Vietnamese government.

Once they had their foot in the door then, by hook or crook, they might grab control. So far all their aims have been stopped.

Despite all the semantics about "could" and "would" and "will," this is the basic, unchanged position of both sides on how to start peace talks:

North Vietnam says the United States must stop bombing the Northland and also must get its forces out of Vietnam altogether.

The United States says it will stop the bombing but not unconditionally. Before it stops, it wants assurance peace talks will start promptly.

North Vietnam has refused to give such assurance, says the United States can't lay down conditions and declares everything the United States says is a "trick."

The reason this country won't stop the bombing until it gets the assurance it insists upon is this:

Bombing won't win the war; but it does damage the North; this keeps a lot of North Vietnamese, who otherwise could be directly involved in the war, busy repairing damage; the bombing does put a dent in the men and supplies the North is sending South and all this is a help to U.S. ground forces in the South.

To stop the bombing, without assurances peace talks could start right away, would let the North pile up men and supplies for its forces in the South and put U.S. ground forces at a great disadvantage.

Instead of haggling three years, it might seem that if both sides wanted peace, or only if one did, peace talks could be arranged fast.

It's not that simple. If North Vietnam yielded to American demands it would be an admission it had lost the heart and interest it used to have in stopping aggressive Communist expansion.

This in turn would be notification to the other non-Communist nations of Southeast Asia they could no longer expect American help against communism. The inevitable result: All Southeast Asia would fall to communism.

Selfish U.S. Motive

Underlying all this is a basic, selfish American motive: Unless the United States tries to stop Communist expansion while it can, communism will be left free to gobble up every nation in sight until in the end the United States has neither friends nor allies and is practically surrounded and helpless.

Month after month North Vietnam said that if the United States stopped the bombing and pulled its forces out of Vietnam, peace talks could start. For the United States this was too vague, too indefinite. It urged North Vietnam to be more positive and specific.

Finally, at the end of 1967, the North said peace talks "will" start if the United States stops the bombing and ceases all "aggression" against the North. President Johnson still wanted to know whether this meant peace talks would start promptly, once the bombing ended.

The North, in its latest word over the weekend, called this a "trick." That's where the two sides stand after more than three years of jabbering.

LSD Causes Brain Damage, Study Reveals

By JEROME WATSON
Chicago Sun-Times Special

CHICAGO, Jan., 20 — A study of LSD users has turned up "pretty solid evidence" that the psychedelic drug can damage the brain, a Northwestern University professor reports.

Dr. Howard D. Kurland, Assistant Professor of Neurology and Psychiatry and Chief of the Psychiatric Service at the Veterans Administration Hospital said yesterday brainwave studies of San Francisco Hippies showed an "increase of ambulance" of electrical activity.

He said the studies, which he conducted last year in association with Dr. Charles Yeager of the Langley Porter Neuro-Psychiatric Institute in San Francisco, led to two basic conclusions:

That the drug reduces the user's ability to respond to outside stimuli — in other words, his environment. This means, Kurland said, that the increased electrical activity in the user's brain blocks his perception of some things happening around him.

Kurland said the study involved 20 Hippies of both sexes between the ages of 15 and 28 who had taken LSD from 15 to 400 times.

He said their brainwaves were compared with — and found to differ markedly from—the brainwaves of 25 normal persons and 63 navy psychiatric patients.

He said the study did not determine how much LSD would be necessary to cause the apparent brain damage.

Kurland said the Hippie brainwave, or electro-encephalograph, study is part of a larger investigation which he, Yeager and other colleagues have been conducting for six years.

This study, he said, has provided "some indications, very preliminary," that it may be possible to diagnose various psychiatric disorders by use of computer-analyzed electro-encephalographs.

Realistic Riot Curbs Are Proposed by Commission

By BRUCE BIOSSAT
NEA Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON (NEA) — Contrary to some published reports, the President's commission on civil disorders is not likely to be bound by ordinary budgetary - political limits when, around March 1, it drums out an expected list of hard-nosed recommendations.

This does not mean these proposals will carry some massive overall price tag, though rough cost estimates may be attached to certain major items.

It does mean that the commission, currently engaged in composing its recommendations, is not going to shrink from saying flat out what it thinks needs to be done—regardless of ultimate cost, regardless of the fiscal realities of 1968 or 1969.

There is no convincing evidence that President Johnson has tried so far to soft-pedal the commission's efforts and keep their coming recommendations within tight fiscal confines.

The bipartisan make-up of the group and the presence on if of such tough-minded members as Mayor John Lindsay of New York and Sen. Fred Harris of Oklahoma are considered good insurance that the commission will produce a report free of presidential pressure.

In this regard, one of the surprises on the commission has been Atlanta Police Chief Herbert T. Jenkins. He is seen by some members as thoughtful, pungent, independent-minded and quite without automatic pro-police bias in critical discussions of disorder.

Already in near-final shape are the commission report's first two major sections — one an account of what has happened in the cities, the other the "why" of it.

A member privately describes these sections as sharp, dramatic, sure to hit the American public between the eyes. He expects the recommendations section to match these, and adds:

"There has never been a commission report like it."

The commission gave up the idea of putting out an "interim" report and then a final version. Its March 1 deadline for its single smash document is being pressed for in full awareness that a tardy report could come too late to have any hoped-for dampening effect on possible racial outbreaks in mid-1968.

Very possibly, too, the commission's recommendations will not be labeled "long-range" and "short-range."

Those members who think their work will be useless if they do not have almost a shock impact believe vital forces may be dissipated if they brand their sweeping objectives "long-range."

Their hope, therefore, is that current deliberations will produce a series of nonsense proposals on jobs, housing, schools and the like which they can say should be fulfilled at the earliest conceivable moment.

On schools, they evidently have not yet found the dramatic key they want. In housing, a loud call for open occupancy seems almost certain. On jobs, they are faced now with finding something even more telling than the President's already announced program for training 500,000 hard-core unemployed (mostly Negroes) in three years with industry's co-operation and a first cost of $2.1 billion.

Whatever the big goals it sets in these and other fields, the prospect is, however, that the commision at the same time will list a host of more limited objectives which can be achieved quickly by either executive action or immediate new legislation.

These, presumably, would fall within presently realizable budget levels. But they would be offered not as palliatives just to ease explosive urban pressures. The aim would be to offer them as an "earnest of intent" to strike for the big objectives now rather than in some dimly forseen, frustratingly far-off future.

Positions Unchanged

By JAMES MARLOW
AP News Analyst

WASHINGTON (AP) — For three years and more it's been jabber - jabber - jabber, with nothing to show for it yet.

The one aim of the Viet Cong and the North Vietnamese is taking over South Vietnam. They have been stopped by the United States from doing it by force.

There are other possible ways: For example—a peace that let the Viet Cong become part of the South Vietnamese government.

Once they had their foot in the door then, by hook or crook, they might grab control. So far all their aims have been stopped.

Despite all the semantics about "could" and "would" and "will," this is the basic, unchanged position of both sides on how to start peace talks:

North Vietnam says the United States must stop bombing the Northland and also must get its forces out of Vietnam altogether.

The United States says it will stop the bombing but not unconditionally. Before it stops, it wants assurance peace talks will start promptly.

North Vietnam has refused to give such assurance, says the United States can't lay down conditions and declares everything the United States says is a "trick."

The reason this country won't stop the bombing until it gets the assurance it insists upon is this:

Bombing won't win the war; but it does damage the North; this keeps a lot of North Vietnamese, who otherwise could be directly involved in the war, busy repairing damage; the bombing does put a dent in the men and supplies the North is sending South and all this is a help to U.S. ground forces in the South.

To stop the bombing, without assurances peace talks could start right away, would let the North pile up men and supplies for its forces in the South and put U.S. ground forces at a great disadvantage.

Instead of haggling three years, it might seem that if both sides wanted peace, or only if one did, peace talks could be arranged fast.

It's not that simple. If North Vietnam yielded to American demands it would be an admission it wanted or needed peace.

If the United States knuckled under to North Vietnam — particularly if it withdrew its forces—it would be an admission it had lost the heart and interest it used to have in stopping aggressive Communist expansion.

This in turn would be notification to the other non-Communist nations of Southeast Asia they could no longer expect American help against communism. The inevitable result: All Southeast Asia would fall to communism.

Selfish U.S. Motive

Underlying all this is a basic, selfish American motive: Unless the United States tries to stop Communist expansion while it can, communism will be left free to gobble up every nation in sight until in the end the United States has neither friends nor allies and is practically surrounded and helpless.

Month after month North Vietnam said that if the United States stopped the bombing and pulled its forces out of Vietnam, peace talks could start. For the United States this was too vague, too indefinite. It urged North Vietnam to be more positive and specific.

Finally, at the end of 1967, the North said peace talks "will" start if the United States stops the bombing and ceases all "aggression" against the North. President Johnson still wanted to know whether this meant peace talks would start promptly, once the bombing ended.

The North, in its latest word over the weekend, called this a "trick." That's where the two sides stand after more than three years of jabbering.

LSD Causes Brain Damage, Study Reveals

By JEROME WATSON
Chicago Sun-Times Special

CHICAGO, Jan., 20 — A study of LSD users has turned up "pretty solid evidence" that the psychedelic drug can damage the brain, a Northwestern University professor reports.

Dr. Howard D. Kurland, Assistant Professor of Neurology and Psychiatry and Chief of the Psychiatric Service at the Veterans Administration Hospital said yesterday brainwave studies of San Francisco Hippies showed an "increase of ambulance" of electrical activity.

He said the studies, which he conducted last year in association with Dr. Charles Yeager of the Langley Porter Neuro-Psychiatric Institute in San Francisco, led to two basic conclusions:

That the drug reduces the user's ability to respond to outside stimuli — in other words, his environment. This means, Kurland said, that the increased electrical activity in the user's brain blocks his perception of some things happening around him.

Kurland said the study involved 20 Hippies of both sexes between the ages of 15 and 28 who had taken LSD from 15 to 400 times.

He said their brainwaves were compared with — and found to differ markedly from—the brainwaves of 25 normal persons and 63 navy psychiatric patients.

He said the study did not determine how much LSD would be necessary to cause the apparent brain damage.

Kurland said the Hippie brainwave, or electro-encephalograph, study is part of a larger investigation which he, Yeager and other colleagues have been conducting for six years.

This study, he said, has provided "some indications, very preliminary," that it may be possible to diagnose various psychiatric disorders by use of computer-analyzed electro-encephalographs.

11:45 p.m. EST, Monday, wounding four crewmen—one critically—according to her radioed reports.

The Pueblo was the first U.S. ship captured since the Civil War—when Confederates captured the Union's Harriet Lane—and a Pentagon spokesmen said "she did not fire a shot."

Japan's Kyodo News Service quoted North Korea as saying the Communists "killed or wounded" several Pueblo crewmen when the North Koreans "returned" fire from the "intruding" U.S. vessel. Noting its earlier denial that the Pueblo fired any shots, the Pentagon said it had no knowledge of any fatalities.

But the Pentagon did not come to grips with a number of other questions presented by newsmen which had significant bearing on the situation:

—Why didn't the Pueblo, under the command of Cmdr. L. M. Bucher of Jefferson City, Mo., resist the takeover? She was armed with three 50-caliber machine guns.

—Why did the Pueblo wait until the North Koreans were boarding before asking for help? The Pentagon said this request was radioed at 11:45 p.m. and "time and distance factors made it impossible to respond to a call that was made when the ship was being boarded."

—Assuming Pueblo didn't seek aid, why didn't higher authorities perceive a serious situation and scramble some of the supersonic F4 Phantoms from Osan or Kunsan, South Korea, when the ship reported being accosted by the first of four North Korean patrol boats at 10 p.m.? The Pueblo reported at that time she was warned by the Communists to "heave to or I will open fire on you."

—Cmdr. Bucher, 38, in charge of his first ship, "did not request instructions" even after the four boats and two North Korean MIGs surrounded him, according to the Pentagon. Why?

—And why didn't the Pentagon or the Pacific command in Hawaii offer the Pueblo any advice?

The initial report from Pueblo to Washington arrived "before midnight," the Pentagon said, adding that the precise time was secret.

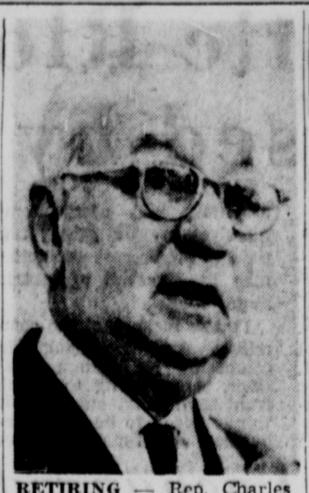

Bucher "made periodic reports to higher naval authorities" after she was accosted, officers said, but the Pentagon did not identify thse officials.

Naval Operations Head Defends Alexander Removal

WASHINGTON (AP) — The chief of naval operations says Capt. Richard G. Alexander's actions on behalf of an officer stripped of command made it clear Alexander himself wasn't "qualified to command a ship in the Navy."

Adm. Thomas H. Moorer said of Alexander: "I did not have confidence in his judgment and, therefore, did not consider him qualified to command a ship in the Navy."

Alexander had been named to command the reactivated battleship New Jersey but was relieved and reassigned to a desk job after publicly supporting the cause of Lt. Cmdr. Marcus A. Arnheiter.

Arnheiter was captain of a radar picket ship patrolling the waters off Vietnam when he was relieved of command following complaints from junior officers about the way he maintained discipline. The Navy said he showed "gross lack of judgment and inability to command and lead people."

11:45 p.m. EST, Monday, wounding four crewmen—one critically—according to her radioed reports.

The Pueblo was the first U.S. ship captured since the Civil War—when Confederates captured the Union's Harriet Lane—and a Pentagon spokesmen said "she did not fire a shot."

Japan's Kyodo News Service quoted North Korea as saying the Communists "killed or wounded" several Pueblo crewmen when the North Koreans "returned" fire from the "intruding" U.S. vessel. Noting its earlier denial that the Pueblo fired any shots, the Pentagon said it had no knowledge of any fatalities.

But the Pentagon did not come to grips with a number of other questions presented by newsmen which had significant bearing on the situation:

—Why didn't the Pueblo, under the command of Cmdr. L. M. Bucher of Jefferson City, Mo., resist the takeover? She was armed with three 50-caliber machine guns.

—Why did the Pueblo wait until the North Koreans were boarding before asking for help? The Pentagon said this request was radioed at 11:45 p.m. and "time and distance factors made it impossible to respond to a call that was made when the ship was being boarded."

—Assuming Pueblo didn't seek aid, why didn't higher authorities perceive a serious situation and scramble some of the supersonic F4 Phantoms from Osan or Kunsan, South Korea, when the ship reported being accosted by the first of four North Korean patrol boats at 10 p.m.? The Pueblo reported at that time she was warned by the Communists to "heave to or I will open fire on you."

—Cmdr. Bucher, 38, in charge of his first ship, "did not request instructions" even after the four boats and two North Korean MIGs surrounded him, according to the Pentagon. Why?

—And why didn't the Pentagon or the Pacific command in Hawaii offer the Pueblo any advice?

The initial report from Pueblo to Washington arrived "before midnight," the Pentagon said, adding that the precise time was secret.

Bucher "made periodic reports to higher naval authorities" after she was accosted, officers said, but the Pentagon did not identify thse officials.

Naval Operations Head Defends Alexander Removal

WASHINGTON (AP) — The chief of naval operations says Capt. Richard G. Alexander's actions on behalf of an officer stripped of command made it clear Alexander himself wasn't "qualified to command a ship in the Navy."

Adm. Thomas H. Moorer said of Alexander: "I did not have confidence in his judgment and, therefore, did not consider him qualified to command a ship in the Navy."

Alexander had been named to command the reactivated battleship New Jersey but was relieved and reassigned to a desk job after publicly supporting the cause of Lt. Cmdr. Marcus A. Arnheiter.

Arnheiter was captain of a radar picket ship patrolling the waters off Vietnam when he was relieved of command following complaints from junior officers about the way he maintained discipline. The Navy said he showed "gross lack of judgment and inability to command and lead people."

File Three Resolutions

Among three resolutions filed in the County Legislative hopper for presentation at the next meeting Thursday, Feb. 8 is one which provides for preservation of legislative enactments, and two others would establish a uniform property control system and implementation.

A resolution filed by Melvin Mones, R-Kingston would provide for the preservation of legislative resolutions which would be consecutively numbered including the year and all those adopted would be certified. It further provides for authorization of making photostatic copies and placement in a bound volume similar to deeds in the county clerk's office.

A resolution offered by Clarence Raichle, R-Kingston would establish a uniform property control system to provide a complete record of all equipment, fixtures and furnishings owned by the county.

It would control disposal of any usable equipment discarded by any one department and require notification of the county auditor who will determine if any other department has a need of such equipment. If no other county department has use for such discarded equipment it may be disposed of pursuant to law.

An accompanying resolution by Legislator Raichle would inventory all county property and use a standard marking system to identify the property as county owned.

The county auditor would be authorized to issue a directive to all county departments to file an inventory of all county properties in their departments.

Real Estate Group

MLS Marks Anniversary

Members of the Multiple Listing Service of Ulster County, Inc., this week are observing the anniversary of the organization which was founded four years ago.

The MLS at present has a membership of 34 members, all realtors and members of the Ulster County Board of Realtors who are state licensed real estate brokers. Approximately 200 salesmen work out of the offices of the MLS members covering Ulster and neighboring communities.

Mary Scafidi President

Installed as officers of MLS for 1968 were: Mary G. Scafidi, chairman; Kenneth E. Hyatt, vice-chairman; Helen Williams, secretary; Bertha Gally, treasurer and Robert Canavan and James D. Devine, directors.

A spokesman for the MLS organization reported that in the first three years the total value of real estate sold by members was $6,644,045. "This past year we bettered our most hopeful expectations as MLS sold properties valued at $3,778,705," the spokesman said. The total real estate sales for the last four years was upwards of $10.4 million.

Multiple listing in one form or another dates back into the last century. The first real estate boards were established as Real Estate Exchanges. In the 1920's, multiple listing had become widely accepted and records show that by the mid-decade at least 257 local boards included multiple listing as an activity. Many of the boards survived the depression of the 1930's with multiple listing activities intact.

The expansion of this function continued through the 1940's and 1950's with a total of more than 500 local boards being recorded in 1958 as conducting multiple listing as an activity. A survey completed late 1966 indicated that this figure had reached 609.

An MLS officer explained that the purpose of multiple listing is to provide a means whereby realtors may better serve the public through cooperation. Through the facility of multiple listing, information concerning individual listings can be made known to all realtors who participate in the activity.

In boards with few members the actual operation of the method can be very simple. Each realtor can duplicate enough copies of the information concerning his listing to distribute to all other participants. However, when many realtors are involved, the distribution of information becomes more burdensome and may require elaborate rules of procedure and efficient central office management to expedite the service.

"Regardless of the method, however, the basis of the multiple listing activity is the creation of a facility whereby realtors may cooperate most effectively in the exchange of information about their listings and thereby give maximum service to the buying and selling public," a spokesman said.

First Lieutenant Abbott will remain at Mather for specialized training as an electronics warfare officer before reporting to his first permanent unit for flying duty.

The lieutenant, a 1961 graduate of Saugerties Central High School, received his BA degree in 1965 from Allegheny College, Meadville, Pa., and was commissioned there upon completion of the Air Force Reserve Officers Training Corps program. He is a member of Phi Kappa Psi.

He will report for eight weeks of basic training at the Coast Guard Recruit Training Center in Cape May, N. J. During basic training the new recruit will become familiar with the Coast Guard's mission and learn his new responsibilities.

Reardon Graduates

Naval Reserve Ensign William R. Reardon Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. William R. Reardon of 76 Sharon Lane, Kingston, was graduated from the U. S. Naval Officer Candidate School at the U. S. Naval Base, Newport, R. I.

He was one of 487 officers from colleges and universities across the nation who attended the 16 weeks of intensive training and became proficient in the naval sciences.

THEODORE SMITH JR.

PETER KRAUS

Peter Martin Kraus, son of Peter Kraus of New Paltz and Theodore Smith Jr., son of Mrs. Marie Smith of New Paltz, enlisted in the U.S. Army in December, 1967.

According to SFC Edward Keene, the local Army Recruiter, the young men enlisted under the Buddy Program and are taking basic training together. After completion of basic training they have reservations in the U.S. Army Machinist School where they will receive 15 weeks of machine shop training.

Before enlisting both young men graduated from New Paltz High School. Pete worked with his father at their machine shop in New Paltz and Theodore attended Dutchess Community College.

Decker Flies Against North

U. S. Air Force Lieutenant Colonel William Decker, son of Mrs. Arthur Decker of Kerhonkson, recently took part in a very successful mission which struck Kep airfield, one of North Vietnam's key MIG bases, located 50 miles northeast of Hanoi.

Col. Decker and fellow F-105 Thunderchief pilots rolled in over the airfield and, despite heavy flak, delivered their bombs directly on target. Direct hits on the runways and taxiways rendered substantial damage to the airfield.

"I'm pretty sure that we also put an 85mm anti-aircraft site out of commission," Colonel Decker commented following the strike.

Col. Decker is a member of the 469th Tactical Fighter Squadron based at Korat Royal Thai AFB, Thailand.

He is a veteran of World War II and the Korean War.

A graduate of Kerhonkson High School, the colonel attended Florida State University. He was commissioned in 1943 upon completion of Officers Candidate School.

File Three Resolutions

Among three resolutions filed in the County Legislative hopper for presentation at the next meeting Thursday, Feb. 8 is one which provides for preservation of legislative enactments, and two others would establish a uniform property control system and implementation.

A resolution filed by Melvin Mones, R-Kingston would provide for the preservation of legislative resolutions which would be consecutively numbered including the year and all those adopted would be certified. It further provides for authorization of making photostatic copies and placement in a bound volume similar to deeds in the county clerk's office.

A resolution offered by Clarence Raichle, R-Kingston would establish a uniform property control system to provide a complete record of all equipment, fixtures and furnishings owned by the county.

It would control disposal of any usable equipment discarded by any one department and require notification of the county auditor who will determine if any other department has a need of such equipment. If no other county department has use for such discarded equipment it may be disposed of pursuant to law.

An accompanying resolution by Legislator Raichle would inventory all county property and use a standard marking system to identify the property as county owned.

The county auditor would be authorized to issue a directive to all county departments to file an inventory of all county properties in their departments.

Real Estate Group

MLS Marks Anniversary

Members of the Multiple Listing Service of Ulster County, Inc., this week are observing the anniversary of the organization which was founded four years ago.

The MLS at present has a membership of 34 members, all realtors and members of the Ulster County Board of Realtors who are state licensed real estate brokers. Approximately 200 salesmen work out of the offices of the MLS members covering Ulster and neighboring communities.

Mary Scafidi President

Installed as officers of MLS for 1968 were: Mary G. Scafidi, chairman; Kenneth E. Hyatt, vice-chairman; Helen Williams, secretary; Bertha Gally, treasurer and Robert Canavan and James D. Devine, directors.

A spokesman for the MLS organization reported that in the first three years the total value of real estate sold by members was $6,644,045. "This past year we bettered our most hopeful expectations as MLS sold properties valued at $3,778,705," the spokesman said. The total real estate sales for the last four years was upwards of $10.4 million.

Multiple listing in one form or another dates back into the last century. The first real estate boards were established as Real Estate Exchanges. In the 1920's, multiple listing had become widely accepted and records show that by the mid-decade at least 257 local boards included multiple listing as an activity. Many of the boards survived the depression of the 1930's with multiple listing activities intact.

The expansion of this function continued through the 1940's and 1950's with a total of more than 500 local boards being recorded in 1958 as conducting multiple listing as an activity. A survey completed late 1966 indicated that this figure had reached 609.

An MLS officer explained that the purpose of multiple listing is to provide a means whereby realtors may better serve the public through cooperation. Through the facility of multiple listing, information concerning individual listings can be made known to all realtors who participate in the activity.

In boards with few members the actual operation of the method can be very simple. Each realtor can duplicate enough copies of the information concerning his listing to distribute to all other participants. However, when many realtors are involved, the distribution of information becomes more burdensome and may require elaborate rules of procedure and efficient central office management to expedite the service.

"Regardless of the method, however, the basis of the multiple listing activity is the creation of a facility whereby realtors may cooperate most effectively in the exchange of information about their listings and thereby give maximum service to the buying and selling public," a spokesman said.

Miss Hope Judging on Friday

Three more local entrants were announced today for the Miss Hope—1968—Ulster County title.

The three young ladies — all junior students of the Kingston Hospital School of Nursing—are Carol Blaine of Newburgh, Sharon Fatum of Kingston and Barbara Wandzilak of Melrose.

Other contestants, representing hope for cancer patients and hope for the discovery of a cure for cancer, were announced on Monday. They included Linda Fuller and Nancy Davis of Saugerties and Janet Burger of Kingston.

Miss Hope of Ulster County will be selected during judging at luncheon scheduled Friday, Jan. 26, at the Kirkland Hotel.

Tony Bell, chairman of the local contest and a member of the public information committee of the Ulster County Unit, American Cancer Society, reports that Friday's local winner will represent the county at the statewide competition in Buffalo on March 21 at which time the New York State Division, ACS, will hold its cancer crusade kickoff with 54 counties to be represented.

Friday's winners will be judged on personality, intelligence and beauty and upon presentation of a three-minute talk on nursing and some phase of the cancer problem.

Today In History

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Today is Wednesday, Jan. 24, the 24th day of 1968. There are 342 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1848, James Marshall found a gold nugget at a sawmill he was building for John Sutter in California's Sierra Nevada. The California Gold Rush followed.

On this date:

In 1915, during World War I, the British defeated the Germans in a naval battle off Dogger Bank in the North Sea.

In 1945, Russian soldiers crossed the Oder River and landed on German soil for the first time in World War II.

In 1946, the U.S. Atomic Energy Commission was created.

In 1949, the U.S. Air Force began Operation Haylift to drop feed to millions of cattle and sheep stranded by snowstorms in the Great Plains and West.

Ten years ago — The Chinese Communists permitted three American mothers to visit their sons in prison but rejected appeals for the men's release.

Five years ago — France told Britain that nation could join the European Common Market when her economic evolution made her an acceptable partner.

'Beautify America'

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP) — Store owner Mickey Sherman said he wanted to answer billboards that show a picture of a shaggy-haired youth and advise: "Beautify America . . . get a haircut." So he erected a billboard that read: "Jesus wore long hair. . . . No brag, just fact." He said he got about 200 telephone calls from people praising him and 11 calls that were critical.

Litter in Spring

NEW YORK (AP) — Winter litter may be hidden temporarily by snow but it eventually springs back in full blooming ugliness.

Keep America Beautiful, the national antilitter organization, reminded that although a fresh snowfall makes litter invisible it will still be there when the snow melts in the spring.

KAB said U.S. communities spend untold millions of dollars each spring picking up trash that has carelessly been left in the snow. For highway litter alone the bill comes to $30 million.

Uptown Expansion

New London's Student Center Now in Progress

London's Youth Center, 31-35 North Front Street is expanding its selling area 1,700 feet into the former Endicott Johnson shoe store building and remodeling of the store front and new student center is now in progress.

The expanded area including three stories and basement is expected to be ready for the grand opening in mid-March. However, business is going on as usual in the youth center and junior bazaar.

London's has been at the North Front Street site for over 30 years and the firm has been doing business in Kingston for more than 40 years.

Oscar London, who operates the stores in Kingston and Saugerties with his sons, Stanley and Arthur, said the Uptown area needs revitalized stores to bring customers to the Uptown shopping area and a beautification program is sorely needed. Prior to moving to the North Front Street site London's was doing business for 10 years on John Street.

The elder London said the firm has been increasing sales every year and he said the outlook for the Uptown area was good.

The expanded area embraces 17 by 100 feet and will provide an increase of 1,700 square feet of new selling area. Part of the expansion project will be the installation of a sprinkler system throughout the entire store.

A new student line is being planned for the new selling area and Arthur Field, who has been with London's for 27 years will be in charge of the new floor.

The new facility will provide space to display the largest selection of student and children's items in this area. The firm deals in quality merchandise and handles all reputable lines, the elder London said.

The combined operation, which faces the intersection of Wall Street, when remodeling is completed, will be well ahead when urban renewal finally reaches the Uptown shopping area.

Nurse Advisory Council at UCCC

A Nursing Education Advisory Council has been formed at Ulster County Community College and conducted its initial meeting recently to help plan the college's two-year nursing program that will start in September.

The Council members include Sister Mary Charles, co-administrator of Benedictine Hospital; Miss Marion Crotty, director of nursing service and training at Hudson River State Hospital, Poughkeepsie; Mrs. Beverly Delano, coordinator of the practical nurse program for BOCES in Ulster County; Miss Rosemary Pelligrino, director of the School of Nursing at Kingston Hospital; Dr. Theodore Jackaway, a Kingston physician; Bernard Farrell, a counselor at Kingston High School; Dr. Robert Lonergan, a Kingston physician, and Dr. Harry Janssen, a New Paltz and Kingston physician.

Welcomed by Erbstein

At the organization meeting, the Council members were welcomed by Dr. George B. Erbstein, the college president; Dr. Irmgard Karle, the Dean of Faculty; and Mrs. Florence Irwin, chairman of the Department of Nursing Education at UCCC.

The Council members saw the film, Idea with a Future, which traces the early experimentation of the associate degree nursing program at colleges across the United States.

"Since the college nursing program, which will be activated in September, 1968 is a departure from the usual pattern of nursing education," Mrs. Irwin said, "this Council was organized to assist and advise in the development of a sound educational program for nursing."

Needs Identified

Some of the needs identified were interpretation of the program to community interest groups, orientation of hospital personnel, extension of college services through refresher courses and articulation between junior and senior colleges.

The Council members were appointed by the College's Board of Trustees.

Persons interested in applications for the nursing program may obtain them by writing the Director of Admissions at UCCC, Stone Ridge.

Strike Idles More Employes At GM Plant

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — The number of employes idled by a strike at General Motors Corp.'s Chevrolet foundry in Tonawanda continued to rise as company officials announced Tuesday that more workers are being sent home because of a parts shortage caused by the strike.

Approximately 800 workers were sent home from the Harrison Radiator Division in nearby Lockport late Tuesday. The remaining 5,200 workers at Harrison will also be affected this week if the dispute continues at the foundry, a company spokesman said.

About 600 workers at the Chevrolet forge plant, near the foundry in Tonawanda, will stop work at the end of the third shift today, which ends at 7 a.m. Thursday morning.

About 9,200 area employes have been idled since Local 1173 of the United Auto Workers struck the foundry last Friday when negotiators failed to work out a new contract. A total of 2,600 struck the foundry. Four thousand employes at Chevrolet's Tonawanda motor plant, and 2,600 at the Chevrolet gear and axle factory in Buffalo were idled after the third shift Tuesday, which ends at 7 a.m. today.

A UAW spokesman said that no significant progress has been made in bargaining talks Monday and Tuesday. The main issue of the foundry strike is the union's request for six-minute washup periods before lunch and at the end of work shifts. Company-paid clothing for some jobs and improved heating and ventilating are other issues.

Held for Jury

After preliminary examination Tuesday night before Ellenville Judge Ronald Elias, Ramon Rodriquez, 38, of that village, was held for action of the grand jury on a charge of first degree assault. Rodriquez was arrested Jan. 14 after he allegedly stabbed a friend, Alberta Smith of Ellenville, in the chest during an argument at Gene's Bar and Grill on Center Street. Shortly after his arrest Rodriquez told police he had taken rat poison, and authorities removed him to the Community Hospital where the stomach pump and other treatment relieved the man. The woman resides at Oak Ridge.

LBJ '68 Budget Meets Opposition

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson's budget hasn't even been formally presented to Congress but already it has bad marks from the committee his administration is trying hardest to win over.

Chairman Wilbur D. Mills of the House Ways and Means Committee told the administration spokesmen Tuesday they had better take a pencil to the spending side of the budget again if they hope to have his crucial support for a 10 per cent income tax surcharge.

The Arkansas Democrat offered a little consolation by congratulating Secretary of the Treasury Henry H. Fowler and his companions on what he called an improved job of establishing the inflationary dangers to the economy if a tax increase is not voted.

Johnson has said the budget will reach about $186 billion, with an $8 billion deficit—reaching $21 billion without the tax boost.

Mills, who twice before has put aside the tax bill pending more spending cuts, in effect, postponed further consideration of it until March. He adjourned the committee until Feb. 5, when it begins hearings and executive sessions on balance-of-payments matters expected to consume the rest of the month.

Budget Director Charles L. Schultze, who had pinned his hopes on a contention that the new budget—due to be submitted to Congress Monday—will show spending cuts of $2.5 billion to $3 billion, told newsmen afterward he wouldn't try to say just what additional reductions Mills may have in mind.

But he said the budget as prepared 'fully justifies the tax increase." The bulky estimates of spending and revenues, he said, are already locked up and ready for the printer.

At the very least, however, the committee action kills whatever slight chance there was for enactment of a tax bill by April 1, Johnson's latest target date.

That in itself throws the budget out of kilter, since its revenue estimates were based on three-fourths of a year's collections at the higher rates.

IBM Board Recommends Stock Split

Directors of International Business Machines Corporation have declared a regular quarterly dividende of $1.30 a share on the common stock, payable March 9, to holders of record Feb. 8. The former quarterly dividend rate was $1.10.

The board also voted to recommend to stockholders a stock split of 100 per cent.

Upon approval by stockholders at the annual meeting April 29, 1968, the split would be made effective by issuing an additional one share for each share held, as soon as possible after May 9, 1968, the proposed record date of the split.

There Was School, Hot Lunch, Too

The school menu makers didn't know it, and some parents didn't know it—the ones who read school calendars, didn't know it.

Yes, there was school today and, hot lunch too!

The menus and the calendar all said "no school today and tomorrow".

What they should have said was no school Thursday and Friday.

Mostly it was the case of a minor mixup leading to mass confusion but somehow the youngsters (who probably knew better all along) managed to get to school on time and today's attendance was considered average, school officials observed.

The initial error was made last year when the school calendars were printed. The menu makers copied calendars and the menus were broadcast.

But, claim the cafeteria officials, the error was caught a week ago and a memo to that effect was sent out to all concerned.

However, somehow that message didn't really come through clearly until this morning — midway between orange juice and toast.

Ah well, the kids aren't complaining. They had hamburgers and hot potato puffs today and, tomorrow and Friday they have NO SCHOOL!

Woman Accused

Accused of petit larceny — shoplifting — at Caldor's store Tuesday night, Dominique Bougredis, 25, of 2485 Maplewood 14, Montreal, Canada, was arested by Security Officer Herbert O'Brien. The woman was accused in connection with the the theft of a suede jacket valued at $34.97, which she allegedly was wearing under her coat when arrested. O'Brien arraigned the woman before Kingston Town Justice Robert Ferrigan, who imposed a $25 fine on a plea of guilty.

At last the authentic Jewish rye! Manischewitz.

So much richer in flavor, you can taste the difference.

It's made with the premium rye flour Jewish bakers call "cream rye." The very best. And we use more of it. More caraway seeds, too. So Manischewitz Authentic Jewish Rye has more aroma. More flavor.

And we take hours longer to make our sour dough. Then we bake each loaf individually on a hearth. And we bake it slowly. (It takes a long time to get our richer rye flavor.)

But there's one thing that Manischewitz doesn't have. Artificial preservatives. Our authentic Jewish rye bread just doesn't need them.

Manischewitz Authentic Jewish Rye. Now in your supermarket.

Four thousand employes at Chevrolet's Tonawanda motor plant, and 2,600 at the Chevrolet gear and axle factory in Buffalo were idled after the third shift Tuesday, which ends at 7 a.m. today.

A UAW spokesman said that no significant progress has been made in bargaining talks Monday and Tuesday. The main issue of the foundry strike is the union's request for six-minute washup periods before lunch and at the end of work shifts. Company-paid clothing for some jobs and improved heating and ventilating are other issues.

Held for Jury

After preliminary examination Tuesday night before Ellenville Judge Ronald Elias, Ramon Rodriquez, 38, of that village, was held for action of the grand jury on a charge of first degree assault. Rodriquez was arrested Jan. 14 after he allegedly stabbed a friend, Alberta Smith of Ellenville, in the chest during an argument at Gene's Bar and Grill on Center Street. Shortly after his arrest Rodriquez told police he had taken rat poison, and authorities removed him to the Community Hospital where the stomach pump and other treatment relieved the man. The woman resides at Oak Ridge.

LBJ '68 Budget Meets Opposition

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson's budget hasn't even been formally presented to Congress but already it has bad marks from the committee his administration is trying hardest to win over.

Chairman Wilbur D. Mills of the House Ways and Means Committee told the administration spokesmen Tuesday they had better take a pencil to the spending side of the budget again if they hope to have his crucial support for a 10 per cent income tax surcharge.

The Arkansas Democrat offered a little consolation by congratulating Secretary of the Treasury Henry H. Fowler and his companions on what he called an improved job of establishing the inflationary dangers to the economy if a tax increase is not voted.

Johnson has said the budget will reach about $186 billion, with an $8 billion deficit—reaching $21 billion without the tax boost.

Mills, who twice before has put aside the tax bill pending more spending cuts, in effect, postponed further consideration of it until March. He adjourned the committee until Feb. 5, when it begins hearings and executive sessions on balance-of-payments matters expected to consume the rest of the month.

Budget Director Charles L. Schultze, who had pinned his hopes on a contention that the new budget—due to be submitted to Congress Monday—will show spending cuts of $2.5 billion to $3 billion, told newsmen afterward he wouldn't try to say just what additional reductions Mills may have in mind.

But he said the budget as prepared 'fully justifies the tax increase." The bulky estimates of spending and revenues, he said, are already locked up and ready for the printer.

At the very least, however, the committee action kills whatever slight chance there was for enactment of a tax bill by April 1, Johnson's latest target date.

That in itself throws the budget out of kilter, since its revenue estimates were based on three-fourths of a year's collections at the higher rates.

IBM Board Recommends Stock Split

Directors of International Business Machines Corporation have declared a regular quarterly dividende of $1.30 a share on the common stock, payable March 9, to holders of record Feb. 8. The former quarterly dividend rate was $1.10.

The board also voted to recommend to stockholders a stock split of 100 per cent.

Upon approval by stockholders at the annual meeting April 29, 1968, the split would be made effective by issuing an additional one share for each share held, as soon as possible after May 9, 1968, the proposed record date of the split.

There Was School, Hot Lunch, Too

The school menu makers didn't know it, and some parents didn't know it—the ones who read school calendars, didn't know it.

Yes, there was school today and, hot lunch too!

The menus and the calendar all said "no school today and tomorrow".

What they should have said was no school Thursday and Friday.

Mostly it was the case of a minor mixup leading to mass confusion but somehow the youngsters (who probably knew better all along) managed to get to school on time and today's attendance was considered average, school officials observed.

The initial error was made last year when the school calendars were printed. The menu makers copied calendars and the menus were broadcast.

But, claim the cafeteria officials, the error was caught a week ago and a memo to that effect was sent out to all concerned.

However, somehow that message didn't really come through clearly until this morning — midway between orange juice and toast.

Ah well, the kids aren't complaining. They had hamburgers and hot potato puffs today and, tomorrow and Friday they have NO SCHOOL!

Woman Accused

Accused of petit larceny — shoplifting — at Caldor's store Tuesday night, Dominique Bougredis, 25, of 2485 Maplewood 14, Montreal, Canada, was arested by Security Officer Herbert O'Brien. The woman was accused in connection with the the theft of a suede jacket valued at $34.97, which she allegedly was wearing under her coat when arrested. O'Brien arraigned the woman before Kingston Town Justice Robert Ferrigan, who imposed a $25 fine on a plea of guilty.

List Programs For Teacher Workshop Day

Kingston City Schools Consolidated Teacher Workshop Day will be marked with special programs on Thursday.

The elementary teachers conference will start at 9 a. m. with a talk by James H. Lockhart of the New York State Education Department's Bureau of Inter-Cultural Relations in Albany. The theme of his talk will be American History in Living Color. Lockhart is a native of Kingston.

The program will continue through the day with panel discussions on important matters and talks by other speakers, in addition to conferences.

At the junior high school level, a conference will be held in the J. Watson Bailey Junior High School auditorium in the afternoon.

The Pupil Personnel Service Department under the direction of James E. Tobin, assistant superintendent for pupil personnel services will conduct a conference at the John F. Kennedy Elementary School.

At last the authentic Jewish rye! Manischewitz.

So much richer in flavor, you can taste the difference.

It's made with the premium rye flour Jewish bakers call "cream rye." The very best. And we use more of it. More caraway seeds, too. So Manischewitz Authentic Jewish Rye has more aroma. More flavor.

And we take hours longer to make our sour dough. Then we bake each loaf individually on a hearth. And we bake it slowly. (It takes a long time to get our richer rye flavor.)

But there's one thing that Manischewitz doesn't have. Artificial preservatives. Our authentic Jewish rye bread just doesn't need them.

Manischewitz Authentic Jewish Rye. Now in your supermarket.

Bank Official Telethon Office

Ulster County Savings Bank, 280 Wall Street, will serve as local headquarters for the Cerebral Palsy Telethon Jan. 27 and 28, held over WTEN-TV, Albany. Volunteers will be on hand for the full 19 hours of the event from 11 p.m. Saturday to 6 p.m. Sunday to answer telephones for donations, hand out pictures of the TV stars appearing on the telethon, and to receive monies collected for the Ulster County fishbowl.

Mrs. Martin Nilan, Telephone Center Chairman, noted that last year over $1,200 was collected by children in the neighborhoods during the telethon hours. Many of these children make this a yearly event, despite weather conditions which are often very wintry.

Volunteers scheduled include: 11 p.m.-2 a.m., Mrs. Murray Fletcher and Miss Elizabeth McCord; 2-4:30 a.m., Stephen Hyatt Sr., Mr. and Mrs. Charles Meiswinkle; 4:30-7 a.m., Martin Oberkirch Jr. and Henry Halterman; 7 a.m.-9 a.m., Mrs. Bernard Darling and Miss Kathleen Shurter; 9-11 a.m., the Mmes. Wilson Tinney, Roger Mabie, Stanley Janeczk, Chester McCord and Helen Scully; 11 a.m.-1 p.m., the Mmes. Fred Libbos, Joseph A. Smith, Joseph Blaha, Susan Kiernan, Viola Churchwell, Fred Kirk, Edward Wiltsie, Robert Beaumont; 1-3 p.m., the Mmes. Mario Naccarato, Daniel Russ, Ronald Sleight, Raymond McCourt and Ralph Carpino; 3-5 p.m., the Mmes. Kenneth Griffin, Joel Brink, Clifford Davis Jr., William Porter, Lewis Siller, and Stanley Jaborski; 5-6:30 p.m., the Mmes. William Keating, Darrel Myers, Irving Harris, Stanley Jaborski and Ray Anderson.

Others working will be Miss Mary Keresman, Misses Lucille and Jenny Corrado, Audrey Shultis, Donna Nilan; the Mmes. Carl Pitcock, Stephen Hyatt, Emy Funarld, Carl Pederson, Darne Freese, Collin Chisholm, Clifford Davis, Rudy Firmbach, Hilda Anderson, Marilyn Updegraff; Martin Nilan, Oscar Lawatsch and Mr. and Mrs. Walter Perret, Mr. and Mrs. Edward deGroff, Mr. and Mrs. William Hobbs, Mr. and Mrs. Edmond Frawley and Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Klippel.

United Cerebral Palsy, a Community Chest Agency, needs additional funds to make up the yearly budget. This telethon provides one means of raising them. The children treated at the Center come from throughout Ulster and Greene Counties and many are from outside the chest area.

New Paltz, Highland In High School Bowl

New Paltz High School is slated to meet Highland Central School Saturday on the second annual Hudson Valley High School Bowl in a battle of the scholars sponsored by radio station WGHQ.

Kingston High School and Red Hook Central School were the first and second week winners. This week's contest will be conducted from the George Washington School Auditorium in Kingston at 10 a.m. The program will be broadcast live.

Ulster Town $18,000 Plans Grant Okayed by State, to Washington

Assemblyman Kenneth L. Wilson announced today that he had just received word from Gov. Rockefeller that the Town of Ulster Urban Planning Grant amounting to $18,000 has been accepted by the State Office of Planning Coordination and forwarded to the Federal government for approval. Since last July, when the application for the grant was filed, Assemblyman Wilson and Supervisor Musialkiewicz, R-Ulster, worked cooperatively and diligently with Charles T. Lanigan, Director of the Office of Planning Coordination in bringing this grant to a reality.

Revise Development Plan

The Federal government will assume two-thirds of the cost ($12,000) and the state and local governments will share the remaining one-third. As of now it is learned that the town share will be one-sixth of the total cost of $18,000. Assemblyman Wilson said "this grant will cover the updating and revising a town development plan made in August, 1957, including an analysis of physical resources, population, economic characteristics and land use. Since 1960 the population of the Town of Ulster has increased by 20 per cent and it has more than doubled since 1950."

Supervisor Musialkiewicz further said "that the substantial growth in business and industrial activity and several new shopping centers have increased traffic and prompted a reappraisal of the town's land uses and circulation patterns, and the IBM plant opened in 1956 and has been expanding."

Will Take Traffic Counts

Local and regional trends over the past 10 years which will affect the development of the town will be analyzed and trends in growth and population characteristics in the remainder of Ulster County will be reviewed for their bearing on the Town of Ulster. Traffic counts will be made to identify major intersections which are congested or where accidents are most frequent. For major problem streets, the plan will recommend special traffic control devices as well as widening, realignment or alternate routes. "Further the plan will include recommendations for zoning standards and procedures and a suggested list of capital improvements over a six-year period," said Governor Rockefeller.

It is understood by the Assemblyman's office that this town grant is one of the first of its type recommended and forwarded to the Federal Agency of Housing and Urban Development.

GOP Replies to the 'State of the Union'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congressional Republicans charge that gradualism and vacillation by President Johnson have prolonged the Vietnam war. On the home front, the GOP says administration policies have failed to combat mounting crime and inflation.

In their answer to President Johnson's State of the Union message, the Republicans called for "military success" in the war based on "effective utilization" of U.S. air and sea power.

The GOP spokesmen also renewed calls for reductions in federal spending and a transfer of programs from the national government to states and localities.

The Republican reply, featuring nine House members and eight senators, was carried live Tuesday night on the CBS radio-television networks.

Republican governors, numbering 26 of the nation's 59, were not included in the presentation, which was introduced by former President Dwight D. Eisenhower and had Sen. George Murphy, R-Calif., as master of ceremonies.

An audience of Republican congressmen and senators in the auditorium of a Senate office building clapped enthusiastically before and after each speech, interrupting more than 50 times with applause.

Senate Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen, who has given firm backing to President Johnson's Vietnam policies in previous years, was absent because of illness. Sen. John G. Tower carried the GOP banner on the war issue.

The Texas Republican accused the Johnson administration of following what he termed "a self-defeating policy of gradualism" which he said "caused us to pull our punches; it prolonged the fighting; it cost American lives unnecessarily.

"This war could be over today if the Johnson Administration had acted with determination instead of with vacillation," he added.

Tower said Republicans stand for "military success in Vietnam that will enable the Vietnamese to rebuild a free nation," for "effective utilization of America's vast air and sea superiority" and for "quarantine of the enemy's supply lines so that he can no longer fight."

Sen. Peter H. Dominick, R-Colo., charged: "This administration has developed a strange new doctrine—that Soviet strategic equality is better than American supremacy."

Rep. Charlotte T. Reid, R-Ill., one of whose two sons left for Vietnam last week, said she believes that "not only all parents, but all thinking Americans, are as deeply distressed as I am by complacency, disunity and protest here at home."

House Republican Leader Gerald R. Ford cited President Johnson's figure of speech comparing the nation with a ship heading through troubled waters and said, "The ship of state is wallowing in a storm-tossed sea, drifting toward the rocks of domestic disaster beaten by the waves of worldwide fiscal crisis that threaten shipwreck."

"We need a captain who inspires his crew to heroic endeavor," Ford said, "a captain who learned his seamanship beyond the Potomac and Pedernales."

Ford said Americans have seen "raging violence, bloodshed destruction and death right on their own doorsteps" and Rep. Albert H. Quie, R-Minn., commented that "the cities are boiling with frustration."

Two Americans Released As Vietnam Prisoners

SAIGON (AP) — U.S. officials announced today that the Viet Cong had released two American servicemen who had been taken prisoner in South Vietnam.

A spokesman identified the two released captives as Marine Cpl. Jose Agosto Santos and Army Pfc. Luis Ortiz-Rivera. The spokesman said Agosto Santos had been held by the Viet Cong since May 14, 1967, and Ortiz-Rivera had been a captive since Dec. 21, 1966.

The spokesman said both men were released Tuesday near Tam Ky, on the coast 350 miles northeast of Saigon. He said they were taken to a hospital of the U.S. 1st Air Cavalry Division for treatment and will be evacuated shortly to the United States.

The spokesman said he did not have the ages or hometowns of the two men, nor could he give any details concerning the circumstances of their release.

It was the first known release of America prisoners since three U.S. servicemen were released by the Viet Cong through Cambodia last November.

The Viet Cong announced last week it had released 14 South Vietnamese officers on Jan. 8 in honor of the seventh anniversary of its political arm, the National Liberation Front.

Informed sources have reported the Saigon government will release 35 or 40 sick or wounded North Vietnamese prisoners, probably for Tet, the lunar new year Jan. 30.

376 Highway Deaths

CHICAGO (AP) — Final tabulations showed 376 persons lost their lives during the three-day New Year holiday weekend. The count of fatalities started at 6 p.m. local time Friday and ended at midnight Monday. The National Safety Council had predicted from 460 to 540 persons would be killed.

GOP Replies to the 'State of the Union'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congressional Republicans charge that gradualism and vacillation by President Johnson have prolonged the Vietnam war. On the home front, the GOP says administration policies have failed to combat mounting crime and inflation.

In their answer to President Johnson's State of the Union message, the Republicans called for "military success" in the war based on "effective utilization" of U.S. air and sea power.

The GOP spokesmen also renewed calls for reductions in federal spending and a transfer of programs from the national government to states and localities.

The Republican reply, featuring nine House members and eight senators, was carried live Tuesday night on the CBS radio-television networks.

Republican governors, numbering 26 of the nation's 50, were not included in the presentation, which was introduced by former President Dwight D. Eisenhower and had Sen. George Murphy, R-Calif., as master of ceremonies.

An audience of Republican congressmen and senators in the auditorium of a Senate office building clapped enthusiastically before and after each speech, interrupting more than 50 times with applause.

Senate Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen, who has given firm backing to President Johnson's Vietnam policies in previous years, was absent because of illness. Sen. John G. Tower carried the GOP banner on the war issue.

The Texas Republican accused the Johnson administration of following what he termed "a self-defeating policy of gradualism" which he said "caused us to pull our punches; it prolonged the fighting; it cost American lives unnecessarily.

"This war could be over today if the Johnson Administration had acted with determination instead of with vacillation," he added.

Tower said Republicans stand for "military success in Vietnam that will enable the Vietnamese to rebuild a free nation," for "effective utilization of America's vast air and sea superiority" and for "quarantine of the enemy's supply lines so that he can no longer fight."

Sen. Peter H. Dominick, R-Colo., charged: "This administration has developed a strange new doctrine—that Soviet strategic equality is better than American supremacy."

Rep. Charlotte T. Reid, R-Ill., one of whose two sons left for Vietnam last week, said she believes that "not only all parents, but all thinking Americans, are as deeply distressed as I am by complacency, disunity and protest here at home."

House Republican Leader Gerald R. Ford cited President Johnson's figure of speech comparing the nation with a ship heading through troubled waters and said, "The ship of state is wallowing in a storm-tossed sea, drifting toward the rocks of domestic disaster beaten by the waves of worldwide fiscal crisis that threaten shipwreck."

"We need a captain who inspires his crew to heroic endeavor," Ford said, "a captain who learned his seamanship beyond the Potomac and Pedernales."

Ford said Americans have seen "raging violence, bloodshed destruction and death right on their own doorsteps" and Rep. Albert H. Quie, R-Minn., commented that "the cities are boiling with frustration."

Two Americans Released As Vietnam Prisoners

SAIGON (AP) — U.S. officials announced today that the Viet Cong had released two American servicemen who had been taken prisoner in South Vietnam.

A spokesman identified the two released captives as Marine Cpl. Jose Agosto Santos and Army Pfc. Luis Ortiz-Rivera. The spokesman said Agosto Santos had been held by the Viet Cong since May 14, 1967, and Ortiz-Rivera had been a captive since Dec. 21, 1966.

The spokesman said both men were released Tuesday near Tam Ky, on the coast 350 miles northeast of Saigon. He said they were taken to a hospital of the U.S. 1st Air Cavalry Division for treatment and will be evacuated shortly to the United States.

The spokesman said he did not have the ages or hometowns of the two men, nor could he give any details concerning the circumstances of their release.

It was the first known release of America prisoners since three U.S. servicemen were released by the Viet Cong through Cambodia last November.

The Viet Cong announced last week it had released 14 South Vietnamese officers on Jan. 8 in honor of the seventh anniversary of its political arm, the National Liberation Front.

Informed sources have reported the Saigon government will release 35 or 40 sick or wounded North Vietnamese prisoners, probably for Tet, the lunar new year Jan. 30.

376 Highway Deaths

CHICAGO (AP) — Final tabulations showed 376 persons lost their lives during the three-day New Year holiday weekend. The count of fatalities started at 6 p.m. local time Friday and ended at midnight Monday. The National Safety Council had predicted from 460 to 540 persons would be killed.

Critical Times Seen For U. S. Advertising

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — The event at which Howard H. Bell assumes the presidency of the American Advertising Federation will be next week's 10th annual conference on advertising-government relations. This is significant.

Government today rates high in advertiser attention.

"This is a critical time for advertising," Bell said in an interview. "There is a massive consumer movement under way."

"I am not an apologist for what is wrong in advertising," he continued, "but an awful lot of undue legislation is being proposed that would restrict advertising."

Also a Lawyer

The 40,000 advertising people whom Bell will represent have always prided themselves on knowing where the pitch should be made. And so Bell will make his office in Washington and "commute" to the Madison Avenue office here.

That Bell is a lawyer also, and that "he knows how to work effectively with government people in a climate of mutual respect," as the federation puts it, indicates the concern with which the consumer movement is being treated.

Bell, an intense but pleasantly low-key individual, 41-year-old father of three, feels that government should not exploit the popular label of consumerism but concedes, "I think we'll see more and more attempts to restrain ads."

As do most leaders of industries, he believes strongly in a policy of self-regulation. He emphasizes continually the need for good taste, believing that most criticism is not about truth but "in the area of taste, the approach."

"If tasteless advertising becomes an outright and widespread abuse then it should not be defended," he said.

Seldom, however, are the issues clear cut. Advertising is a subtle area where "a certain amount of license is the price of freedom," Bell feels. "How do you control advertising without infringing on its creativity?" he asks.

No Enforcement Powers

The AAF has no enforcement powers, but instead believes it can use moral persuasion to enforce high standards through local businessmen, Better Business Bureaus and its members in 173 clubs, 700 companies, 25 other groups.

In executing his job, Bell feels he must strive toward these goals:

—Maintenance and preservation of the freedom of advertising and business.

—Development of programs that will enhance professionalism, mainly through self-regulation.

—Education in the role and function of advertising.

In the important role of dealing with government, Bell is confident. "How do you assess government people?" he was asked.

"They're very easy to work with. That's been one of the problems in the past, lack of communication. They're the most rational people. They have no horns."

"Nor pitchforks," an associate interjected.

"They're willing to learn," Bell said. "They're not as unreasonable as critics paint them."

AT CENTENNIAL — Principals at 100th anniversary celebration of First Baptist Church Sunday included (L) William McVey, song leader for the hymnsing program, who is the son of the Rev. and Mrs. William J. McVey, First Presbyterian Church; the Rev. James A. Braker, pastor of the celebrating church and Ashley Miller, accompanist. Upwards of 300 persons joined in open house celebration. Hungry Man

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — Antonio Riojas, 17, was all set to enjoy the hamburger and root beer he had ordered at a drive-in restaurant. He took one bite; then a waitress pulled out a pistol and shot him after accusing him of bullying her brother. But, Riojas was hungry—so hungry that he finished the hamburger before driving himself to the hospital. The waitress was charged with intent to murder.

Reelect Reynolds S-A Chairman

Thomas W. Reynolds Jr. was reelected to the chairmanship of the Advisory Board of the Salvation Army Monday evening at the annual meeting of that organization.

Serving with Reynolds on the Executive Committee will be William Blair, vice-president, Henry P. Eighmey, secretary, and George Antonietta, treasurer.

Elected to serve on the Advisory Board for three-year terms were Mrs. Edward DeWitt, Henry P. Eighmey, Edwin M. Ford, Edward Minasian, Mrs. Charlotte Peck, William Stopher, Mrs. Arthur Oudemool, and James Penrose.

The resignation of Oscar Lawatsch as a board member and treasurer was accepted regretfully. Lawatsch served the local Salvation Army for almost a quarter of a century.

Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Ford and William Stopher were cited by the Board for outstanding service during the recent Christmas distribution of clothing, toys, and food. Stopher pointed out that over 300 families had received needed items through the Salvation Army's Christmas program and those of other local organizations.

Administrator Dies

TROY, N.Y. (AP) — Dr. Arvie Eldred of Troy, president of the Board of Visitors of the State Training School for Girls at Hudson and a former school administrator, died Monday night at a hospital after a brief illness. He was 87.

Eldred was superintendent of Troy's schools from 1914 to 1930. He also served as president of the State Council of City and Village Superintendents and as executive secretary of the State Teachers Association.

Dies of Burns

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (AP) — George Mingue, 51, of Syracuse, died today in State University Hospital of burns suffered on Jan. 10, when his clothing caught fire while he was cooking over a hotplate at his home.

His address was 318 E. Fayette St.

Den Chiefs Conference Set Saturday

Saturday the Lutheran Church of the Redeemer at Wurts and Rogers Streets in Kingston will be the scene of the annual den chiefs conference conducted by the Rip Van Winkle Council, Boy Scouts of America. The conference will run from 9:00 a. m to 4:00 p. m., and will provide valuable training on the job of the den chief. Serving as co-chairmen of this year's conference are Robert C. Tremper, webelos leader with Pack 26 of Port Ewen, and Ronald Latz of Port Ewen, a member of the Onteora Trail district commissioner staff.

Den chiefs and adult leaders from packs from the Council territory (Ulster and Greene Counties) have been invited to participate in this worthwhile training and fun event. A den chief is a Boy Scout who works with one den of a neighboring cub pack, assisting the den mother with many phases of her program, particularly the outdoor activities. The conference on Saturday will provide the den chiefs with information and training in such areas as how to lead songs, dual contests, how to use and lead games and puzzles, tricks and stunts. There will also be a filmstrip presentation on the den chief.

At noon there will be a lunch break and program. Course participants are to bring their own lunch, and the conference will provide dessert and beverage. There will also be morning and afternoon breaks.

Assisting the chairman on this conference will be: Dr. Clement Angstrom, council training chairman; William Burgin, Onteora Trail district training chairman; Erwin Tate, Mohigan Trail district commissioner; Mrs. Norma Dapp, den leader coach with Pack 70 of Highland; Stewart Farley, cubmaster of Pack 10 in Lake Katrine and Roy Anderson, cubmaster of Pack 7 in Kingston. Council President Oliver Tweedy of Hurley has also been invited to participate.

Jungle Warfare

Army Lieutenant Shows Cool In Bruising Battle

By GEORGE McARTHUR

WAR ZONE C, Vietnam (AP) — American infantry units in combat are seldom up to strength and 2nd Lt. Hector Colon, a confident man with a jungle-grown red mustache, was not overly disturbed that his platoon roll was down to 32 men.

The rest of Bravo Company, after all, was with them. The day was almost over and it had gone well.

Stood Alone

The Vietnamese war, however, has its own unpredictable ways. Colon's little band had to stand alone when the blow fell. When helicopters finally plucked him from the jungle, Colon came out with 9 men standing, 7 dead and 16 wounded.

At 27, Colon is old for a second lieutenant. He came late to the Army when his college grades began to fall and the draft drew close. Now, he is looking forward to returning to Chicago, going back to college and picking up his job as a program director for youth groups at the Joseph Duncan YMCA.

He is also confidently looking forward to marrying his Chicago sweetheart on a rest leave in Hawaii next month.

These things, however, were blocked from his mind this hot and dusty afternoon in the jungles of War Zone C, hard by Cambodia.

The sweating company had been on a patrol that had gone not too badly. A helicopter had been shot down and a crewman died. Getting the rest of the crew out of the jungle had been troublesome. There had been fighting but the enemy had faded away. Choppers came in to pick up the company.

Exploding Mortars

They had lifted out all but Colon's platoon when it all began. The last four choppers were hovering when the Red mortars began to explode. The pilots pulled back their sticks and lifted away.

"Charlie (the Viet Cong) had been waiting," recalled Colon. "He knew there couldn't be many of us left on the ground and he thought he could take us."

With shells blasting the clearing and machine guns ripping the overhanging branches, Colon and his men dived into the treeline 20 yards away, hugging the slight depressions of the jungle floor.

The casualties started quickly, worst for the seven green men who had never before been in a firefight. Four of them died and three were wounded. When the platoon medic was killed, he fell over the bleeding body of the man he was bandaging.

Each survivor remembers it piecemeal. They recall the lieutenant's coolness and the old-soldier bravery of platoon Sgt. Richard Devore, the father of three kids back in Charlestown, Ind., who took over a machine gun and died there. They recall Pvt. Sidney Smithee of Peoria, Ill., who snaked out to set up a claymore mine, silencing a Viet Cong machine gun. He was later wounded.

The Vietnamese interpreter, Lt. Binh, somehow missed the earlier choppers and wound up fighting with the platoon. He was wounded and the Viet Cong tried to drag him away but Binh killed one with a hunting knife and made it back to the perimeter.

Sgt. Johnnie English of San Antonio, Texas, at 27 the platoon's other old-man, coolly called in jets and artillery, closer and closer.

A Classic Battle

That was the worm's eye view. Overhead in a helicopter was Lt. Col. John Henchman, a 39-year-old regular officer from Bremerton, Wash. He called Colon's battle a classic and put every man in for a decoration, the silver star for Colon.

Henchman, from his radio contacts with the ground, was putting jet strikes and napalm within 35 yards of the platoon, artillery even closer.

"Lt. Colon kept yelling to bring it in closer and I kept bringing it in closer," Henchman said.

High Repair Rates on Soviet TV Sets

MOSCOW (AP) — Soviet television sets have a staggeringly high repair rate. And repairmen are hard to find.

"I bought it, I turned it on, and it didn't work." This was the frequent fate of the buyer as described by Moskovsky Komsomolets, the newspaper of the Moscow Young Communist League.

Factories that make the sets blame faulty parts received from their suppliers. But the newspaper held the factories are equally to blame because of rushed, sloppy work.

The Soviet Union has about 25 million television sets. Production sharply increased recently and is now running about 5 million sets a year. Prices average 300 rubles—$333.

Figures cited by the paper showed 55 per cent of the Sputnik brand sets stopped working soon after they were taken home..

The second worst offender was the Volkhov set, at 50 per cent. Other brands, according to these statistics, also are trouble-prove.

Appliance dealers said customers try to guard against trouble by looking for the date of manufacture given in each set. They snap up those turned out early in the month, when work is being done normally, and avoid those from the last days, when workers rush to meet the output figure called for by the production plan.

Getting a defective set replaced is impossible, the paper said.

A.K. Kheryvimov, head of a repair shop, was quoted as saying he had 32 repairmen to handle 82,000 sets in his district. He said that, since a repairman can make only seven or eight calls a day, set owners have to suffer long waits.

The paper condemned the television set manufacturers for putting out defective products. It said: "This rotten hope of businessmen that anything will sell if there is a big demand should be done away with."

Jungle Warfare

Army Lieutenant Shows Cool In Bruising Battle

By GEORGE McARTHUR

WAR ZONE C, Vietnam (AP) — American infantry units in combat are seldom up to strength and 2nd Lt. Hector Colon, a confident man with a jungle-grown red mustache, was not overly disturbed that his platoon roll was down to 32 men.

The rest of Bravo Company, after all, was with them. The day was almost over and it had gone well.

Stood Alone

The Vietnamese war, however, has its own unpredictable ways. Colon's little band had to stand alone when the blow fell. When helicopters finally plucked him from the jungle, Colon came out with 9 men standing, 7 dead and 16 wounded.

At 27, Colon is old for a second lieutenant. He came late to the Army when his college grades began to fall and the draft drew close. Now, he is looking forward to returning to Chicago, going back to college and picking up his job as a program director for youth groups at the Joseph Duncan YMCA.

He is also confidently looking forward to marrying his Chicago sweetheart on a rest leave in Hawaii next month.

These things, however, were blocked from his mind this hot and dusty afternoon in the jungles of War Zone C, hard by Cambodia.

The sweating company had been on a patrol that had gone not too badly. A helicopter had been shot down and a crewman died. Getting the rest of the crew out of the jungle had been troublesome. There had been fighting but the enemy had faded away. Choppers came in to pick up the company.

Exploding Mortars

They had lifted out all but Colon's platoon when it all began. The last four choppers were hovering when the Red mortars began to explode. The pilots pulled back their sticks and lifted away.

"Charlie (the Viet Cong) had been waiting," recalled Colon. "He knew there couldn't be many of us left on the ground and he thought he could take us."

With shells blasting the clearing and machine guns ripping the overhanging branches, Colon and his men dived into the treeline 20 yards away, hugging the slight depressions of the jungle floor.

The casualties started quickly, worst for the seven green men who had never before been in a firefight. Four of them died and three were wounded. When the platoon medic was killed, he fell over the bleeding body of the man he was bandaging.

Each survivor remembers it piecemeal. They recall the lieutenant's coolness and the old-soldier bravery of platoon Sgt. Richard Devore, the father of three kids back in Charlestown, Ind., who took over a machine gun and died there. They recall Pvt. Sidney Smithee of Peoria, Ill., who snaked out to set up a claymore mine, silencing a Viet Cong machine gun. He was later wounded.

The Vietnamese interpreter, Lt. Binh, somehow missed the earlier choppers and wound up fighting with the platoon. He was wounded and the Viet Cong tried to drag him away but Binh killed one with a hunting knife and made it back to the perimeter.

Sgt. Johnnie English of San Antonio, Texas, at 27 the platoon's other old-man, cooly called in jets and artillery, closer and closer.

A Classic Battle

That was the worm's eye view. Overhead in a helicopter was Lt. Col. John Henchman, a 39-year-old regular officer from Bremerton, Wash. He called Colon's battle a classic and put every man in for a decoration, the silver star for Colon.

Henchman, from his radio contacts with the ground, was putting jet strikes and napalm within 35 yards of the platoon, artillery even closer.

"Lt. Colon kept yelling to bring it in closer and I kept bringing it in closer," Henchman said.

High Repair Rates on Soviet TV Sets

MOSCOW (AP) — Soviet television sets have a staggeringly high repair rate. And repairmen are hard to find.

"I bought it, I turned it on, and it didn't work." This was the frequent fate of the buyer as described by Moskovsky Komsomolets, the newspaper of the Moscow Young Communist League.

Factories that make the sets blame faulty parts received from their suppliers. But the newspaper held the factories are equally to blame because of rushed, sloppy work.

The Soviet Union has about 25 million television sets. Production sharply increased recently and is now running about 5 million sets a year. Prices average 300 rubles—$333.

Figures cited by the paper showed 55 per cent of the Sputnik brand sets stopped working soon after they were taken home..

The second worst offender was the Volkhov set, at 50 per cent. Other brands, according to these statistics, also are trouble-prove.

Appliance dealers said customers try to guard against trouble by looking for the date of manufacture given in each set. They snap up those turned out early in the month, when work is being done normally, and avoid those from the last days, when workers rush to meet the output figure called for by the production plan.

Getting a defective set replaced is impossible, the paper said.

A.K. Kheryvimov, head of a repair shop, was quoted as saying he had 32 repairmen to handle 82,000 sets in his district. He said that, since a repairman can make only seven or eight calls a day, set owners have to suffer long waits.

The paper condemned the television set manufacturers for putting out defective products. It said: "This rotten hope of businessmen that anything will sell if there is a big demand should be done away with."

by LYDIA BICKFORD

NEW YORK (AP) — American families interested in the unique are spending their holidays in a marble house on a remote Greek island, in an oast house in England, in a Roman-type villa on the island of Tortolla, British Virgin Islands, or in a cottage at the top of the volcanic island of Saba in the West Indies.

They're doing this kind of vacationing because they dislike hotels and also want a stable home base from which to sightsee. Co-operating with them is Miss Claire Packman, owner-operator of the At Home Abroad agency.

The oast house is a new one in her files. Formerly the house was used to prepare hops, but has now been renovated for American tenants.

In the exotic bracket, there is available at Cap Ferrat on the French Riviera an elegant water-front mansion, with private dock, and staffed by a chef and his wife, which rents for $10,000 a month. A chateau on an Austrian lake is in a similar price bracket.

For those interested in the offbeat, there is an imposing residence in Wales, with its own private lake, stocked with fish and grouse. In a unique arrangement for the agency, meals are included in the cost, which is $30 a day per person.

Rentals run from a Riviera villa at $10,000 a month to a modest practical villa at Torremolinos on the Spanish coast that is available off-season for $210 a month.

"Furniture in this house seems shoddy."

"House has a swimming pool but it's about the size of a goldfish bowl."

"Greek villa beautifully situated above the sea, but no electricity till next year."

France, says Miss Packman, is the most popular vacation spot because it is centrally located in Europe. There's lots of action and the weather is good all the time.

In Europe she also has listings in Austria, Italy, and Portugal and wishes she had some in Switzerland, where she says it's hard to find homes to rent.

With 1,200 properties listed, Miss Packman rents 250 to 300 a year—"renting my favorites," she says with a smile. She has many listings in the Caribbean and West Indies, and says she also does a lively summer business in Jamaica, Barbados, and Antigua.

The bulk of the agency's business is families who spend an average of one or two months in Europe, and two weeks in the West Indies.

Available rentals in the Caribbean are fully staffed, and the occupants are met at the airport with a car, the use of which is included in the rental. Nevertheless, a family holiday at a popular resort is cheaper in a rented home than in a hotel.

So popular is this type of holiday that wise travelers plan at least a year in advance, Miss Packman says, and it's mandatory to make arrangements before Christmas for the summer.

Miss Packman is aware of the sensitivities, even the eccentricities, of her clients. To one client-writer who noted a desire for privacy, she said apologetically, "I hope you won't mind. There's another cottage on the same beach."

Hints from Heloise

Dear Folks:

Once in a while we walk into a friend's home and find her doing something that makes our eyes pop.

This just happened to me!

My girl friend was washing something in an old nylon stocking that looked like a chicken with its neck wrung.

It was her hair switch!

I didn't even know she wore a switch or that they had to be washed. She told me that after being worn a number of times a switch will become oily just like your own hair.

Before washing the switch, she brushes it thoroughly and puts a rubber band around the top and the bottom of it. Next, holding the 'knot" in her hand, she stuffs it inside a nylon stocking and puts a rubber band on the outside of the stocking at each end. Then all she does is swish the hair piece in a basin of warm suds. When it is clean after two sudsings, she rinses it in vinegar water and hangs it out on her clothesline (still in the stocking) to partially dry!

Now, instead of pulling the switch back out—which would tangle it—she cuts off the toe of the stocking with her scissors, grabs the knot on the hair piece and pulls it out smoothly.

Isn't that tricky?

After her switch had completely dried and she had redressed it, we tried to figure out why a hair piece gets dirty. We decided that it was because the same brush was used for both her hair and the switch. The oil from your scalp will automatically be transferred by the brush to your switch.

So I suggest you all never use the same brush. If you do, be sure you wash and dry it before using on the hair piece.

About the easiest thing we figured out was to use a new vegetable brush and keep it set aside just for this one purpose. This way no oil will accumulate on those expensive strands of hair.

Heloise

* * *

Dear Heloise:

Sometimes we mothers-in-law are hard put to find any fault with our daughters-in-law, but one of mine gaves me cause for comment:

She's always moving the furniture around. Just yesterday my son stopped by to see me, holding his back. When I asked him what the trouble was, he said, "I sat down on the couch last night and it wasn't there!"

Dear Heloise:

When altering the hem of any garment that has an odd colored thread, I cut about a two-inch piece of plastic straw and wind the thread on the straw.

I keep the straws in the sewing cabinet on the thread holders and when I need the thread, the straw fits over the machine's spool holder.

by LYDIA BICKFORD

NEW YORK (AP) — American families interested in the unique are spending their holidays in a marble house on a remote Greek island, in an oast house in England, in a Roman-type villa on the island of Tortolla, British Virgin Islands, or in a cottage at the top of the volcanic island of Saba in the West Indies.

They're doing this kind of vacationing because they dislike hotels and also want a stable home base from which to sightsee. Co-operating with them is Miss Claire Packman, owner-operator of the At Home Abroad agency.

The oast house is a new one in her files. Formerly the house was used to prepare hops, but has now been renovated for American tenants.

In the exotic bracket, there is available at Cap Ferrat on the French Riviera an elegant water-front mansion, with private dock, and staffed by a chef and his wife, which rents for $10,000 a month. A chateau on an Austrian lake is in a similar price bracket.

For those interested in the offbeat, there is an imposing residence in Wales, with its own private lake, stocked with fish and grouse. In a unique arrangement for the agency, meals are included in the cost, which is $30 a day per person.

Rentals run from a Riviera villa at $10,000 a month to a modest practical villa at Torremolinos on the Spanish coast that is available off-season for $210 a month.

"Furniture in this house seems shoddy."

"Greek villa beautifully situated above the sea, but no electricity till next year."

France, says Miss Packman, is the most popular vacation spot because it is centrally located in Europe. There's lots of action and the weather is good all the time.

In Europe she also has listings in Austria, Italy, and Portugal and wishes she had some in Switzerland, where she says it's hard to find homes to rent.

With 1,200 properties listed, Miss Packman rents 250 to 300 a year—"renting my favorites," she says with a smile. She has many listings in the Caribbean and West Indies, and says she also does a lively summer business in Jamaica, Barbados, and Antigua.

The bulk of the agency's business is families who spend an average of one or two months in Europe, and two weeks in the West Indies.

Available rentals in the Caribbean are fully staffed, and the occupants are met at the airport with a car, the use of which is included in the rental. Nevertheless, a family holiday at a popular resort is cheaper in a rented home than in a hotel.

So popular is this type of holiday that wise travelers plan at least a year in advance, Miss Packman says, and it's mandatory to make arrangements before Christmas for the summer.

Miss Packman is aware of the sensitivities, even the eccentricities, of her clients. To one client-writer who noted a desire for privacy, she said apologetically, "I hope you won't mind. There's another cottage on the same beach."

Hints from Heloise

Dear Folks:

Once in a while we walk into a friend's home and find her doing something that makes our eyes pop.

This just happened to me!

My girl friend was washing something in an old nylon stocking that looked like a chicken with its neck wrung.

It was her hair switch!

I didn't even know she wore a switch or that they had to be washed. She told me that after being worn a number of times a switch will become oily just like your own hair.

Before washing the switch, she brushes it thoroughly and puts a rubber band around the top and the bottom of it. Next, holding the 'knot" in her hand, she stuffs it inside a nylon stocking and puts a rubber band on the outside of the stocking at each end. Then all she does is swish the hair piece in a basin of warm suds. When it is clean after two sudsings, she rinses it in vinegar water and hangs it out on her clothesline (still in the stocking) to partially dry!

Now, instead of pulling the switch back out—which would tangle it—she cuts off the toe of the stocking with her scissors, grabs the knot on the hair piece and pulls it out smoothly.

Isn't that tricky?

After her switch had completely dried and she had redressed it, we tried to figure out why a hair piece gets dirty. We decided that it was because the same brush was used for both her hair and the switch. The oil from your scalp will automatically be transferred by the brush to your switch.

So I suggest you all never use the same brush. If you do, be sure you wash and dry it before using on the hair piece.

About the easiest thing we figured out was to use a new vegetable brush and keep it set aside just for this one purpose. This way no oil will accumulate on those expensive strands of hair.

Coffee and Ideas Brewed at First Kaffeeklatsch; Started By Women

Next to a good-looking man, few things attract women more than a potful of steaming freshly-brewed, richly flavored coffee. This attraction between women and coffee is far from mere infatuation. It is a deep affection strengthened over a century ago when the German housewife created the kaffeeklatsch as her first timid step toward emancipation.

In our thoroughly feminized 20th century, it's hard to believe that right up to the late 1800's many European women were supposed to be seen and not heard. Housewives had been so busy tending the field, the farmhouse and the family that they hadn't had time for small talk, even if they had been encouraged.

As cities grew and commerce prospered, a new type of hausfrau emerged in Germany. This was the wife of the middle-class burgher, a woman who still had an hour or two of leisure after her daily chores. Now, the housewife had a chance to look beyond the window of her cottage to the world of ideas. And, naturally, she had something to say about everything to whomever would listen.

Her best listeners were other hausfrauen. Each day, she would look forward to joining a group of her friends for coffee and conversation. The talk was mainly about family situations —babies, cooking, marriage and such. But, every once in a while, someone would express an opinion about the state of the central courtyard or the condition of the city street. No doubt many civil improvements started with one housewife's gripe passed along to another housewife's husband.

Men were amazed and amused at this new feminine phenomenon. They jokingly called the ladies kaffeeschwesters, meaning both coffee-lover and scandalmonger. Coffee parties were tagged, once and for all, kaffeeklatsches.

Coffee, the mysterious, aromatic drink, obviously appealed to the romantic feminine soul as well as the palate. Though it was served mild and sweetened at kaffeeklatsches, ladies could consume as much as ten to twelve cups at a sitting. A cartoon of 1885 shows that coffee was valued as the number-one basic necessity over sugar-loaf, oil-butt, and pepper-sack.

Although most of the coffee imported into Germany during the 1800's was sipped by women, there were many male kaffeeschwesters too. Men usually drank coffee in the privacy of their own homes, whereas women enjoyed it as a vehicle for participation in public life. An American visitor to Germany in 1871 was so impressed with the amount of coffee consumed that he described it as "being taken like a prescribed dose about every third hour."

The kaffeeklatsch became so important to feminine society that mothers introduced it to daughters at an early age. One teenage kaffeeklatsch custom was the Kranzchen. A group of school girls would each take a flower as a nickname so that, when they met for socials, they symbolized a living wreath. The Kranzchen was held at a different flower girl's parlor each week. Refreshments always included steaming coffee with dollops of whipped cream.

Adult coffee parties at well-to-do homes were elaborate affairs. The 20 or 30 distinguished guests began arriving about four in the afternoon. They were ushered to the dining room where the table was spread with plates of sugar cakes, fruits, ices, whipped cream and, of course, potfuls of fragrant coffee.

Public co-ed coffee drinking was gradually accepted under the guise of the Konditorei. The Konditorei or confectioner's shop was the haven for the social-minded female. Here was a place where she could not only talk to her own kind, but she could bend the ear of an honest-to-goodness man. With a coffee cup on one hand and a pastry in the other, women commented on everything from Mendelssohn's music to new electric cars.

Since there were no cafes where respectable girls and boys could meet, the Konditorei was also a paradise for coffee-loving sweethearts. A rendezvous at a pastry cook's shop became accepted courting ritual. More pretentious confectioner's shops such as Kranzler's, Josty's and Stehely's in Berlin were patronized by ladies and gentlemen of the elite.

German men enjoyed drinking coffee as much as women did—in spite of the fact that it took them a while to think of it as something other than a feminine beverage. Even when men began to flock to public coffeehouses, they would have nothing whatever to do with coffee's preparation. One of the funniest cartoons of the day was the picture of a man grinding coffee.

The German housewife had to admit that her husband was correct in calling her coffee parties kaffeeklatsches, but her search for recognition was no joking matter. An early indication of the seriousness of the situation was the formation of Berlin's Lyceum Club for ladies toward the start of the 20th century.

Judging from the contributions women have made to society since their first assertions in a man's world, it is easy to see why the kaffeeklatsch holds a special place in the housewife's heart. No matter how engrossed a woman becomes in the selflessness of her role as wife and mother, she knows that her identity as a thinking, enlightened, intellectual being is only a coffee cup away.

AT LAST, in the mid-1800's, the wives of the middle-class German burghers had enough leisure time to enjoy a taste of social life and a cup of coffee. The kaffeeklatsch in this for-ladies-only cafe is illustrated in a 19th century woodcut by Adolf Oberlander.

THRIFTY GYPSY SOUP POT SUPPER—Yesterday's bird (roast chicken or turkey) makes today's Gypsy Soup Supper, with a hearty base of condensed split pea with ham soup, and a zing of onion and "Tabasco" sauce. Serve it with fresh French bread, crusty and hot from the oven.

Saved Leftovers Save the Budget

Some say the gypsies were the first to hunger for a whole-meal soup as it steamed over the open fire. What went into the big black pot? Whatever good fortune granted. When you sat on a rock to eat with the gypsies, you really enjoyed pot luck.

A gypsy soup you can make yourself is a pot-lucky soup today, and not just because its steaming fragrance makes the whole family hungry. It's the thrifty way to make a meal of whatever you have in the kitchen. Yesterday's chicken? Last night's roast? A can of tuna? with some good condensed soup for body and seasoning, you're set for a soup pot supper. And although food takes less out of the family budget than it did 20 years ago—18.1 per cent in 1967 vs. 26 per cent in 1947—thrift is a virtue still.

You need no crystal ball to tell you that the soups below will simmer their way to your family's favor. But don't be afraid to venture. There's a whole wide world of gypsy soups waiting to be discovered. All you need is a little witchery and whatever's on hand in the kitchen.

Doing the Right Thing

Matron of Honor Should Be of Same Generation

Dear Mrs. Post: I have been asked by my favorite niece to be her matron of honor. She is planning on having four bridesmaids. The girls are all in their early twenties. Is it appropriate for me, a middle-aged matron of 52, to be in the bridal party?—Bertha

Dear Bertha: No, no, no. It is not appropriate for a 52-year old woman to act as a matron of honor. The attendants should be reasonably close to the bride's age—certainly members of the same generation. As a favorite aunt, you should be seated at the table with the bride's parents, and otherwise treated as an honored guest. But as a member of the bridal party? Never!

Introducing Doctors at Informal Party

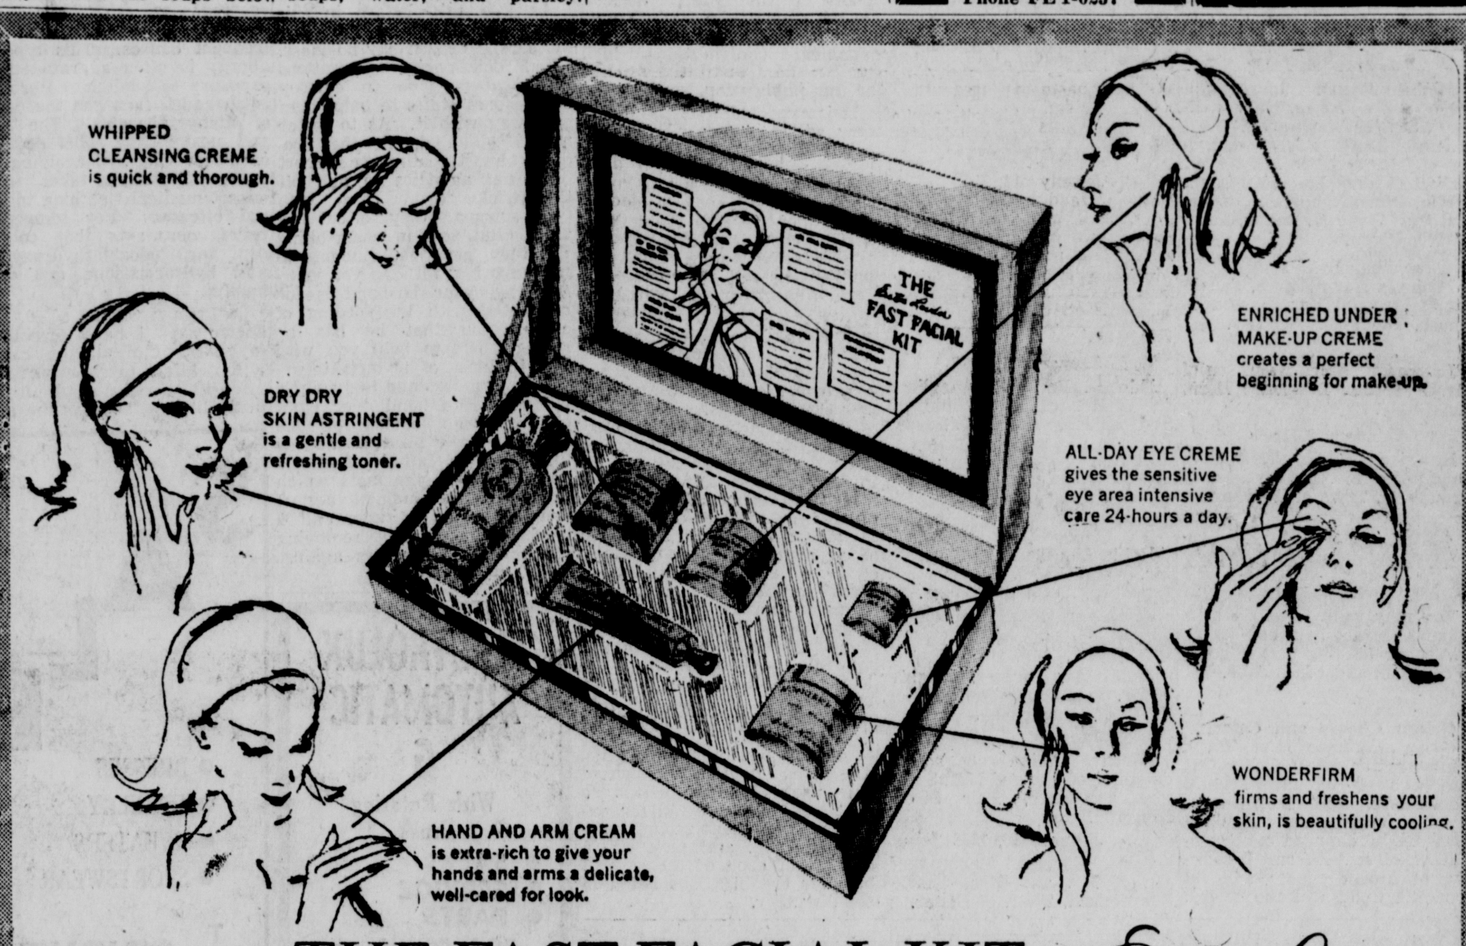

Dear Mrs. Post: Could you tell me the correct way to introduce people at a dinner party at home Most of my guests will be doctors. Do you say "Dr. and Mrs. Jones" or "Mary and John Jones?" If husband and wife are both doctors, how would I introduce them?—Mrs. Conway.

Dear Mrs. Conway: At a friendly social gathering at home you wouldn't introduce a couple "Dr. and Mrs" any more than you would use "Mr. and Mrs." At a business affair, or on a very formal occasion, you would use the titles. To indicate his profession you may always add a word or two —"Jim has just joined the staff at United Hospital," or "Bill is our pediatrician."

An American visitor to Germany in 1871 was so impressed with the amount of coffee consumed that he described it as "being taken like a prescribed dose about every third hour."

The kaffeeklatsch became so important to feminine society that mothers introduced it to daughters at an early age. One teenage kaffeeklatsch custom was the Kranzchen. A group of school girls would each take a flower as a nickname so that, when they met for socials, they symbolized a living wreath. The Kranzchen was held at a different flower girl's parlor each week. Refreshments always included steaming coffee with dollops of whipped cream.

Adult coffee parties at well-to-do homes were elaborate affairs. The 20 or 30 distinguished guests began arriving about four in the afternoon. They were ushered to the dining room where the table was spread with plates of sugar cakes, fruits, ices, whipped cream and, of course, potfuls of fragrant coffee.

Public co-ed coffee drinking was gradually accepted under the guise of the Konditorei. The Konditorei or confectioner's shop was the haven for the social-minded female. Here was a place where she could not only talk to her own kind, but she could bend the ear of an honest-to-goodness man. With a coffee cup on one hand and a pastry in the other, women commented on everything from Mendelssohn's music to new electric cars.

Since there were no cafes where respectable girls and boys could meet, the Konditorei was also a paradise for coffee-loving sweethearts. A rendezvous at a pastry cook's shop became accepted courting ritual. More pretentious confectioner's shops such as Kranzler's, Josty's and Stehely's in Berlin were patronized by ladies and gentlemen of the elite.

German men enjoyed drinking coffee as much as women did—in spite of the fact that it took them a while to think of it as something other than a feminine beverage. Even when men began to flock to public coffeehouses, they would have nothing whatever to do with coffee's preparation. One of the funniest cartoons of the day was the picture of a man grinding coffee.

The German housewife had to admit that her husband was correct in calling her coffee parties kaffeeklatsches, but her search for recognition was no joking matter. An early indication of the seriousness of the situation was the formation of Berlin's Lyceum Club for ladies toward the start of the 20th century.

Judging from the contributions women have made to society since their first assertions in a man's world, it is easy to see why the kaffeeklatsch holds a special place in the housewife's heart. No matter how engrossed a woman becomes in the selflessness of her role as wife and mother, she knows that her identity as a thinking, enlightened, intellectual being is only a coffee cup away.

AT LAST, in the mid-1800's, the wives of the middle-class German burghers had enough leisure time to enjoy a taste of social life and a cup of coffee. The kaffeeklatsch in this for-ladies-only cafe is illustrated in a 19th century woodcut by Adolf Oberlander.

THRIFTY GYPSY SOUP POT SUPPER—Yesterday's bird (roast chicken or turkey) makes today's Gypsy Soup Supper, with a hearty base of condensed split pea with ham soup, and a zing of onion and "Tabasco" sauce. Serve it with fresh French bread, crusty and hot from the oven.

Saved Leftovers Save the Budget

Some say the gypsies were the first to hunger for a whole-meal soup as it steamed over the open fire. What went into the big black pot? Whatever good fortune granted. When you sat on a rock to eat with the gypsies, you really enjoyed pot luck.

A gypsy soup you can make yourself is a pot-lucky soup today, and not just because its steaming fragrance makes the whole family hungry. It's the thrifty way to make a meal of whatever you have in the kitchen. Yesterday's chicken? Last night's roast? A can of tuna? with some good condensed soup for body and seasoning, you're set for a soup pot supper. And although food takes less out of the family budget than it did 20 years ago—18.1 per cent in 1967 vs. 26 per cent in 1947—thrift is a virtue still.

You need no crystal ball to tell you that the soups below will simmer their way to your family's favor. But don't be afraid to venture. There's a whole wide world of gypsy soups waiting to be discovered. All you need is a little witchery and whatever's on hand in the kitchen.

Gypsy Tuna Soup Kettle

¼ cup chopped onion
1 tablespoon butter or margarine
2 cans (10¾ ounces each) condensed Cheddar Cheese Soup
1½ soup cans water
1 can (7 ounces) tuna, drained and flaked
½ cup canned or fresh tomatoes, chopped
Dash pepper
Chopped black olives or green pepper

Cook onion in butter until tender. Stir in soup until smooth; gradually blend in water. Add tuna, tomatoes, and pepper. Heat; stir now and then. Garnish with olives. Makes 4 to 5 servings.

Pot-Lucky Beef Soup

½ cup diced cooked beef
2 tablespoons butter or margarine
1 can (10¾ ounces) condensed Noodles & Ground Beef Soup
½ cup sliced celery
1 can (10½ ounces) condensed Onion Soup
2 soup cans water
1 tablespoon chopped parsley

Brown beef and cook celery in butter until tender. Stir in soups, water, and parsley. Heat; stir now and then. Makes 4 to 6 servings.

Romany Chicken Pot Soup

¼ cup chopped onion
1 tablespoon butter or margarine
1 can (11¼ ounces) condensed Split Pea with Ham Soup
1 soup can water
½ cup diced cooked turkey or chicken
4 drops "Tabasco" sauce
Herb-seasoned stuffing mix

Cook onion in butter until tender. Stir in soup, water, turkey, and "Tabasco" sauce. Heat; stir now and then. Garnish with stuffing mix. Makes 2 to 3 servings.

Doing the Right Thing

Matron of Honor Should Be of Same Generation

Dear Mrs. Post: I have been asked by my favorite niece to be her matron of honor. She is planning on having four bridesmaids. The girls are all in their early twenties. Is it appropriate for me, a middle-aged matron of 52, to be in the bridal party?—Bertha

Dear Bertha: No, no, no. It is not appropriate for a 52-year old woman to act as a matron of honor. The attendants should be reasonably close to the bride's age—certainly members of the same generation. As a favorite aunt, you should be seated at the table with the bride's parents, and otherwise treated as an honored guest. But as a member of the bridal party? Never!

Introducing Doctors at Informal Party

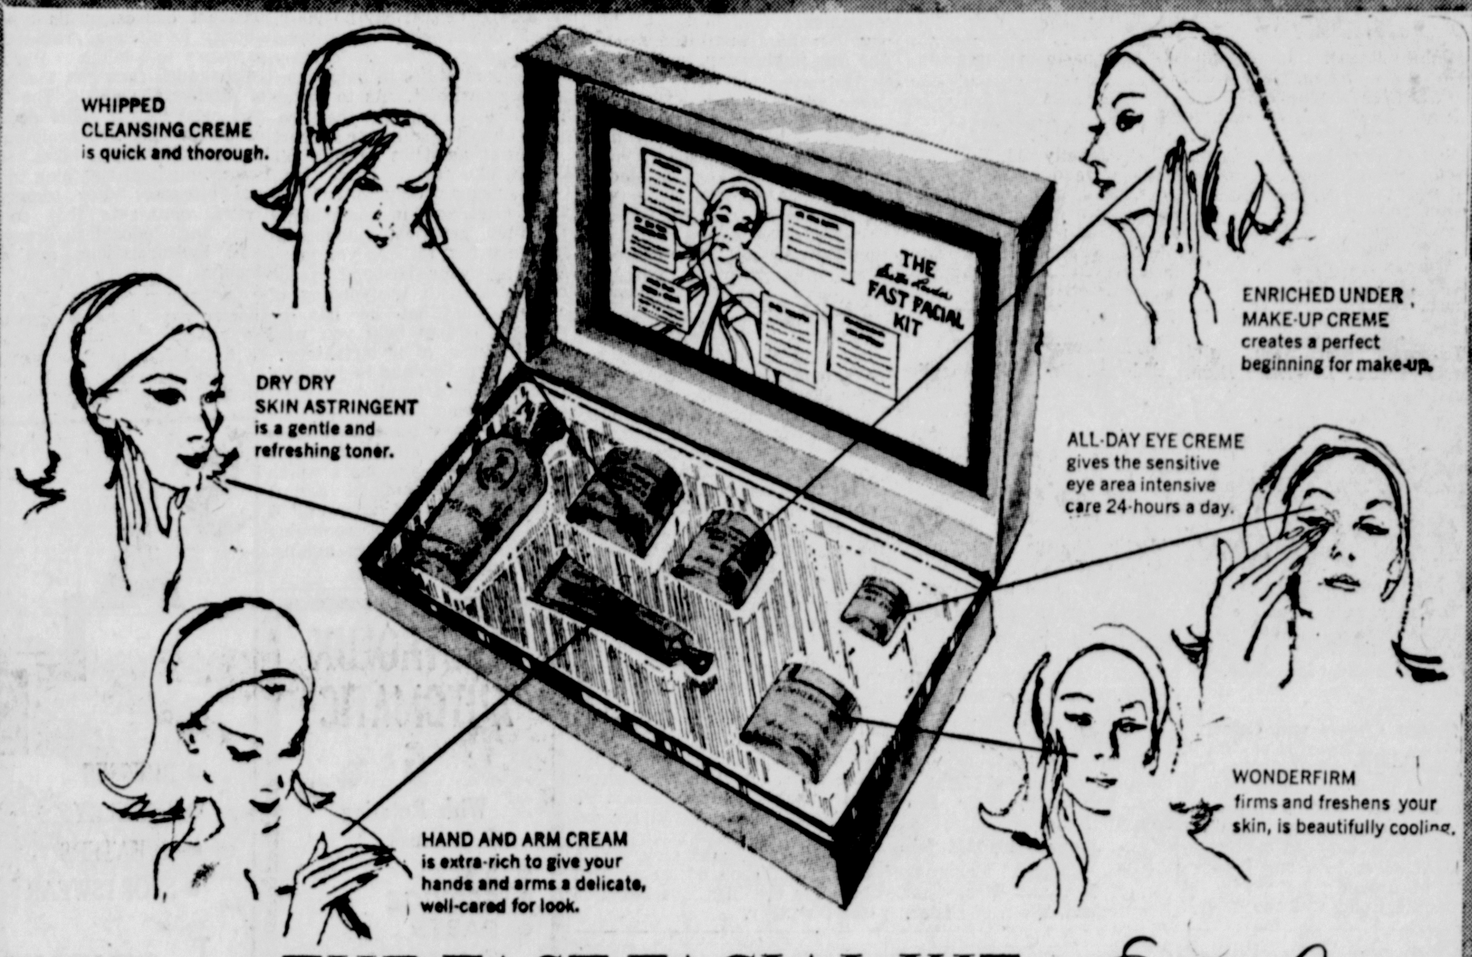

Dear Mrs. Post: Could you tell me the correct way to introduce people at a dinner party at home. Most of my guests will be doctors. Do you say "Dr. and Mrs. Jones" or "Mary and John Jones?" If husband and wife are both doctors, how would I introduce them?—Mrs. Conway.

Dear Mrs. Conway: At a friendly social gathering at home you wouldn't introduce a couple "Dr. and Mrs" any more than you would use "Mr. and Mrs." At a business affair, or on a very formal occasion, you would use the titles. To indicate his profession you may always add a word or two —"Jim has just joined the staff at United Hospital," or "Bill is our pediatrician."

UNDER THE INFLUENCE of Mexican dress, Parisian designer Jacques Esterel presented his spring-summer collection of 1968 on Jan. 22. Here four modeds display mini dresses of netted material as they doff their sombreros for the camera. These girls show how flowers, sleeves, pockets, printed aprons or other trappings, after the fancy of the wearer, may be hung from the basic garment. (UPI CABLEPHOTO).

Totie Fields Wants to Design Ample Samples for Buxom Ladies

If you haven't heard of the elegant amples . . . or some similar trade-name . . . you soon will, Comedienne Totie Fields is determined that buxom ladies should have a line of dresses designed especially for them.

"Instead of sizes 40, 42, and so on, I'm going to design a line of dresses and call them Big 7, Roomy 9 or even 007 or 009. It will have a great psychological effect on plump women," she says.

There are many women in the United States who need the lift that a good dress line would provide, she explains. She gets about 3,000 fan letters a week. The majority come from plump women, who've seen her on a Mike Douglas, Ed Sullivan or Merv Griffin show.

"They identify with me. They write—'You make me feel so good . . . I had such a complex about my weight . . . I really don't mind being fat when I watch you,' and so on."

". . . You wouldn't believe the gifts . . . look I'm getting goose pimples talking about it . . they send me handkerchiefs with hand tatting, medals, colognes . . notes that say 'We hope that your stay in our town will be pleasant,' and so on . . .

"I don't know whom I'll approach about doing the dress line, but I'm serious. It will be a designer who is willing to design interesting clothes for overweights, and the fashions will not be black. I don't know where they got the idea that big women look thinner in black. I look just as fat in black as I do in orange and red," she says.

"There is nothing more horrible than an over-age woman in a dress with a hemline at the middle of her thigh. The miniskirt is the greatest thing that ever happened to kids. Let's leave it there. The greatest thing that ever happened to plump women is the 'no waistline look'—nobody knows where it went."

Totie owns 150 pairs of shoes that have been bought to assuage her grief at times when she hasn't been able to find a dress that fits. She owns more than 100 pairs of gloves "just for carrying." She never removes the tie that binds the pair, she adds, pulling a pair out of her purse to illustrate the point.

Totie was born Sophie Feldman in Hartford, Conn. She met her husband, George Johnson in Boston. She had been stagestruck since she was a toddler and began entertaining groups with the help of her sisters and brothers. After her marriage, and birth of two daughters, her husband encouraged her to try the big time in New York. Ed Sullivan spotted her at the Copacabana, invited her to be on his show and that was the beginning. She is now in the $10,000-a-week bracket, she says.

The Mature Parent

By MURIEL LAWRENCE

DEAR MRS. LAWRENCE: When I married a year ago, my husband brought his eight children to live with us as he'd been given their custody by the court. (The oldest is 17.) But I have four of my own. I am worn out looking after so many and my husband is also exhausted by supporting us all. None of his children has been taught to obey and two are very rebellious. His ex-wife has a very good job but he won't return them to her because he's sure she'll neglect them. Would it be wrong to return them to her?

ANSWER: Has your husband asked these children whom they want to live with—their mother or you and him? If not, why hasn't he?

Because there are many kinds of parental neglect. We neglect children if we feed them bad food or fail to prepare them for a world that will require obedience from them. But we also neglect them if we just grab them away from their mothers without consulting their feelings about our action. For this is high-handed performance which they intensely resent. They are not pots and pans to be moved about at our changes of marital partners. My suggestion is that your husband ask the children if they wish to return to their mother. If they do, ask the court to reverse its custody decision, adding the request that it assign its social agencies to help her look after them.

As I've said before in this space, separating children from mothers is very tricky business. When child-caring institutions do it, they have to employ professional staffs to help them get away with it. As to foster homes which do it, they require almost continuous support by social agencies to pull off this tricky task. Even with this supoprt, they often fail in it. But you, in undertaking this task, get what amounts to no support at all. As you yourself say, your husband is too exhausted with the feeding of all of you that he has no strength left to help you with this trickiest of undertakings.

I don't understand this court's willingness to hand over eight children who belong to one woman merely because she has married their father. And if I don't know all the facts which produced this judicial act, I don't have to. I know all I need to know about removing children from mothers against their will.

Chamber of Commerce Issues New Service; Freeman Aids Project

Publication of a list of over 400 Kingston Area and Ulster County organizations has been announced by S. James Matthews, president of the Kingston Area Chamber of Commerce.

Compilation of the list recognizes a long-standing need in the community for a central listing of all volunter organizations in the community. Listed in the 35-page publication are local civic, fraternal, religious and social organizations of the area.

In the foreword to the directory, it is noted that this is the first time that such a publication has been offered. Continuing, it notes that although many sources were used, special recognition is given to Dorothy Narel of the Kingston Daily Freeman staff as well as to the staff of the Ulster County Community Chest for the significant contributions which they made toward the success of this publication.

It is expected that the directory will be up-dated and reprinted each year. Succeeding issues will be published each February 15 starting in 1969. Corrections to each issue will be accepted through January 25 of that year, It was noted that the information in this first publication reflects correct information through November 15.

Copies of the directory are available to interested parties at $3 each from the Chamber of Commerce office in the Governor Clinton Hotel.

Peter O. Allen, Chamber executive vice-president, indicated that the $3 charge for the directory reflects the direct cost to the Chamber of Commerce in the compilation of the directory. He indicated that gathering the data for the directory involved several mailings to area organizations, a number of news releases asking for information and literally hundreds of hours spent in reviewing the information, cataloging it and actually printing the list.

The directory contains an index to the main body of information which is alphabetic. The index indicates the several categories of organizations so that anyone interested for example, in business groups, may go the index and pick out a number of each of the several business organizations listed in the directory.

Tiny Tips

Angel Food Cake

You may want to add a little almond extract to a confectioners' sugar frosting that is going to cover an angel food cake.

Cream Cheese and Celery

Clean and dry ribs of celery, removing the leafy part. Cut into wedges that are several inches long. Stuff with a mixture of cream cheese mixed with finely chopped pimiento-stuffed olives. A small package of cream cheese will fill about 24 wedges of the celery.

FIND AND AVOID CAUSE FOR BEST ECZEMA RELIEF

By Wayne G. Brandstadt, M.D.

A—This is another name for eczema. The cause is an allergy to a food or to something that comes in contact with your skin. Of the foods, wheat is the most common offender. Of the chemical contactants, scented soaps, shaving creams, shampoos and deodorants are frequent causes. This type of allergy is often aggravated by exposure to sunlight. Heredity is an added factor in the cause of many allergies. The best and most lasting relief depends on discovering and avoiding the cause. It often takes some expert medical sleuthing to find the offender. For temporary relief, ointments that contain coal tar, iodochlorhydroxyquin and hydrocortisone are often helpful.

Q—I am a woman of 60. My doctor says I have eczema in my ears. Can this be cured? Will it affect my hearing?

A—When eczema is limited to a small area, such as the ears, the search for the cause is simplified. In some women, their earrings contain the allergen or irritant. Once the cause is found, the steps necessary for a cure become self-evident. In any case, the eczema will not cause deafness but, if it extends into the external ear canal, the crusts produced may cause blocking and temporary loss of hearing.

Q—My wife has eczema. Two doctors have prescribed pills which stop the itching but, if she doesn't take them, the itching comes back. Would herbs help her?

A—She'd better stay with the pills. Many herbs have been used at one time or another to treat diseases but I know of none that will relieve eczema.

Please send your questions and comments to Wayne G. Brandstadt, M.D., in care of The Kingston Daily Freeman. While Dr. Brandstadt cannot answer individual letters, he will answer letters of general interest in future columns.

THE LONG AND THE SHORT OF IT belongs in your wig boutique because one hair style is not enough for today's fashionable beauty. There's nothing like using two or more hairpieces for a quick switch in coiffure and now a girl can change her hairdo with her mood. The layered look can start the day with the razor boy cut (a wig) . . . (right) and end it in an aura of pure romance by adding a fall and perky ribbon. Hairpieces need grooming to keep their fresh, natural look and one company has a trio of aids to do it at home. There's a spray-on cleaner that only needs brushing to restore loveliness. Tiny Tips

You may want to add a little almond extract to a confectioners' sugar frosting that is going to cover an angel food cake.

Cream Cheese and Celery

Clean and dry ribs of celery, removing the leafy part. Cut into wedges that are several inches long. Stuff with a mixture of cream cheese mixed with finely chopped pimiento-stuffed olives. A small package of cream cheese will fill about 24 wedges of the celery.

FIND AND AVOID CAUSE FOR BEST ECZEMA RELIEF

By Wayne G. Brandstadt, M.D.

Q—What causes atopic dermatitis? Is it hereditary? What can be done for it?

A—This is another name for eczema. The cause is an allergy to a food or to something that comes in contact with your skin. Of the foods, wheat is the most common offender. Of the chemical contactants, scented soaps, shaving creams, shampoos and deodorants are frequent causes. This type of allergy is often aggravated by exposure to sunlight. Heredity is an added factor in the cause of many allergies. The best and most lasting relief depends on discovering and avoiding the cause. It often takes some expert medical sleuthing to find the offender. For temporary relief, ointments that contain coal tar, iodochlorhydroxyquin and hydrocortisone are often helpful.

Q—I am a woman of 60. My doctor says I have eczema in my ears. Can this be cured? Will it affect my hearing?

A—When eczema is limited to a small area, such as the ears, the search for the cause is simplified. In some women, their earrings contain the allergen or irritant. Once the cause is found, the steps necessary for a cure become self-evident. In any case, the eczema will not cause deafness but, if it extends into the external ear canal, the crusts produced may cause blocking and temporary loss of hearing.

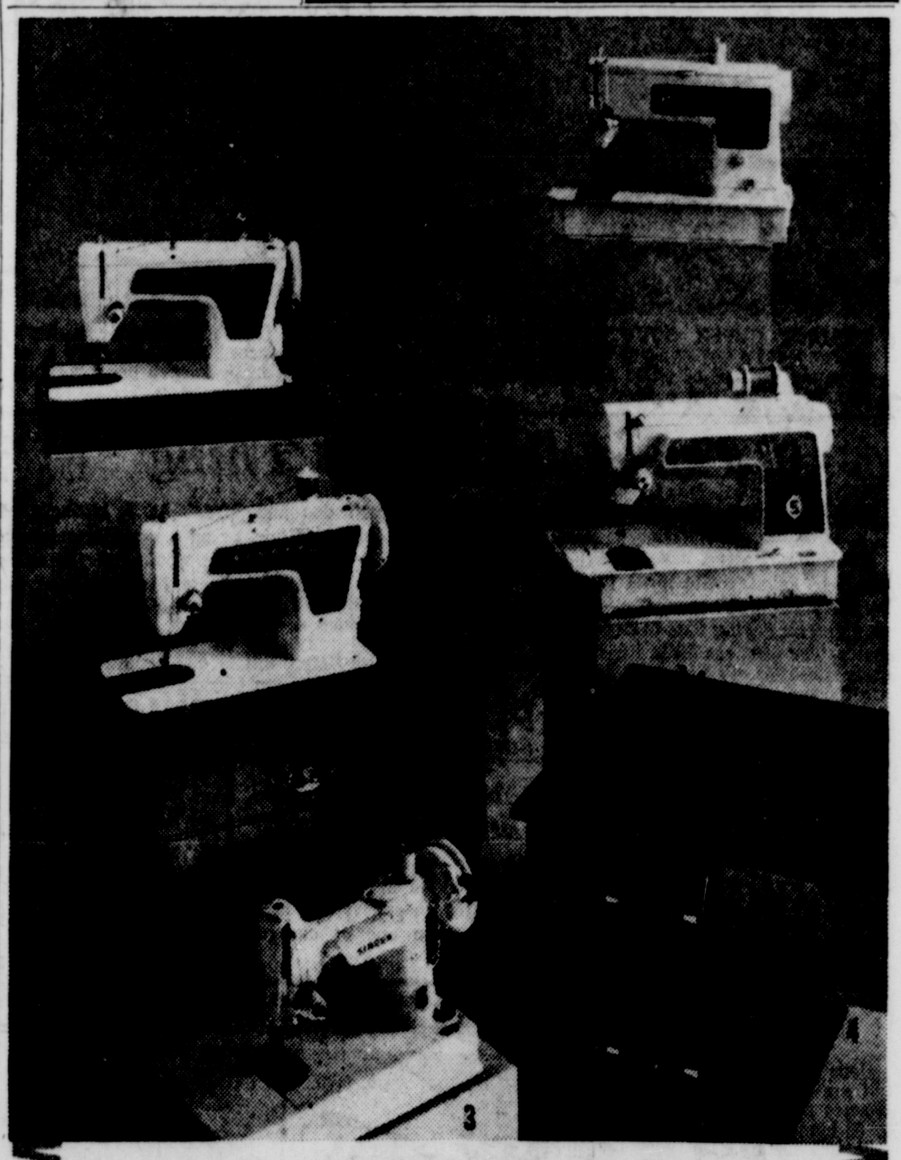

Q—My wife has eczema. Two doctors have prescribed pills which stop the itching but, if she doesn't take them, the itching comes back. Would herbs help her?

A—She'd better stay with the pills. Many herbs have been used at one time or another to treat diseases but I know of none that will relieve eczema.

Please send your questions and comments to Wayne G. Brandstadt, M.D., in care of The Kingston Daily Freeman. While Dr. Brandstadt cannot answer individual letters, he will answer letters of general interest in future columns.

THE LONG AND THE SHORT OF IT belongs in your wig boutique because one hair style is not enough for today's fashionable beauty. There's nothing like using two or more hairpieces for a quick switch in coiffure and now a girl can change her hairdo with her mood. The layered look can start the day with the razor boy cut (a wig) . . . (right) and end it in an aura of pure romance by adding a fall and perky ribbon. Hairpieces need grooming to keep their fresh, natural look and one company has a trio of aids to do it at home. There's a spray-on cleaner that only needs brushing to restore loveliness. The sheen, when sprayed on adds lustre that makes it gleam and the clear, nonflake spray puts the finishing touch to your hairdo. (Tovar Tresses, Inc. Nestle-Le Mur)

Smothers Brothers At Peace With CBS

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Those battling brothers, the Smothers, appear to have reached an agreement for peaceful coexistence with their television network.

Tom and Dick Smothers fight each other only on their Sunday night variety show. There offscreen combativeness has lately been directed at CBS, which they believed was taking a stiff-necked attitude about some of the topical humor the boys were attempting.

CBS censors applied a heavy pencil, the Smothers claimed, to jokes about President Johnson, the Vietnam war, dope, protest and other topics. "The worst came when they eliminated an 11-minute routine on censorship by Elaine May," said Tom, adding gleefully: "The whole thing was later printed in the New York Times."

The climax of the Smothers' winter of discontent came last month when they went to England for the beginning of the show on television there. In interviews they said there flatly that network interference had made the show intolerable and they intended to quit.

"We meant it," declared Dick, the bass-playing straight man of the act. "We were going to finish out the season so CBS wouldn't lose money on sponsorship and would have time to line up another show. But we had definitely decided not to continue."

"Absolutely," added Tom, the comical brother. "Why should we absorb that kind of punishment? Here we were trying to do a show that said something about what is happening today, and they were thwarting us at every turn. Who needs it?"

Both surmise that the London declarations convinced CBS of the seriousness of their intentions. They report that the censorship situation has greatly improved since they returned to the show early this month.

"Let's face it: CBS had a lot to lose," observed Dick. "We were the first show that could make any headway against 'Bonanza'."

"We also have been able to get the young crowd; our biggest audience is between 16 and 18," added Tom.

Even with the improved climate on the Smothers Brothers show, Tom declared that he will end his performing career after one more season. "It takes too much out of you," he said. "I am physically and mentally exhausted. I've played my character so long that now I'm just doing so by rote; I'm only giving 50 per cent of what I could."

Lana on the Quiet Period: Just Making Films for Men

By BOB THOMAS
AP Movie-Television Writer

"Why aren't a lot of actresses making movies?" she asks. "Because they don't make pictures for women any more. Everything is directed toward the men. If a producer can get Steve McQueen or Paul Newman for a picture, he's got it made. He isn't interested in female stars.' "

But there's another reason for Miss Turner's inactivity since "Madame X" two years ago. She will not play in the lurid films that dominate the movie market today.

"Look—I'm no prude," she remarked. "I think I know what's happening. But I see no reason to put raw sex on the screen. For what? What does it prove? That human beings are like animals? If that's what movies are coming to, then I want no part of it.

"You wouldn't believe the filth that I find in scripts sent to me nowadays. Absolute filth! It makes me physically ill to read such things. And yet I notice that those pictures get made, and producers find actresses to play the roles. I feel sorry for girls who feel they have to play such parts just to keep in front of the public.

"I'd like to work, too. I feel I've still got some juices in me. I've got a figure that is all right, and I don't look so bad. I'm not ready to give up on an acting career yet. But I'm not so desperate that I would take these dirty pictures that they're making today. Thank God I am in the financial position where I don't have to."

The position of Lana Turner as moralist may seem like odd casting, but she is schooled in the old MGM tradition. In those days, certain things were left to the public's imagination.

"And how many bare bosoms can you look at? There can't be much thrill left after you've seen a lot of them."

Health Council Holds Meeting

The regular meeting of the Ulster County Health Services Council was held recently at the Saugerties Central High School with Professor Richard Glazer, chairman, presiding. Dr. Glazer reported that much interest has been generated on the medical computer project, and there is now a need to set up a working committee for further overall study.

Murray Weiss, who represented the Uister County Council at a recent meeting in Poughkeepsie of the Dutchess County Health Services Planning Council, reported that the spotlight was on Ulster County since it is the only county in the Mid-Hudson Valley that has thus far organized such a council. This positive information was referred to Dr. Vernon B. Link, Ulster County Commissioner of Health, and Peter Savago, chairman, Ulster County Legislature, for further local coordinated planning.

Dr. Robert Gershon has been appointed to represent the Ulster County Medical Society to the council regarding blood banks in the county. Meetings have been held with representatives from Red Cross, American Legion, Lions Club and the Health Department. From these groups will come listings of names of available donors.

Robert E. Johnson reported on the extensive work and planning accomplished by the questionnaire committee and asked that each member send to him a copy of its organizational mailing list.

Guest speaker was Mrs. James Dolce, director of the Kingston Hospital library, who spoke at some length on the benefits to be derived from a coordinated compilation of reference and resource materials relating to all phases of medical-health information. The public and even many professionals are not aware of the books, films, and audio-visual aids now available. Stephen Folts, representing the New York State Library Resource Council briefly outlined some of the objectives under consideration by this regional group. Also, in this connection, a letter from Gordon Kidd, Ulster County Community College librarian, was read, setting forth the interest and cooperation which the college is prepared to offer.

Due to the increased activities of the council, Dr. Glazer appointed the following to serve in these capacities: Mrs. Madeline Wendrow, publicity; Mrs. Charlotte Peck, recording secretary; and Peter O. Allen, mimeographing and mailing.

It was decided to rotate the meeting places. The next meeting will be held in New Paltz.

Maroon Tops Lourdes, 87-60, for Ninth Win

Ed Lindhorst turned in his finest game of the season and aggressive Ed Byman was a superb replacement for injured Andy Murphy, as Kingston High rolled to a no-contest, 87-60, victory over Our Lady of Lourdes of Dutchess last night at the field house.

The win was the 9th in 10 starts for Coach Jack Gilligan's Maroons who resume DUSO action Friday at Port Jervis.

Lindhorst potted 19 points, picked off 8 rebounds and had two assists. Ken Gilligan, hitting 55 per cent (9/16) led Kingston with 21 points. His brother, Bruce, added 17, eleven from the free throw line.

Byman started in place of A. J. Murphy, who was not playing due to a deep thigh muscle injury suffered in the Liberty game. He went on a scoring spree in the second quarter, banging four field goals into the nets to lead the home side to a 28 point quarter that put them ahead 45-30 at the half.

Twice the Rebounds

Lourdes worked the ball around in a careful pattern offense, making every shot count, but Kingston had twice as many rebounds, nabbing 48 to Lourdes' 24.

Bill O'Neil, Warrior high scorer with 13 points, started the scoring with a foul shot in the first quarter. Bruce Gilligan collected the first two of his 11 foul points. Mike Gorman then tallied for the Warriors to make it 3-2 Lourdes. Ray Lindhorst was called blocking O'Neil, who missed the shot, whereupon Lindhorst took the rebound and went all the way down for a driving layup to put Kingston ahead 4-3.

That's where they stayed, as O'Neil sandwiched a basket between tallies by Ken and Bruce Gilligan. Two foul shots by Bruce brought the totals to 11-5, and the quarter score was 17-12.

Byman, Lindhorst and Kolln hit baskets in the second quarter before Lourdes' Terry Bauer potted two foul shots. Kolln sank a foul shot and the Gilligan brothers each reined field goals to bring the score to 28-14. The outcome was never in doubt after that.

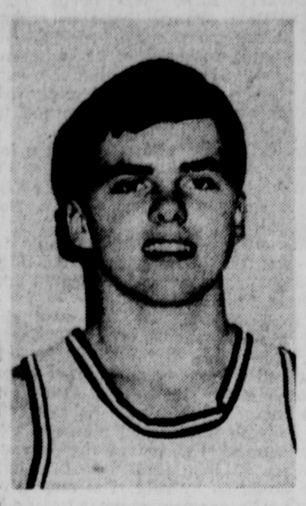

Warrior hopes were shattered when O'Neil fouled out with 3.49 to go in the third period. O'Neil had been the hard driving spark plug for Lourdes.

Lindhorst and Bruce Gilligan, outstanding rebounders, are the big men in Kingston's beautifully coordinated man to man defense. Byman and Ken Gilligan, the guards, are fantastic ball hawks.

Kingston's teamwork on offense and defense is superb, and it doesn't stop with the starting quintet either. Coach Jack Gilligan has nothing but praises for the whole squad.

Kingston, 9-1 overall, leads the DUSO standings with a 3-0 mark. Newburgh at Monticello, the only other DUSO action last night, was canceled due to bad weather and will be played tonight.

.300 Hitter Decline Decried by Medwick

TWO VIEWS of Joe Medwick, former St. Louis Cardinal Gashouse Gang, who was elected to Baseball's Hall of Fame yesterday. Top photo shows Joe in 1964 and (bottom) as he looked in 1938. (UPI TELEPHOTO)

NEW YORK (AP) — Joe Medwick, baseball's newest Hall of Famer and a .300 batter during 14 of his 17 National League seasons, blames the increased emphasis on power for the recent decrease in the number of .300 hitters.

"They are all going for the long ball, but that can be corrected," said the swaggering hero of the St. Louis Cards' rambunctious Gas House Gang of the 1930s.

Medwick was voted into the Hall Tuesday, less than a week after being named a batting instructor for players on the Cards' minor league teams.

"The averages are also lower today because of the platoon system and the fact that the batters often have to face three different pitchers before a game is over," Medwick explained.

"These days," he added, "you can win a triple crown with a .326 batting average," obviously referring to the mark compiled by Boston's Carl Yastrzemski in winning the American League's triple crown last season.

There were only 16 players on the 20 big league teams who hit .300 or higher in 1967. When Medwick captured the NL's triple crown with a .374 mark in 1937, 54 players on the 16 clubs finished with .300 or more.

However, Medwick was the only one to be naed on the required 75 per cent or more of the ballots. He received 240 votes, 27 more than necessary for election.

Roy Campanella, the former catching great of the Brooklyn Dodgers and a three-time winner of the NL's Most Valuable Player Award, missed election by only eight votes. He received 205.

First Draft Choice Goes to Minnesota

NEW YORK (AP) — Commissioner Pete Rozelle has announced the ground rules and order of selection for professional football's second common draft of collegians.

The 26 pro teams will select 462 college players in 17 draft rounds next Tuesday and Wednesday here. Cincinnati, the American Football League's new expansion team, will have 42 picks—the most for any team—while the New York Giants of the National League will have the fewest number of choices—11.

The first pick belongs to Minnesota as a result of the trade which sent quarterback Fran Tarkenton to the Giants last year. After the Vikings make their choice, Cincinnati makes its initial selection.

The Bengals will have the first and last picks in each round as well as a second choice at the end of the second, third and fourth rounds. Cincinnati also gets all AFL choices except Miami's in the sixth round. The Dolphins were the first AFL expansion team two years ago.

Rozelle said each team would have 15 minutes for its selections in the first two rounds and five minutes for each selection after that.

The teams will draft in reverse order of won-lost percentage based on the combined standings of the two leagues last season except for Oakland of the AFL and Green Bay of the NFL. The Super Bowl opponents will take the last two picks in each round before Cincinnati makes its bonus choice.

But the Packers, who under those rules would choose 27th in the opening round, won't have to wait that long. They own New Orleans' first pick as a result of the Jim Taylor deal last year and will choose fifth behind Minnesota, Cincinnati, Atlanta and San Diego. The Chargers are that high because they got Denver's No. 1 choice in the trade for Steve Tensi.

Anderson's 22 Sparks JV Win

Harold Anderson swished 22 points through the nets to lead Kingston High's Jayvees to a 63-51 victory over Our Lady of Lourdes.

Anderson notched eight in the second period and seven in the third. John Royal collected nine of his 16-point total in the third period also, as the Maroon stood off a scoring rush by the Warriors.

Ahead 35-21 at halftime, Kingston was never in trouble. Lourdes closed to 10 points, 60-50, with a minute and 35 to go, but two foul shots by Harold Anderson and a basket by Jerry Barber were fitted around a basket by Gary McCann of Lourdes to bring the final to 63-51.

Mike Weanor rimmed 10 points to lead the Warriors.

Talent and Pride Rout West, 144-124

Calling on a smattering of talent, pride, competition and teamwork, the East clobbered the West 144-124 Tuesday night before a record 18,422 fans in Madison Square Garden.

The winning pot was not much—$500 for the winners and $300 for the losers—but it served to help rub out the memory of last year's 145-120 upset victory by the West. The East had won four straight before that game and now has captured 12 of 18 classics.

Oscar Robertson's 13 points and 12 by John Havlicek helped the East to an early 14-point lead which the West managed to cut to 64-59 at the half. And when Jerry West, Elgin Baylor and Jim King put the West ahead momentarily early in the third quarter, the East played its trump card—Hal Greer.

The Philadelphia guard scored seven straight points for an 80-75 lead and continued on to outscore the West 14-4 for an 87-79 spread and it grew from there. Greer finished with 19 points in the quarter, an All-Star record, and totaled 21 for the game. His performance won him the Most Valuable Player award.

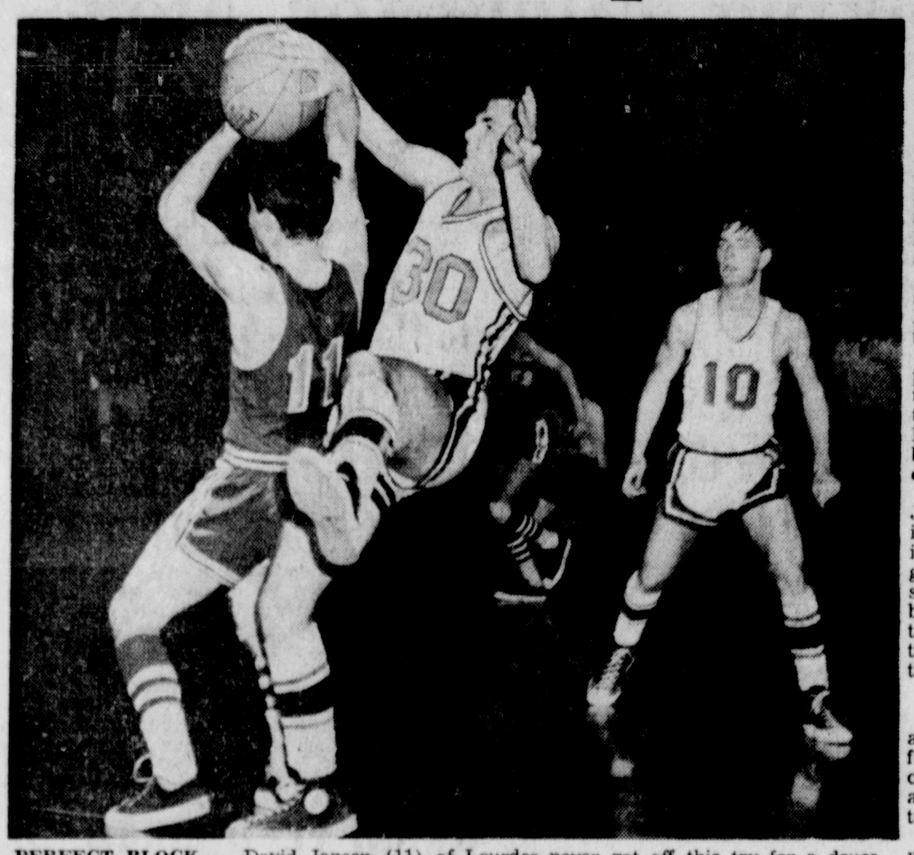

Russell and Havlicek took over in the final period, along with Jerry Lucas and Robertson of Cincinnati and Willis Reed and Dick Barnett of New York, and turned the game into a rout. Havlicek finished with 26 points, five more than Greer.

Talent and Pride Rout West, 144-124

Calling on a smattering of talent, pride, competition and teamwork, the East clobbered the West 144-124 Tuesday night before a record 18,422 fans in Madison Square Garden.

The winning pot was not much—$500 for the winners and $300 for the losers—but it served to help rub out the memory of last year's 145-120 upset victory by the West. The East had won four straight before that game and now has captured 12 of 18 classics.

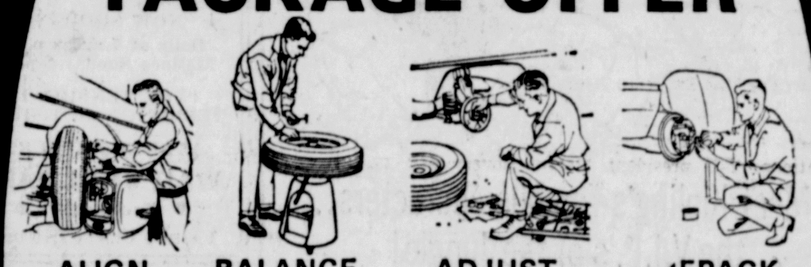

Oscar Robertson's 13 points and 12 by John Havlicek helped the East to an early 14-point lead which the West managed to cut to 64-59 at the half. And when Jerry West, Elgin Baylor and Jim King put the West ahead momentarily early in the third quarter, the East played its trump card—Hal Greer.

The Philadelphia guard scored seven straight points for an 80-75 lead and continued on to outscore the West 14-4 for an 87-79 spread and it grew from there. Greer finished with 19 points in the quarter, an All-Star record, and totaled 21 for the game. His performance won him the Most Valuable Player award.

Russell and Havlicek took over in the final period, along with Jerry Lucas and Robertson of Cincinnati and Willis Reed and Dick Barnett of New York, and turned the game into a rout. Havlicek finished with 26 points, five more than Greer.

Rod 'n Gun Report

by "Old Rip"

This may come as a shock to you but statistics show that the hardy winter ice fisherman usually catches more fish per hour than his summer fair weather cousin.

But then, why not? He earns more fighting the howling winds and biting cold. And we can attest for this from days gone by. Many local ice fishing enthusiasts are trying to find hot spots these days now that the ice is "entirely safe."

We understand an old standby—Yankeetown Pond in Wittenberg—is getting quite a play, and although no trophy fish have been caught, it is producing some good catches.

Don Briggs, the discount beverage proprietor, is readying his fishing gear for a day on the ice with his boys. Our recent gabfest with him disclosed some fine hideaways he has in mind. Interesting, too, was his comment on sighting a fine herd of deer on the Hurley flats. Now that the snow has become crusted, the deer are making their way to some standing corn and feed in this well known area.

FRED MARKLE, the Wittenberg Sportsmen's Club gourmet, reports that the deer herd in that section is doing very good and that browse is being cut to help in the feeding, now that acorns are buried deep in snow. The club will soon start its winter feeding program and we hope other clubs will follow.

We now understand that the proposed new state park up Wittenberg way is not as receptive as many would have us believe. Many of the "real" natives feel it will dig deep in their famed deer hinterland and areas where pheasant and rabbit releases have afforded the gunners hours of pleasure.

From here it looks like it will be a golf course, a dammed-up swamp area for a lake, horseback riding and picnics in days to come for that area.

HOT STOVE TALK has it that Assemblyman Ken Wilson may be our next Conservation Commissioner. Now, now boys, do you really mean it? We think it's too good to be true.

Short Shots: Clarence Daley and Don Hyatt spent Friday in search of walleye pike at Sacketts Lake, outside Monticello. A real nice day to be on the ice but either the fish were not there or they were not receptive to Ulster county bait as the boys came home with just memories.

Signs of Spring: The third annual Sportsman's Show sponsored by the Dutchess County Federation of Fish and Game Clubs, set for Saturday and Sunday, March 2-3, at Arlington High school.

George Dougherty of the Kingston Police department spent a day on nearby Silver Lake, outside Rhinebeck for some pickerel. This lake got a great play a few years back and always produced plenty of action, even though the fish were always on the short side.

GLAD TO SEE such sportsmen as Carlton King of Mt. Marion, Bob McDole of Wawarsing and Arthur Sperl of Saugerties being appointed on a gun legislative committee to represent the Ulster County Federation.

Congratulations to Stamford's Al Hall, who has moved into the top spot in the Division of Fish and Game of the Conservation Department. He succeeds Dr. E. L. Cheatum. Al is well known locally and his many friends wish him well. We have had the pleasure of some interesting round table discussions with him on the deer situation.

LATE BULLETIN: All chapters of Trout Unlimited will convene this Saturday (Jan. 27) at the Schrafft Motor Inn—at the Albany exit of the Thruway at 1 p. m. This will be a meeting of the New York State Council and all members are urged to attend.

National T-U president Martin Bovery and executive secretary, Tom L. Smith, will address the gathering. This fine organization is creating nationwide attention and anyone interested in gathering information regarding its aims and purposes is urged to write to president Wesley Drake, P. O. Box 163, Uptown Station, Kingston. More on this growing fraternity in a later column.

OLD RIP SEZ: Would you believe that after today—it's only 67 days to the opening of the trout season!—Do your fishing tackle shopping early!

Coucheron and Sherwood In Rosendale Trophy Jump

By CHARLES J. TIANO
Sports Editor

The winner of the Dwight Eisenhower Trophy last weekend at Bear Mountain and a 1965 U. S. Olympic team member will be among 25 of the East's best ski jumpers scheduled to open the season at Rosendale Saturday and Sunday.

Per Coucheron, a 22-year-old Norwegian student at Dartmouth and Eisenhower winner, heads the brilliant field which also includes for the first time ever at Rosendale, the nationally famous Roy Sherwood, of Salisbury, Conn., who was on the 1965 Olympic team.

Despite ominous weather conditions, Rosendale Nordic Ski Club officials said everything was "go" for the two-day affair which includes the Rosendale Trophy Jump Saturday and the New York State Combined Saturday and Sunday.

Jumping events will be held both days at 2 p.m. The cross country divisions of the New York State Combined starts Saturday at 9 a.m. at Williams Lake.

Familiar Face

Coucheron is a familiar face at Mt. Joppenbergh in the heart of Rosendale village. In the first year of operation in 1966 he set the hill mark with a 178-footer. Last year he won the Class A tournament even though his record was broken by 17-year-old Don Colby, a Lake Placid Junior competitor who now holds the record at 208.

Lief Bringslimark, a Congers, N. Y. stone mason who was runnerup to Coucheron at Bear Mountain will also be in the field.

Bringslimark, who competes under the colors of the Telemark Club of Brooklyn, won the New York State Cross Country and Combined Championship in 1966 and then went on to win a berth of the U. S. FIS team which competed in Norway.

In Nordic Combined

This weekend Bringslimark is again entered in the Nordic Combined event which will pair the scoring in a 16 kilometer cross country race to be held Saturday at 9 a.m. with the ski jump scoring on Sunday afternoon.

Other "A" entries include Roger Dion, of Canaan, Conn., who was at Rosendale last season; Larry Gillis, of Dartmouth Outing Club, who competed in the Olympic trials at Iron Mountain, Michigan; Bill Cantlin of Dartmouth and Douglas Dion.

Einer Dohlen, a Norwegian jumper who topped the Class B field at Bear Mountain, is favored to repeat at Rosendale. He had leaps of 138 and 156 feet for 202.7 points. His toughest opposition is expected to come from Fred Wray of Mt. Beacon, Egil Evensen of Bear Mountain; Don West, Robert Bush and Gary Wolf of Brattleboro and John Jepson of West Hartford.

Hot 'B' Jumper

Dana (Zeke) Zelenakas of Canaan College, one of the hottest jumpers in the East, is also highly rated in Class B, along with Lee Buatte and Arthur Tokle, Jr. of Canaan and Brian Beattie of Dartmouth.

At Bear Mountain last weekend, Coucheron, competing against the six top jumpers of the first two rounds, leaped 145 feet to run his point total to 304.4 to win the Eisenhower Trophy. He had 141 and 147 in the first two rounds.

Dohlen placed second in the Eisenhower with 301.18 points, followed by Sherwood, 297.3; Schneider, 288.3; Cantlin, 286.5; and Douglas Dion, 285.4.

Sherwood won the regular Ramapo Mountain Ski Club Trophy for his first two jumps for 208.3 points. Coucheron's 141-147 gave him 202.4 points.

Girls Cross Country

An extra attraction Saturday morning will be a 5 kilometer cross country test for girls and the results of this race will help determine the selection of the girls team which will represent the East in the Junior National Championships in March.

The men's cross country part of the NYS Combined will be held on the same course immediately following the girls race, with veterans over 35 racing 10 kilometers and the younger racers running 15 kilometers.

Eastern colleges with ski teams are expected to participate heavily in this event as a tuneup for the college winter which begins with the Dartmouth Carnival next weekend.

3-Game Sweep For St. Joseph's

Jay Carroll's 29 points paced St. Joseph's CYO Varsity of Kingston to a 48-46 squeaker over St. Mary's of Wappingers, the current Dutchess County CYO leaders.

In other games played at the local gym, St. Joseph's Jayvees topped Wappingers, 27-20, and the local Tyros also won 17-14.

Carroll potted 11 fields and seven free throws as St. Joseph's held off a last quarter threat by the visitors. Mark Weber and the two Hoffstatter lads—Ken and Dirk—set up a good zone press which forced Wappingers into some costly turnovers.

The scores:

Rod 'n Gun Report

by "Old Rip"

This may come as a shock to you but statistics show that the hardy winter ice fisherman usually catches more fish per hour than his summer fair weather cousin.

But then, why not? He earns more fighting the howling winds and biting cold. And we can attest for this from days gone by. Many local ice fishing enthusiasts are trying to find hot spots these days now that the ice is "entirely safe."

We understand an old standby—Yankeetown Pond in Wittenberg—is getting quite a play, and although no trophy fish have been caught, it is producing some good catches.

Don Briggs, the discount beverage proprietor, is readying his fishing gear for a day on the ice with his boys. Our recent gabfest with him disclosed some fine hideaways he has in mind. Interesting, too, was his comment on sighting a fine herd of deer on the Hurley flats. Now that the snow has become crusted, the deer are making their way to some standing corn and feed in this well known area.

FRED MARKLE, the Wittenberg Sportsmen's Club gourmet, reports that the deer herd in that section is doing very good and that browse is being cut to help in the feeding, now that acorns are buried deep in snow. The club will soon start its winter feeding program and we hope other clubs will follow.

We now understand that the proposed new state park up Wittenberg way is not as receptive as many would have us believe. Many of the "real" natives feel it will dig deep in their famed deer hinterland and areas where pheasant and rabbit releases have afforded the gunners hours of pleasure.

As one of our readers so aptly expressed it: "You can't fight city hall."

From here it looks like it will be a golf course, a dammed-up swamp area for a lake, horseback riding and picnics in days to come for that area.

HOT STOVE TALK has it that Assemblyman Ken Wilson may be our next Conservation Commissioner. Now, now boys, do you really mean it? We think it's too good to be true.

Short Shots: Clarence Daley and Don Hyatt spent Friday in search of walleye pike at Sacketts Lake, outside Monticello. A real nice day to be on the ice but either the fish were not there or they were not receptive to Ulster county bait as the boys came home with just memories.

Signs of Spring: The third annual Sportsman's Show sponsored by the Dutchess County Federation of Fish and Game Clubs, set for Saturday and Sunday, March 2-3, at Arlington High school.

George Dougherty of the Kingston Police department spent a day on nearby Silver Lake, outside Rhinebeck for some pickerel. This lake got a great play a few years back and always produced plenty of action, even though the fish were always on the short side.

GLAD TO SEE such sportsmen as Carlton King of Mt. Marion, Bob McDole of Wawarsing and Arthur Sperl of Saugerties being appointed on a gun legislative committee to represent the Ulster County Federation.

William Meyer, Federation president, made a good selection and local gun enthusiasts may be assured of good representation at Council sessions.

Congratulations to Stamford's Al Hall, who has moved into the top spot in the Division of Fish and Game of the Conservation Department. He succeeds Dr. E. L. Cheatum. Al is well known locally and his many friends wish him well. We have had the pleasure of some interesting round table discussions with him on the deer situation.

LATE BULLETIN: All chapters of Trout Unlimited will convene this Saturday (Jan. 27) at the Schrafft Motor Inn—at the Albany exit of the Thruway at 1 p. m. This will be a meeting of the New York State Council and all members are urged to attend.

National T-U president Martin Bovery and executive secretary, Tom L. Smith, will address the gathering. This fine organization is creating nationwide attention and anyone interested in gathering information regarding its aims and purposes is urged to write to president Wesley Drake, P. O. Box 163, Uptown Station, Kingston. More on this growing fraternity in a later column.

OLD RIP SEZ: Would you believe that after today—it's only 67 days to the opening of the trout season!—Do your fishing tackle shopping early!

Coucheron and Sherwood In Rosendale Trophy Jump

By CHARLES J. TIANO
Sports Editor

The winner of the Dwight Eisenhower Trophy last weekend at Bear Mountain and a 1965 U. S. Olympic team member will be among 25 of the East's best ski jumpers scheduled to open the season at Rosendale Saturday and Sunday.

Per Coucheron, a 22-year-old Norwegian student at Dartmouth and Eisenhower winner, heads the brilliant field which also includes for the first time ever at Rosendale, the nationally famous Roy Sherwood, of Salisbury, Conn., who was on the 1965 Olympic team.

Despite ominous weather conditions, Rosendale Nordic Ski Club officials said everything was "go" for the two-day affair which includes the Rosendale Trophy Jump Saturday and the New York State Combined Saturday and Sunday.

Jumping events will be held both days at 2 p.m. The cross country divisions of the New York State Combined starts Saturday at 9 a.m. at Williams Lake.

Familiar Face

Coucheron is a familiar face at Mt. Joppenbergh in the heart of Rosendale village. In the first year of operation in 1966 he set the hill mark with a 178-footer. Last year he won the Class A tournament even though his record was broken by 17-year-old Don Colby, a Lake Placid Junior competitor who now holds the record at 208.

Lief Bringslimark, a Congers, N. Y. stone mason who was runnerup to Coucheron at Bear Mountain will also be in the field.

Bringslimark, who competes under the colors of the Telemark Club of Brooklyn, won the New York State Cross Country and Combined Championship in 1966 and then went on to win a berth of the U. S. FIS team which competed in Norway.

In Nordic Combined

This weekend Bringslimark is again entered in the Nordic Combined event which will pair the scoring in a 16 kilometer cross country race to be held Saturday at 9 a.m. with the ski jump scoring on Sunday afternoon.

Other "A" entries include Roger Dion, of Canaan, Conn., who was at Rosendale last season; Larry Gillis, of Dartmouth Outing Club, who competed in the Olympic trials at Iron Mountain, Michigan; Bill Cantlin of Dartmouth and Douglas Dion.

Einer Dohlen, a Norwegian jumper who topped the Class B field at Bear Mountain, is favored to repeat at Rosendale. He had leaps of 138 and 156 feet for 202.7 points. His toughest opposition is expected to come from Fred Wray of Mt. Beacon, Egil Evensen of Bear Mountain; Don West, Robert Bush and Gary Wolf of Brattleboro and John Jepson of West Hartford.

Hot 'B' Jumper

Dana (Zeke) Zelenakas of Canaan College, one of the hottest jumpers in the East, is also highly rated in Class B, along with Lee Buatte and Arthur Tokle, Jr. of Canaan and Brian Beattie of Dartmouth.

At Bear Mountain last weekend, Coucheron, competing against the six top jumpers of the first two rounds, leaped 145 feet to run his point total to 304.4 to win the Eisenhower Trophy. He had 141 and 147 in the first two rounds.

Dohlen placed second in the Eisenhower with 301.18 points, followed by Sherwood, 297.3; Schneider, 288.3; Cantlin, 286.5; and Douglas Dion, 285.4.

Sherwood won the regular Ramapo Mountain Ski Club Trophy for his first two jumps for 208.3 points. Coucheron's 141-147 gave him 202.4 points.

Girls Cross Country

An extra attraction Saturday morning will be a 5 kilometer cross country test for girls and the results of this race will help determine the selection of the girls team which will represent the East in the Junior National Championships in March.

The men's cross country part of the NYS Combined will be held on the same course immediately following the girls race, with veterans over 35 racing 10 kilometers and the younger racers running 15 kilometers.

This event has an international flavor with an entry of a 7-man team from the Canadian Ski Federation from Montreal.

Eastern colleges with ski teams are expected to participate heavily in this event as a tuneup for the college winter which begins with the Dartmouth Carnival next weekend.

3-Game Sweep For St. Joseph's

Jay Carroll's 29 points paced St. Joseph's CYO Varsity of Kingston to a 48-46 squeaker over St. Mary's of Wappingers, the current Dutchess County CYO leaders.

In other games played at the local gym, St. Joseph's Jayvees topped Wappingers, 27-20, and the local Tyros also won 17-14.

Carroll potted 11 fields and seven free throws as St. Joseph's held off a last quarter threat by the visitors. Mark Weber and the two Hoffstatter lads—Ken and Dirk—set up a good zone press which forced Wappingers into some costly turnovers.

The scores:

Dear Abby

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: My husband died 10 years ago and left me a small estate which was to be security for my old age. Well, I have three daughters and one son. They are all married and have families. The girls have good, hard-working husbands, who provide well for them, but my son has had such hard luck. He dropped out of high school so he can't get a very good-paying job.

My daughters' children have nice clothes, music lessons, good bicycles, and things like that, so naturally, my son feels that his kids are entitled to have it as good as their cousins, so he has asked me to help him out. I have helped him about as much as I can, and now all my money is used up.

My son can't pay me back, so now I have to go live with someone. I kind of planned on living with my son, but he says a mother's place is with her daughters, not her son. What am I going to do? If I tell my daughters where my money has gone they will surely be mad.

WORRIED MOTHER

DEAR WORRIED: Your son seems more familiar with hard LUCK than hard WORK. You were foolish to have given your "security" money to your son. His children were "entitled" to only what their father was able to provide for them. Tell your daughters the truth, and take your medicine.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: When a man marries a girl fresh out of college he doesn't expect to get the world's greatest cook and housekeeper. But how brainy does a girl have to be to know she shouldn't starch her husband's underwear?

UNCOMFORTABLE

DEAR UNCOMFORTABLE: That's a pretty stiff question. Give her time.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: I feel I must talk to someone about a problem that has been on my mind for a long time. It's my mentally retarded niece, I'll call her "Lucy."

She can't go to school with normal children. Lucy's mother has taken a day time job outside the home. Not that she needs the money, she says the child gets on her nerves and she has to get away. This mother will put Lucy off on anyone who will keep her. I've kept her quite a lot myself. She's a sweet child and seems willing to learn, but Abby, I have four of mine to look after.

Shouldn't Lucy's mother stay at home and teach that unfortunate child to do things for herself, so she won't go through life depending on others to do things for her?

Lucy is now 14, and she needs the teaching that only a mother can give a daughter that age if you know what I mean. Should I take Lucy full time? Maybe I should. Your answer will ease my mind.

CONCERNED AUNT

DEAR CONCERNED: Yes, take Lucy. That you would write shows you have a heart and a conscience. You say Lucy can't go to school with "normal" children. I hope she is going to a school for retarded children. If not, please call your local Board of Education for information on such schools, and see that Lucy attends. God bless you.

It's In The Stars —

FORECAST FOR Thursday January 25, 1968

ARIES (Mar. 21-Apr. 19): Focus is not sharp. You tend to see events, persons in light less than clear. Know this and withhold final judgment. Patience is your great ally.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 - May 20): Some who opposed you make friendly gesture. Changes are due. Key is to sharpen sense of communication. Means be willing to learn.

GEMINI (May 21 - June 20): What appears to be opposition could be healthy challenge. Avoid jumping to conclusions. Take mate, partner into confidence. Don't battle when it is unnecessary.

CANCER (June 21 - July 22): Your talent does not diminish by listening to reason. Means today make concession. Some will attempt to irritate you. Be wise, mature, understanding and patient. Message clear later.

LEO (July 23 - Aug. 22): In background of action, attitude is apt to be what it costs. Face this fact. Get down to practical matters. Learn what is realistic, what is purely in realm of imagination.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 - Sept. 22): Opposition may appear from family numbers. Key is to know that some methods, factors aer outdated. Strive for understanding, symbolized by open mind. You gain if mature.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 - Oct. 22): Be subtle. Don't expect whirlpool of understanding. What you accomplish today is apt to come slowly. Take special care in traffic. Don't push or force. Accent calmness.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 - Nov. 21): Your judgment, intuition apt to converge. Means you join within yourself a logic and impulse which appears to take over. Stress on money, security, possessions. Be firm.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 - Jan. 19): You find reports, rumors imposing on facts. Be discriminating. Find out what exists, what is mere wishful thinking. Ultraimportant to separate reality from fantasy.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 - Feb. 18): People free with advice may be expensive because of mistakes. Know this and respond accordingly. You have much to gain—but others can cause loss. Avoid scattering your forces.

PISCES (Feb. 19 - Mar. 20): Tendency is to act on empulse. Try to be mature. If you jump to conclusions, the result could be embarrassment or worse. Heed voice of experience. You will understand.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you are sensitive, perceptive and capable of being an original thinker. Many fail to understand you, while others revere the fact that you are different. You attract some, while causing others to be envious. There's no halfway about you. But this year you expand sphere of experience and make new, valuable friends.

Most of the departing audience agreed that the new Broadway play was a simple, ludicrous story which lacked plot structure.

The noted comedian, a man known for his ludicrous jokes and amusing tales, was now appearing in a local night club.

Colonel Boodle had prepared an oration to be given at the dedication of the new courthouse. He took his bosom friend, Colonel Swag, into his confidence and said to him:

Colonel Boodle—I want you to be present when I deliver this speech. You must start the laughter and applause. Every time I take a drink of water you are to applaud and every time I wipe my forehead you are to laugh.

Colonel Swag—Better switch signals, Kunnel. It's sure to start me laughing if I see you up there taking a drink of water.

TV Errs on the GOP Answer

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP Television-Radio Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — The Republican leadership of the 90th Congress, in an hour provided by CBS Tuesday night, chose to use it to present 'a picture of our party—how we look, how we feel," as House Minority Leader Gerald Ford said.

A picture, however, is helped by its frame, and the frame— or format—in which the Republicans chose to answer and criticize President Johnson's State of the Union address did not help a bit.

Hour Dragged

After a brief introductory message from former President Dwight D. Eisenhower, 14 senators and congressmen stood in turn before the cameras and a live, applauding audience, and read—their prompting devices often were visible— brief, formal, campaign-style speeches on subjects ranging from taxation and government spending to strife in Vietnam and tension in the Middle East.

The administration, of course, came under sharp attack from most speakers. Despite the efforts of the moderator, Sen. George Murphy of California, to inject a lighter, informal note in his introductions, the hour dragged by. It was too crowded, too busy, and had too many people trying to cover large complicated subjects in a few words.

Television is an antimate medium and the producers of the program erred in trying to carry a party rally into the living room.

Some of the speakers—particularly Rep. Ford and Rep. Melvin Laird—were more interesting and incisive when they were interviewed off-the-cuff as part of a panel appearing on ABC immediately following President Johnson's address last week.

Actress Helen Hayes will turn up as a "mystery guest" on ABC's daytime game show, 'Treasure Isle." The program, which features treasure hunting by contestants on and around a man-made lagoon near Palm Beach, Fla., claims the distinction of being the only show in its category shot in an outdoor location.

Game shows are hardly Miss Hayes' specialty, but "Treasure Isle" is different—her brother-in-law, John MacArthur, is one of the packagers of the series and also owns the location, lagoon and all.

'Laura' Tonight

CBS has chosen March 5 for its special "S. Hurok Presents —Part 2." The first 90-minute program last season was a critical triumph.

The new program will present pianist Artur Rubenstein in his first television appearance in 10 years; Russian violinist David Oistrakh and the Bolshoi Ballet. All have performed under the aegis of Sol Hurok, the impressario named in the title.

Recommended tonight: Laura," ABC, 9-11 EST, with Lee Bouvier Radziwill in her television debut in the title role of the suspense story, Robert Stack and George Sanders.

Smart Whales

Whales are far more intelligent than the fishes, and more so than many kinds of mammals. They have a mentality superior to that of an ox and probably close, if not equal, to that of a dog or horse.

Bridge

Time to Break Habit Arrives

By Oswald and James Jacoby

Certain bridge habits are so deeply ingrained in us that it is almost impossible to break away from them. One of these habits is that you lead a low card from a long suit unless you have some special combination of high cards at the top.

Now take a look at the West hand. You have to lead against four hearts and you have listened carefully to the bidding. South has a good hand. He opened with a forcing two bid. Also, South has a two suiter. He started with hearts and bid and rebid diamonds.

North has a bad hand but he does have at least five spades. He also has at least as many hearts as diamonds. Should we open a trump in an effort to cut down dummy's ruffing power.

This might be a good idea if our diamond suit were something like ace-jack-nine-small but it actually is ace - deuce-trey-four. We aren't likely to get more than one trick there. Thus we decide to open a club. Habit tells us to lead the deuce. Fourth best of four, as recommended in all books, is led by us year in and year out.

If we follow habit and the rules, South has no trouble making his contract. Our partner wins the trick with his ace and leads back a low club. Declarer discards his small spade and now dummy's queen is the top club. No matter what we do, South will be able to draw trumps, knock out our ace of diamonds and make his contact.

If we are really alert, we should defeat the contract by the irregular opening lead of the king of clubs. It won't make any difference whether South ruffs right in or discards a spade. He will be faced by further club leads and will have to allow our partner to make a small trump in the cool of the evening.

TV Errs on the GOP Answer

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP Television-Radio Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — The Republican leadership of the 90th Congress, in an hour provided by CBS Tuesday night, chose to use it to present 'a picture of our party—how we look, how we feel," as House Minority Leader Gerald Ford said.

A picture, however, is helped by its frame, and the frame— or format—in which the Republicans chose to answer and criticize President Johnson's State of the Union address did not help a bit.

Hour Dragged

After a brief introductory message from former President Dwight D. Eisenhower, 14 senators and congressmen stood in turn before the cameras and a live, applauding audience, and read—their prompting devices often were visible— brief, formal, campaign-style speeches on subjects ranging from taxation and government spending to strife in Vietnam and tension in the Middle East.

The administration, of course, came under sharp attack from most speakers. Despite the efforts of the moderator, Sen. George Murphy of California, to inject a lighter, informal note in his introductions, the hour dragged by. It was too crowded, too busy, and had too many people trying to cover large complicated subjects in a few words.

Television is an antimate medium and the producers of the program erred in trying to carry a party rally into the living room.

Some of the speakers—particularly Rep. Ford and Rep. Melvin Laird—were more interesting and incisive when they were interviewed off-the-cuff as part of a panel appearing on ABC immediately following President Johnson's address last week.

Actress Helen Hayes will turn up as a "mystery guest" on ABC's daytime game show, "Treasure Isle." The program, which features treasure hunting by contestants on and around a man-made lagoon near Palm Beach, Fla., claims the distinction of being the only show in its category shot in an outdoor location.

Game shows are hardly Miss Hayes' specialty, but "Treasure Isle" is different—her brother-in-law, John MacArthur, is one of the packagers of the series and also owns the location, lagoon and all.

'Laura' Tonight

CBS has chosen March 5 for its special "S. Hurok Presents —Part 2." The first 90-minute program last season was a critical triumph.

The new program will present pianist Artur Rubenstein in his first television appearance in 10 years; Russian violinist David Oistrakh and the Bolshoi Ballet. All have performed under the aegis of Sol Hurok, the impresario named in the title.

Recommended tonight: Laura," ABC, 9-11 EST, with Lee Bouvier Radziwill in her television debut in the title role of the suspense story, Robert Stack and George Sanders.

Smart Whales

Whales are far more intelligent than the fishes, and more so than many kinds of mammals. They have a mentality superior to that of an ox and probably close, if not equal, to that of a dog or horse.

Bridge

Time to Break Habit Arrives

By Oswald and James Jacoby

Certain bridge habits are so deeply ingrained in us that it is almost impossible to break away from them. One of these habits is that you lead a low card from a long suit unless you have some special combination of high cards at the top.

Now take a look at the West hand. You have to lead against four hearts and you have listened carefully to the bidding. South has a good hand. He opened with a forcing two bid. Also, South has a two suiter. He started with hearts and bid and rebid diamonds.

North has a bad hand but he does have at least five spades. He also has at least as many hearts as diamonds. Should we open a trump in an effort to cut down dummy's ruffing power.

This might be a good idea if our diamond suit were something like ace-jack-nine-small but it actually is ace - deuce-trey-four. We aren't likely to get more than one trick there. Thus we decide to open a club. Habit tells us to lead the deuce. Fourth best of four, as recommended in all books, is led by us year in and year out.

If we follow habit and the rules, South has no trouble making his contract. Our partner wins the trick with his ace and leads back a low club. Declarer discards his small spade and now dummy's queen is the top club. No matter what we do, South will be able to draw trumps, knock out our ace of diamonds and make his contact.

If we are really alert, we should defeat the contract by the irregular opening lead of the king of clubs. It won't make any difference whether South ruffs right in or discards a spade. He will be faced by further club leads and will have to allow our partner to make a small trump in the cool of the evening.

Drugs, Draft SUNY Woes

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — The State University was under fire in the Legislature today on two fronts — because students on one campus were using narcotics and because faculty members at another unit were advising students on how to avoid the draft.

Sharp criticism of university officials was voiced in heated floor speeches in both the Senate and Assembly at Tuesday's session.

Orders Probe

In the Assembly, Joseph Kottler, D-Brooklyn, who heads the Joint Legislative Committee on Higher Education, said he would launch his own inquiry into the narcotics situation at Stony Brook and other university units.

At the same time, Kottler defended the university against complaints by two Republican assemblymen, who protested formation of a faculty committee at the Albany unit to counsel students on ways to escape being drafted.

Assemblyman Neil W. Kelleher of Troy said the Legislature should make sure that university facilities are not being used in the draft counseling. Assemblymen Edwyn E. Mason of Hobart, Delaware County, called the faculty effort "subsidized subversion" of youth.

But Kottler protested that dissent from the Vietnam war policy should not be equated with treason, and he cautioned the Legislature against interfering with academic freedom in the university system.

The liveliest discussion took place in the Senate, triggered by a pre-dawn police raid on the Stony Brook campus last Wednesday that resulted in the arrest of 33 persons on narcotics charges.

Stony Brook Aides Hit

After several senators denounced Stony Brook officials for what they considered lax administration, Brydges said he was asking the Joint Legislative Committee on Crime to look into the situation.

Stony Brook officials, he said, have "the duty to account for their stewardship."

At Stony Brook, President John S. Toll said the university always had cooperated with local police and would continue to do so.

At the university's central headquarters in Albany, Vice Chancellor J. Lawrence Murray said the university "will cooperate in any way possible with the Legislature."

Sen. John H. Huges, R-Syracuse, who heads the joint committee on crime, said he would decide next week when to begin hearings on the Stony Brook episode.

In the Senate, tart criticism of the Stony Brook operation was leveled by Suffolk Republican Leon E. Giuffreda. He complained of lack of supervision by university officials.

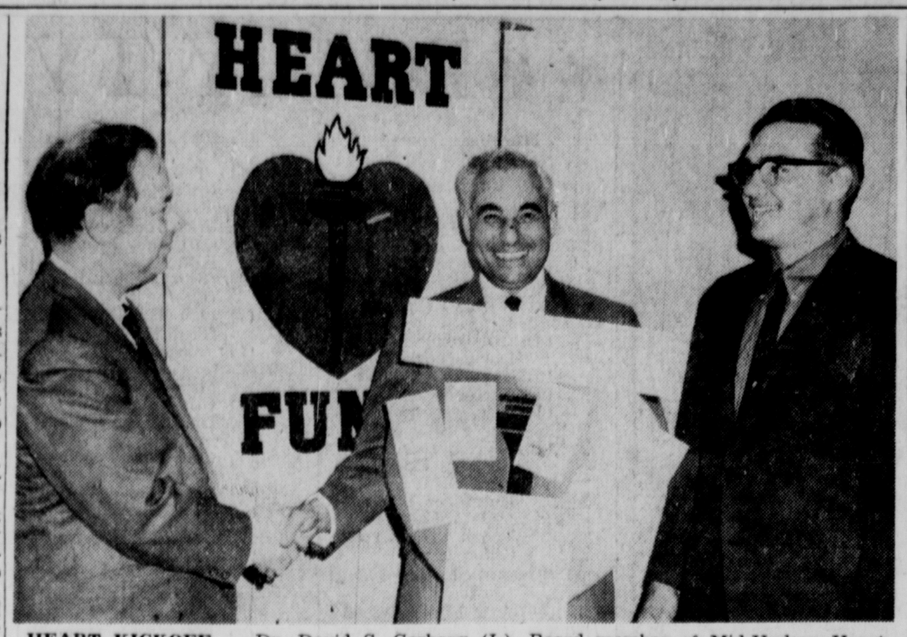

Among other things, Giuffreda said that, of the 33 persons arrested, 11 were "hangers-on" — persons who boarded at the school with bonafide students but who never attended classes.

Those who joined in calling for an investigation included Sen. Simon J. Liebowitz, D-Brooklyn, Sen. Abraham Bernstein, D-Bronx, and Sen. Jay P. Rolison Jr., R-Poughkeepsie.

Only Sen. Jack E. Bronston, D-Queens, cautioned against a full investigation, saying, "I suggest we leave it alone for the time being."

City Budget Foes

Firemen Join the GOPs

Kingston firemen have joined the Republicans in opposing Mayor Raymond W. Garraghan's budget approved by the Common Council Monday night. The firemen are not opposing the entire budget, just the part dealing with their salaries.

The firemen had negotiated with fire commissioners for a $400 across the board pay increase. This was $50 per man more than Kingston police settled for through their bargaining unit, the Kingston Patrolmen's Association.

Robert Golnick, president of Local 461, Uniformed Firemen's Association, bargaining agents for the firemen, termed Garraghan's refusal to abide by the agreement between Local 461 and the fire commissioners, "an act of bad faith."

Local 461 plans to take their dispute to the State Public Employe Relations Board, set up as a result of the Taylor Law. The Taylor Law, passed last year, prohibits strikes by public employes, except, according to a local 461 spokesman, under extreme provocation. The law also outlines procedures for the election of bargaining agents by public employes to bargain with administrations. In addition, it has required public employe relations boards to act as go-betweens for employes and administrations in contract negotiations. The PERBs do not have power of decision in salary disputes. The Taylor Bill mandates that the administration has the last word in negotiations.

The city has put in its last word, to date. Local 461 will fight to see just how binding the Taylor Law, which gave the city that last word, really is.

Local 461 will not be the first public employes to protest a budget concerning them.
